Debra Deals Texas Millions In Damages; 8 Still Missing

ONE TROOPER WOUNDED

Besieged Slayer Apparently Dies In Flaming Barn

ROCKY MOUNT, Va. (UPI) — Exconvict Earl A. Smith, sought for slaying a helpless man and an infant child, barricaded himself in a barn which burned to the ground Saturday night in the face of a posse's tear gas barrage. An officer said Smith apparently died in the fire.

Smith, 30, of Ferrum, Va., surrounded by some 50 or 60 officers, two Army tanks, machine guns and armored cars, made no attempt to shoot it out or escape when the barn in which he took refuge went up in flames.

Sheriff Morton T. Prillaman of Henry County, Va., said Smith's body apparently would be found in the smouldering ruins of the barn—the climax to a grim manhunt which lasted more than 36 hours.

Fire trucks were called to wet down the ruins to enable officers to search for the body.

The fire, which broke out in a hayloft, apparently was started by about 30 tear gas shells which police lobbed into the barn trying to flush out the ex-convict who was armed with a powerful hunting rifle, the same weapon which felled his two victims Friday and wounded a pursuing posse member Saturday.

Smith's father, Roosevelt Smith, pleaded on a loudspeaker for his son to give himself up.

"Earl this is your daddy," the elder Smith shouted. "Earl. Earl. Please, you're running your mother crazy. Come out. We'll save your life. They ain't nobody gonna shoot."

Officers fired about 30 tear gas shells into the barn and a few sub-marine gun bursts but there was no sign of life from the building, swatched in the harsh glare of searchlights.

Smith wounded one trooper in the shoulder when the officer walked unsuspecting into the barn, located on a well-kept farm belonging to Smith's father, about 16 miles west of Rocky Mount.

RICHARD M. NIXON

Nixon Wins Cheers From Most Soviets

MOSCOW (UPI) — Vice President Richard M. Nixon won the acclaim of thousands of cheering Russians Saturday despite his first taste of Soviet hecklers and a new press attack on "American imperalists."

Nixon held his own with the hecklers—one of them apparently a "plant"—and gave as good as he got from them at the Soviet Agricultural and Industrial Exposition where other Russians cheered him and tried to shake his hand.

EXCHANGE TOASTS

Fresh from his rough-and-tumble verbal duel with Nikita S. Khrushchev Friday, Nixon said he intended to tackle the Soviet Premier again on the issues of East-West peace.

Nixon and Khrushchev exchanged generaly friendly toasts Saturday night at a dinner at the U.S. ambassador's residence. The Vice President, who was dinner host, said "all the ingredients for peaceful friendship and peaceful cooperation are here if they can be put together."

In proposing a toast to President Eisenhower, Khrushchev said: "We do not need anything from the United States and the United States does not need anything from us. What we really need is trade.

Judge Orders New Schools To Integrate

ALEXANDRIA, Va. (UPI) — Federal Judge Albert V. Bryant Saturday ordered that 12 Negro students be admitted to three schools in Arlington, Va., when they reopen this fall.

For two of the schools, it will be the beginning of integration.

The judge held that the Arlington School Board applied entrance requirements unequally in rejecting the students. But he upheld the board's refusal to admit 10 other Negroes.

RULING IMPROPER

At the same time, Bryan denied a motion by attorneys for the Negroes that the board be required to submit a comprehensive plan for desegregation. The board's system of screening pupils provides adequate relief, he said, and is proper so long as it is applied equally to whites and Negroes.

Paratroops Test Battle Preparedness

BOISE, Idaho, (AP) — Defense of a precariously situated free world capital city such as West Berlin was tested Saturday by combat-ready American paratroops.

They were flown across country from Ft. Campbell, Ky., and dropped under simulated battle conditions just south of Boise.

The combined exercise by regular Army paratroops from the famed 101st Airborne Division, the Pacific Coast 349th Troop Carrier Wing reserve, and the Idaho National Guard was carried out without a hitch.

Only three men were injured, and those only slightly, as C119 Flying Boxcars unloaded 190 paratroopers and their heavy equipment in clear, wind-free weather.

The entire opertaion, known as Idaho Eagle 1, was based on conditions likely to be encountered by the U.S. Straetgic Army Corps, of which the 101st Airborne is a key division, in a limited war emergency anywhere along the frontiers of the free world.

After the chutes floated down the troops went into simulated ground fighting. The Idaho National Guard attacked the paratroops with tanks and, in turn, was hit by Air National Guard jets.

For purposes of the maneuver, the city of Boise had the role of the threatened city which might well have been West Berlin for all the assumed geographicol and political similarities.

Monroe Residents Wade Home

HOMES, STREETS FLOODED

Twin Cities Hit By Heavy Rains

A deluge of heavy rains dipped several sections of Monroe under water yesterday evening as ditches overflowed and flooded streets and many residential districts.

Crews from the city's fire department and police department were busy most of the afternoon re-routing traffic and pumping water from the flooded streets, many of which lay under several inches of water.

While maintenance crews were busy with the flood waters, youngsters were busy, too — taking quick advantage of the tailor-made swimming pools that appeared throughout their neighborhood. In many cases, the water cascaded from brimming rain pipes and inched up under houses momentarily "stranding" the watchful occupants inside.

ESTIMATES

Yesterday's rains, unofficially estimated at points around the city at about three inches, received a comparatively smaller estimate by FAA at Selman Field, where only .53 of an inch was recorded.

The southern section of Monroe near the Winnsboro road seemed to receive the crux of the flooding rains. Several streets had to be blocked by police and traffic re-routed until the water could be pumped off by firemen.

Pumping operations still continued through 6:30 yesterday evening, but firemen said most of the immediate flooded areas would be safely drained shortly by the city draining system.

The Monroe area seemed to to have been the hardest hit by rain yesterday, although other areas reported some rains.

Heavy rains in the early afternoon were reported in Farmerville, but there was no evidence of flooding. The Sterlington area, too, received heavy rains about two until three o'clock.

A similar report came from Rayville, where heavy rains hit both yesterday and the previous day, but no damage was reported.

Cuban Police Seize Pilot, Arms Cache

HAVANA (UPI) —Police captured a man wanted as a counter-revolutionary leader and seized a strategic arms cache in separate raids Saturday as violence mounted on the eve of the anniversary of Cuba's revolution.

Four unidentified gunmen fired on the home of Transport Minister Maj. Julio Camacho Aguilera in suburban Marianao and escaped in an automobile, authorities reported. No one was injured.

Guards said they believed the attack was carried out in an attempt to dampen anniversary festivities which Fidel Castro will lead Sunday.

The arms cache, including Molotov cocktails and homemade daggers, was seized at Principe Prison, foiling plans for a riot by political prisoners during the Castro celebration.

Other police detachments rounded up suspected counter -revolutionaries and shot up a private plane trying to take off from the Guanabo Highway, wounding the pilot, a Cuban-born American citizen.

Three men in a parked car near the plane shot their way through a roadblock and escaped. The pilot, identified as Rafael Del Pino, was removed to a hospital. Tracer bullets burned the plane.

Del Pino was identified as an anti - Castro leader in exile in Miami who had dropped pamphlets on Havana.

Police said they found the plane at suburban Boca de Jaruco on a tip.

Del Pino, a U.S. Army veteran, was a friend of Castro in Mexico. He broke with the rebel leader on grounds his movement was communist-dominated.

If tried and convicted, he could be sentenced to death for armed counter-revolutionary activity. Police said they found a .45 caliber pistol in the plane's cockpit.

West Berlin Gives Herter Big Welcome

BERLIN (UPI) — Secretary of State Christian Herter assured thousands of cheering Berliners Saturday that the West would never bow to Soviet demands to pull out of this divided city.

Herter flew here from Geneva for a six-hour visit and encountered a hero's welcome.

The official reason for Herter's visit was to attend a ceremony renaming Zelten Allee in honor of his predecessor, the late John Foster Dulles, but the trip also underscored Western determination.

SHORT APPROVED

In a speech at City Hall, Herter pledged again the West would not desert West Berlin's 2,200,000 citizens isolated from the free world.

West Berliners responded by lining the streets and shouting their approval of the U.S. stand at the Geneva Big Four Foreign Ministers Conference.

They broke through police lines to shake his hand and shouted "well done, Herter" and "long live Herter."

"I assure the Berliners that the United States will not forget its responsibilities toward Berlin," Herter said at City Hall.

"Much has been said at Geneva about the question of western rights in Berlin," he said.

"These rights are clear and cannot be terminated by the unilateral action of any other power. We have not accepted and will not accept any deadline on them."

Herter added that the United States' repeated promise to defend West Berlin was "a binding commitment and the U.S. will abide by it."

Later, at the street - renaming ceremonies, Herter praised Dulles and said that "already attacked by that illness from which he was soon to die, Secretary Dulles made the last painful journey to London, Paris and Bonn to strengthen the resolution of the West in the face of threats against this city."

Hurricane Loses Fury; Rains Pose Flooding Threat

HOUSTON, Tex. (UPI)— Hurricane Debra, the worst tropical storm of the season, battered the Texas coast Saturday with vicious 105-mile-an-hour winds and lashing rain squalls damaging property worth millions of dollars.

It was feared Debra may be a killer.

At least eight persons were reported missing as the hurricane moved slowly inland, aimed a bruising broadside at metropolitan Houston and veered to the east of the south's largest city, the worst of its fury spent.

STILL DANGEROUS

The Coast Guard reported four persons were missing on a 26-foot cabin cruiser in the gulf of south of Freeport, and two men were missing on Green Lake, northwest of Corpus Christi.

Two other men were also missing — one at Freeport, and the other at Texas City.

There were no confirmed deaths.

The storm weakened as it moved inland north of its brutal assault on the Gulf Coast.

But the Weather Bureau said it was still dangerous and a threat to life because of heavy rains.

At 4 p.m. (cst) the center was about 40 miles north northeast of Houston, with highest winds estimated 40-60 miles an hour. The Weather Bureau said Debra would continue northward in east Texas and western Louisiana Saturday night and Sunday, dumping from 10-15 inches of rain on those sections.

Truman Gets Long's Views On '60 Ticket

INDEPENDENCE, Mo. (UPI)— Gov. Earl Long of Louisiana, who said he now favors a Symington-Kennedy Democratic ticket in next year's presidential race, predicted Saturday that he and former President Harry S. Truman would "have the same ideas" when convention time rolls around.

His forecast immediately followed a 45-minute visit with the former President and came in a breathless, marathon conference with newsmen assembled on the steps at the rear of the Truman library here.

Long reiterated an earlier statement that his presidential choice for 1960 is Sen. Stuart Symington (D-Mo.), with Sen. John Kennedy (D-Mass.) as the vice presidential candidate.

TRUMAN SILENT

However, Long said he could not speak for Truman, who left his library office without comment after the meeting.

The former President repeatedly has refused to express a preference among potential Democratic presidential candidates.

Long, who was 15 minutes late for his appointment with the former President, said it had been a very pleasant visit, in which he told Truman "a lot of dirty jokes."

"But he didn't tell me any," he

Thirsty Town Seeks Cash To Restore Water

ROY, N. M. (AP) — Both the water mains and the town are broke, and thirsty Roy is getting desperate for water.

The 750 residents of this northern New Mexico cowtown can be seen in the early morning hours, trailing about with pails and buskets seeking to obtain water from the few homes that have their own wells.

The City Council, in an emergency session, ordered that tanks and tank trucks be commandered to bring water from the town's two wells seven miles north.

Town officials criticized Gov. John Burroughs and the State Finance Board for failing to help the town in its need.

Mayor Robert Kiersey said he had visited Burroughs

Plane Skims Houses, Two Die In Crash

PHILADELPHIA, (AP) — A single engine airplane crashed between two row houses in a heavily populated section of the city Saturday, killing the two men aboard.

The victims were Theodore J. Walsh, 31, the pilot, and William Taratuski, 52, a passenger. Both men lived within two blocks of the crash scene, in the Kensington section of the city.

The airplane circled the neighborhood for 15 minutes, then skimmed along the rooftops of the crowded street and dropped into a passageway between the two houses. The engine, weighing about half a ton, was wrenched from the fuselage and hurled about 40 feet into a backyard.

The main part of the fuselage lodged in the six-foot wide passageway, with the tail caught on one of the roofs. There was no fire.

Patrolman John Mallon of the accident investigation division said police had received two or three complaints from residents in the area that the plane was buzzing the neighborhood, flying low and recklessly.

Cause of the crash wasn't determined. Some witnesses told police the pilot seemed to be searching for a clearing in which to land because the plane had engine trouble. A neighborhood playground was jammed with children.

Suspect Charged In N.O. Holdup

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Police Saturday held a 23-year-old Kansas man on charges of armed robbery in the $159 holdup of a homestead association with a toy pistol.

Officers said Merle Richard Sturdivan of Clay Center, Kan., alias Clayton "Jim" James, admitted the Tuesday attempted holdup of a branch of the Whitney National Bank of New Orleans. He was also wanted by the FBI for questioning.

A clerk in the Third District Homestead Assn. said a man holding what looked like a pistol handed her a written note demanding the money Friday.

Minutes after the robbery, police arrested Sturdivan in a nearby bar. They said he left the holdup scene carrying the bills and toy pistol and went to the bar.

Winn Salt Sprinkled In Strategic Places

By AUSTIN ABRAMS
Special Correspondent

WINNFIELD — Since before 1700 salt from the pine hills of Winn parish has been a strategic material, molding Indian nations together by trade, rescuing Confederate supply lines during a Union blockade, and now it is dropping off the conference tables at Geneva.

The latest development on Winn's salt is bound in contract between the Carey Salt Company and the Atomic Energy Commission (AEC), which has scheduled tests here in hopes of amplifying current theories on detecting nuclear explosions.

An AEC spokesman announced the contract here last Thursday noon.

On June 12 a report issued to the public held that methods for detecting nuclear detonations as discussed at Geneva might be reduced by as much as 10 times or more.

This, the report said, might be achieved by reducing the amount of shock wave available for transfer from an underground explosion to ground level where the waves can be registered by seismographs.

And so in Carey's salt mine here, 811 feet below the surface through 400 feet of cap rock and about 400 feet of solid rock salt the AEC will fire 10 shots of high explosives ranging to five tons of TNT this summer and hope that its ground level vibrations are weak.

But behind the story of the cold war, its H-bomb tests, and fizzling missiles, linger the rem-

Searchers Find Missing Girl, 14

OCALA, Fla. (UPI)—Searchers hunting for a 14 - year - old girl missing in the swampy Ocala National Forest found her floating helplessly down a stream in a rowboat Saturday night.

Helen Thomas, missing for 4½ hours, was mosquito bitten and embarrassed by the excitment she had caused. Otherwise, Sheriff F. L. McGehee said, she was in perfect condition.

Helen told her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Thomas of Silver Springs, she had gone for a walk from the picnic area at Juniper Springs. The search got underway when she did not return.

She said she found the boat and decided to go for a ride. She paddled down the Juniper Springs run toward Lake George. As it grew dark, she said, she found she was unable to paddle back upstream against the current.

IN OUACHITA, JACKSON

Upswing Expected In Political Activity

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the sixth and final in a series on future political campaigns in Northeast Louisiana. Today's article is on Jackson and Ouachita parishes.)

By SAM HANNA
Staff Writer

Politics in Ouachita and Jackson parishes may be on the brink of getting into full swing.

With two candidates for the Legislature already announced, the field of contenders, at the moment, is wide open.

Monroe businessman Jamar (Jim) Adcock, who has longed for a political scrap for a long time, has plunged into a meaty campaign, complete with highway billboards.

So far Adcock has no opposition in either Ouachita or Jackson parish for the job which Sen. James Sparks has held for two terms. Sparks is stepping down.

However, there are indications that Adcock certainly won't go without a fight.

For instance, a young Monroe pharmacist, James C. (Jake) Ussery is making no bones about his interests in politics. Ussery presently is considering both the House and Senate, but it's very likely he'll run for the senior chamber.

With Rep. Gilbert Faulk also stepping down, the House race in Ouachita could prove to be interesting.

Rep. Lawrence Gibbs has announced for re-election and it's highly possible he'll have a lot of company.

However, the picture may be changing, since there are reports that Paul Ransom and Fred Huenefeld Jr. are cooling off on mild disturbance to a raging fury with little warning. It caught a number of boats off shore, but most made it to shore under their own power or with aid from the Coast Guard.

Officials were unable to give an immediate estimate of damages, but it appeared certain to run into millions of dollars.

More than a half million dollars' damage was reported at Galveston, where a hurricane in 1900 killed between 5,000 and 8,000 persons. The exact number was never established.

Texas City, scene of another major disaster in the past, suffered damage in the hundreds of thousands of dollars. At least 17 businesses were destroyed, and Police Chief Rankin Dewalt said damage along one dock area to boats and fishing camps may run to $100,000.

Hundreds of persons along the coast were evacuated.

Weather men blamed a stalemate in the Gulf for Debra's sudden intense buildup. They said the mild disturbance slowed to a halt Thursday night about 45 miles off the coast from Matagorda, Tex., and started grouping a series of heavy rains.

The storm pattern formed swiftly during the day and by late afternoon had developed a well-defined storm center with winds at hurricane velocity of 75 miles an hour. By midnight, after hitting Freeport, Tex., a broadside wallop, the winds during the Galveston onslaught attained a top velocity of 105 miles an hour.

Galveston Police Chief O. E. Henson said it would be Sunday or Monday before a realistic toll of damage could be estimated. High water in the streets prevented general movement in washed-out areas, he said. Many damaged business concerns were closed Saturday, and much merchandise was soaked by rain driven by wind through broken display windows.

Henson's opinion was echoed by officials of other battered communities. Hard hit along with Galveston was Freeport, 35 miles down the Gulf Coast and the first populated center to feel Debra's pelting might.

day, with light showers throughout yesterday. Tallulah reported similar conditions, and indicated no more rain was needed. Cotton and corn crops there were beginning to suffer from too much moisture, said County Agent Max McDonald. About 75 per cent of the parish had too much rain for the crops there, while some portions were in bad need of more.

Oak Grove missed most of the heavy rains, but reported drenching torrents farther up near the Arkansas border, where several inches of rain were recorded.

In Rayville, where heavy rains fell during the last two days, farm crops are "sitting pretty" at the minute. According to County Agent Basil Doles, there appeared to be no immediate serious danger from rain, but what appears to be a bumper harvest could be ruined by too much rainfall.

Light rains were reported in Ruston and Winnsboro, with no damage or danger to crops in the near future from rain.

Along with Monroe's unusually wet weather comes somewhat cooler temperatures. Yesterday's high was 86, low was 73 — around ten degrees below the usual readings during the past few days.

Similar weather is expected today through tomorrow, with locally heavy rains mostly in the afternoon and evening.

Arkansas residents may look for considerable cloudiness through tonight with scattered thundershowers and no important temperature changes.

Horse Injures County Agent

Paul E. Hardy, assistant county agent in Richland Parish, received a broken leg near Rayville yesterday when he was kicked by a horse. He was rushed to St. Francis hospital, where his right leg was examined and put in cast.

Judge Orders New Schools To Integrate

grated school in Virginia since the days of reconstruction.

Under the judge's order, seven of the students will go to Stratford, four to Washington-Lee High, and one to Patrick Henry Elementary School. The last two have been all-white.

The school board refused to admit the four to Washington-Lee on grounds the school was overcrowded. Judge Bryan ruled that this was improper—that the Negroes "cannot be singled out for rejection for overcrowding alone."

The students seeking admission to Patrick Henry and Stratford were turned down because their grades on academic tests fell below the median achievement level of the grades they wanted to enter. In overturning this, the judge pointed out that some white pupils also fell below this median.

"Should any classes be established with reference to the national median or some other standard," the judge said, "admitting only those above it, then any white or Negro pupil not posessing these qualifications could be excluded from those classes, provided all students were given an equal opportunity to enter such classes."

The judge upheld the board in turning down the 10 other applications because the pupils lived outside the districts of the schools they sought to enter.

"Considering school bus routes, safety of access and other pertinent factors, it cannot be found that the school board's assignments are arbitrary or predicated on race or color," he said. In their own district, he added, the pupils actually "are afforded schools of better pupil-teacher ratio and of less congestion than any in the county."

This ruling in effect upheld the board's right to set up school districts. "The court cannot draw the boundaries for attendance areas," Judge Bryan said.

Saturday's rulings were the latest in a legal battle that went all the way to the U.S. Supreme Court. In January Chief Justice Earl Warren rejected the school board's request to postpone integration.

Judge Bryan ordered last year that the board admit the four Negroes to Stratford Junior High, but granted a delay until February.

JAPANESE FASHION MODEL

New Miss Universe 'Floating On Cloud'

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP)—A willowy Japanese fashion model—first to give the Orient the Miss Universe title — Saturday began her reign "floating on a cloud and living a dream."

"I had to pinch myself to be sure it was not a dream," 22-year-old Akiko Kojima of Tokyo beamed upon awakening after her wildly acclaimed midnight selection.

She had snatched a few hours sleep with her four-foot Miss Universe trophy at the foot of her bed.

The 5-foot 6-inch beauty, with 37-23-38 measurements, cried "Oh, my gosh!" when she was announced the winner among the five finalists.

"I am, oh, so very happy," she said, tears shining in her eyes as 4,200 spectators rose and cheered.

Miss Kojima narrowly edged out Miss Norway, Jorunn Kristiansen, 18, for the title, which means $10,000 in cash prizes, other awards and a year of touring the world.

Miss United States, Terry Lynn Huntingdon, 19, was third; Miss England, Pamela Anne Searle, 21, fourth, and Miss Brazil, Vera Ribeiro, 19, fifth.

Her reaction to winning?

"Mainly disbelief," she said through an interpreter.

"When it came down to five finalists, I eliminated myself and considered it a toss-up among the others."

Dressed in a delicate white negligee and smoking a cigarette, Miss Kojima answered questions while her hairdresser worked on her shimmering dark hair.

A busy, exciting day, climaxed by the coronation ball, was ahead for the leggy model who says she has been earning between $300 and $700 a month.

Miss Kojima disclosed that she has received movie offers.

"I plan to make tests next week at Warner Bros. and 20th Century-Fox," she said.

"I would like to make a movie or two if I am asked, and then return to Japan for a visit."

But she said she would like to make the United States her home eventually, marry and raise a family. She said her true ambition is to be "a lovely wife."

Runnerup Miss Norway said that although she is homesick, she may stay over for a movie test. Miss United States, too, is interested in a film career, and Miss England is set for a screen test Monday. Miss Brazil says she's ready to go home. Some of the other beauties who failed to get into the final five will get movie chances to soften their disappointment.

Miss Kojima took over the Miss Universe crown from Colombia's Luz Marina Zuluaga, who was the second Latin American beauty in a row to win the title.

Despite this record by Latin Americans, some of the South American contingent stirred up a hornet's nest as the judging neared its climax Friday night. They were incensed because only two Latin Americans were among the 15 semifinalists.

three times seeking help "but got nowhere."

Councilman Allen Foersheim said he had tried to visit the governor several times to explain the situation "but he was always too busy to see me, and several times I tried to call him, but he was unavailable."

In Santa Fe, Borroughs said he still was seeking a source of money for Roy to restore the water. He though he had found a source, he said, but was told by state officials that the money legally could be made available only to unincorporated villages. Roy is incorporated.

The situation is this: In 1945 Roy borrowed $68,500 to install water mains from the wells. These were the war years, and the so-called invasion pipe furnished, of a low wartime grade, had a life expectancy of only eight years.

It's been 14 years, and the pipe is shot. Pumps at the wells also have broken down, and pumps at the reservoirs also have stopped working.

The town still hasn't paid off the original 14 - year - old debt, and can borrow no more. It recently asked the State Finance Board for a $13,000 loan to look for water closer to town, but was turned down, the mayor said.

Mrs. H. E. Surls, the mother of five, said she had been doing without laundry altogether.

"This town is dying on its feet," Mrs. Surls said. "It's terrible not to have water. You don't realize how terrible until it isn't there."

Roy has been without water since Wednesday.

said. "He made out like he had not heard any of mine."

Most of Long's animated discussion with newsmen was devoted to a dissertation on segregation, in which he said Louisiana had ""the finest colored people in the world," and that there now is no trouble between white and Negro races in Louisiana.

Long said that if the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, and other groups, "would just leave us along. . .we would have one of the finest and happiest groups of people in the world."

He remarked that he would like to see Gov. Orval Faubus of Arkansas during Long's visit in Little Rock Sunday "and give him some of my philosophy on that Central High School situation."

"But he hasn't asked for my advice and he probably won't take it," Long said. He avoided a question about what he would have done in Faubus' place, but said the situation resulted from "a plot of the NAACP."

Long appeared in exhuberant spirits, lightly jabbing newsmen with a finger or tapping them on the chest to emphasize his points.

He suddenly looked 10 years younger than he had an hour earlier when he was seized by a fit of coughing as he slumped in a chair in Truman's outer office.

He had looked very tired and haggard and the appearance of the 65-year-old governor presented a marked contrast to that of the 75-year-old Truman, who jauntily paced across the room to welcome his guest.

Long had said earlier that he wanted to discuss possible presidential candidates with Truman because "I'm foolish enough to think I might get re-elected and might have something to do with the Louisiana delegation to the National Democratic Convention next year."

Truman and Long differed in the last selection of a presidential candidate and Long remarked Saturday that events proved Truman, who preferred Averell Harriman, was right. Long's choice was Adlai Stevenson.

The temperamental governor said a Symington-Kennedy ticket would give the Democrats the "old time Roosevelt sweep" in 1960.

MISS HAZEL MITCHELL

Miss Mitchell Is Named To Bulletin Staff

Miss Hazel Mitchell, assistant professor of languages at Northeast Louisiana State, has been appointed associate editor of the South Central Bulletin, published by the South Central Modern Language Association.

The announcement was made by the association's president A. M. de la Torre of the University of Oklahoma.

A Tulane University professor, William E. Smith, is editor in chief of the Bulletin, a quarterly publication which will be published in New Orleans.

Membership of the South Central Modern Language Association, an affiliate of the Modern Language Association of America, comprises instructors of English, Spanish, French and German. The area of membership covers Louisiana, Mississippi, Arkansas, Texas and Oklahoma.

Miss Mitchell, who has been affiliated with Northeast for several years, has taught both Spanish and French here. She also has organized various clubs at the college for students who were interested in the study of foreign languages.

In addition to her work at Northeast, she has taught foreign language classes in kindergarten and elementary schools in Monroe to test the theory held by many instructors that young children learn these languages quite rapidly. The results have proved "most encouraging and rewarding," she said.

Miss Mitchell studied languages as an undergraduate student and continued work in this field at Louisiana State University, the University of Colorado, National University of Mexico, University of Havana and University of Madrid.

She has served as chairman of the Foreign Language section of the Louisiana Teachers Association.

X15 Rocket Ship Is Successful In Captive Flight

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP)—A second X15 rocket ship made its first captive flight here Friday under the wing of a B52 bomber.

Success of the test of the second craft in the X15 series means the first powered flight of an X15 can be expected in 60 days, the Air Force said.

In Friday's flight, the X15 and the mother ship stayed aloft an hour and 10 minutes after taking off at 11:20 a.m.

Both the X15 and the B52 went up with full fuel loads for the first time. The X15 jettisoned its fuel over the desert in a test of ability to purge itself of the highly volatile liquid in event of an emergency.

North American test pilot Scott Crossfield was in the cockpit of the X15, as he has been in the five previous flights of the first X15.

Police Check Bikini Suit For Close Tolerance

SEATTLE (AP)—From top to bottom—40-26-39.

And all crowded into a teensy, weensy Bikini, yet!

At first glance you wouldn't think there was anything controversial about that. Now, would you?

At second glance — maybe. At third glance? Definitely "yes."

At least that was the opinion (it took several more glances) of four policemen on a Seattle beach Friday.

Darlene Smith, 21, who says she is an exotic dancer with the stage name Star Bright, poured herself into a Bikini and wandered waterward to test a recent ruling by the park board.

The board said recently it would leave to the police any decisions of what might be termed "indecent exposure" on public beaches.

Somebody called the cops.

(There were rumors the caller might have been Miss Smith's publicity agent. But that's beside the Bikini—uh—point.)

Four patrolmen pulled up. They stopped. They looked. They looked again.

Miss Smith waited—all 40-26-39 of her. She stretched out on a towel.

There was a sudden dash for a patrol car. A hasty conversation with headquarters followed.

A sergeant arrived on the scene. There was agreement. It was a nice Bikini.

"Whew," said the sergeant.

"You know," he added, "I think somebody is making a mountain out of a holehill."

And with that, the officers left.

Miss Smith? She's still wondering whether she was guilty of something—all 5-foot-8, 40-26-39 of her.

EDITORIALS

Municipal Auditorium

Monroe has a reputation for being one of the best convention cities in Louisiana and is constantly striving for more, better and bigger conventions but it faces one serious handicap. It does not have sufficient space to accommodate all the delegates to a big convention at a single place.

This was dramatically demonstrated at the recent convention of the Louisiana Farm Bureau Federation. With 2,300 delegates in attendance, the amount of space was completely inadequate both for the annual banquet and for the general sessions, with the result that many were crowded out and either had to listen from the outside or remain away entirely.

At the annual banquet there was actually space for only 450 persons. Banquet officials finally managed to squeeze in 503 persons by crowding in tables and placing some delegates along the walls. More than 600 requests for seats had been made, with the result that in excess of 100 persons were turned away, despite the fact that the room was badly overcrowded and consequently, hot.

In the general sessions there was never nearly enough room. Many had to stand along the walls and there were scores on the outside and on the stairways leading to the meeting room.

At the annual dance there was not enough space to take care of the couples wishing to attend.

Delegates from other areas of the state reported Monroe as an extremely friendly town and had nothing but praise for the attitude of the local people. The only fault they had to find was with the lack of an auditorium of sufficient size to take care of the delegates without crowding.

Because city officials, the Monroe Chamber of Commerce, civic organizations and the people here are always ready to give a big and hearty welcome to those attending conventions, Monroe has succeeded in getting a good share of these meetings but it could do even better if it could boast an auditorium in which delegates would be proud to meet and in which they would have plenty of room.

Entertaining out - of - town guests, including convention delegates, is one of the big industries of the United States and Louisiana and Monroe enjoy a considerable share of this business.

Breaking it down, experts have figured that, percentage-wise, the convention dollar is spent as follows: restaurants, 15.7; hotels and motels, 37.2; retail stores, 13; gas, oil and parking, 1.9; entertainment, 9; sightseeing, .3; beverages, 9.8; miscellaneous, 13.1.

At the Farm Bureau convention here it was estimated that the delegates spent an average of about $21 a day each. This would amount to about $73 for each delegate. When this amount is multiplied by the 2,300 delegates, it amounts to about $167,900.

The addition of this amount of money to the Monroe economy in three and one-half days is certainly worth while, as the same money, in the hands of different people, is spent over and over again.

An auditorium sufficient for the needs of conventions and for local use is a necessity for Monroe — for its economy and its growth.

Officials have proposed an all-purpose municipal auditorium which would seat 3,500. It could be constructed at an approximate cost of one and one-half million dollars.

In fact such an auditorium could have been under construction in the city at the present time. Monroe citizens had a chance last December to vote yes for progress in this regard, but failed to do so.

However, the vote margin against such a building was extremely small and probably would have been carried had not the issue been confused.

Voters were told that the city did not need an auditorium because one would be constructed shortly at Northeast State College which could be used for conventions and by local organizations. So far, there is no evidence that the college, although it needs one, will obtain the financing for an auditorium within the foreseeable future. It should be pointed out emphatically this is not the fault of the college or its officials. No such promise was ever made by anyone associated directly with the institution.

Even if Northeast obtains an auditorium within the near future, it still would not solve the problem for the city. Experiences in other cities have shown that it is not desirable to have to depend for general use on an institutional auditorium. Too many events would conflict. In those cases, and rightly so, the institution would have first choice.

The city needs its own auditorium—not a substitute.

There have been encouraging signs since last December that the people of Monroe are ready to move forward with long-neglected improvements. Not too long ago, an excellent citizens group was formed. In a short time it engineered several progressive steps, which the people approved, and we feel sure that other moves will be made soon to obtain needed projects for the city. We hope the construction of a municipal auditorium will be one of them because it would pay for itself within a few years.

There is a tremendous future for the Twin-City area. Evidence seen on every side indicates that the area is entering a solid boom era. But one thing should be made clear—if we want it to continue we cannot reject necessary improvements and facilities.

When a special group seeks to stop progress, we should demand an explanation of the motives behind the move. We should not allow promises and misstatements to confuse the issue.

What is the best for the city's growth is the best for all of us.

Busy Little Ship

Perhaps the unlikeliest candidate for seagoing honors in the Navy is the USS Butternut a hard-working chunky little ship whose current mission is to service "pop-up" tests of the Polaris missile.

From the Long Beach Naval Shipyard the Butternut hauls a dummy of the Polaris out to sea in the San Clemente Island sea ranges, covers it after the missile is launched and then returns it to shore for a checkup.

The Polaris, of course is the Navy's 1,500-mile guided missile designed for firing from submerged submarines. In the current tests being serviced by the Butternut, a 41-foot million-dollar underwater launching tube is used to "pop-up" the Polaris dummy.

The ship operates on a schedule geared to accommodate the missile scientists, rather than the Navy. One result is that liberty for the crew is not routine.

Nevertheless, more than one man has "signed over" for Butternut duty rather than take a well-paying job in civilian life. The explanation for this is simple; morale could hardly be higher.

I would like to state that the farm page each Monday is widely read in Madison parish. Quite often farmers refer to an article that they saw in there or asked detailed questions about something that was on the farm page.

I just wanted to congratulate you, your paper and your staff for this nice honor that you received; also, county agents through northeast Louisiana will be glad to cooperate with you in any way to improve the agricultural coverage of your paper.

UNION DEMOCRACY

Monroe, La.

Editor, Morning World:

I have just completed reading another of your slanted editorials that appeared in the MONROE MORNING WORLD, July 12, entitled "Union Elections." As usual, you continue to condemn the entire American labor movement on the basis of corruption in a few unions.

One does not have to think long to determine your motives for this relentless purge against organized labor. Certainly your "right to profit" excludes unions, because they do not place expensive advertisement in your paper. More important, you possess an unyielding hatred for those who dared defy you with a picket line, and this hatred becomes magnified with every derogatory editorial you publish.

The article of July 12 was supposed to include the alleged unfairness in the methods of elections for every union, except the International Typographical Union. Yet, as your example of corruption, you take the scandal ridden Teamsters; and you neatly fail to mention that they have been expelled by the AFL-CIO. you also related a system of elections in the big unions where only schemes prevailed; here again you "forgot" to list these unions.

Rather than pretend that I have knowledge of every unions procedure for the elections of their officers, I frankly say I do not, and I doubt your integrity on this matter, Mr. Editor. However, I do know that the Communications Workers of America, of which I am a member, stand out as a prime example of democracy in the labor movement. Having just returned from the 21st CWA National Convention, June 21-26, I can make this statement with confirmed validity.

At our convention the election of officers followed a very democratic procedure with ever affiliated Local sending delegates in proportion to their membership. These delegates voted, by secret ballot, for the officers of CWA. Proxy voting was allowed for those Locals financially unable to send their allotted delegation. Prior to the election nominations were accepted from the floor for any member in good standing. President Joseph A. Beirne was re-elected by a decisive margin.

In addition, this convention was was open to the public; any and everyone was welcome to come and observe a true democratic union in operation. President Beirne expressed this most assuredly in his closing speech, "This is our answer to the McClellan, to the Goldwaters, to the Mundts, who would suggest to the American people that organized labor is somewhat evil, that the leaders of it are somewhat dishonest, and afraid of public discussion." If you seek the truth about union democracy, and if it is the facts you will publish, then accept our personal invitation to attend the 1960 CWA convention that will be held the 3rd week of June, in St. Louis, Missouri.

WANTS LOVING CARE

Archibald, La.

To The Editor:

Why not give Gov. E. K. Long a little T L C (tender loving care) instead of so much harsh words, get behind him one hundred per cent, let him know that you appreciate his many nice things he has done for his state of Louisiana, such as good schools, highways, farm to market roads, hot lunches at schools, old age pensions that are livable, welfare to the sick and needy, and others to numerous to mention. I see no point in printing things over and over when they have been denied.

Let's check our own closets for a few skeletons and think would we want them printed. Come to the aid of Gov. Long who has made himself sick holding up the rights of our grand state of Louisiana say a few things nice about him, think of the great vote he got in the past and such a landslide no one but he received in past election that made him our Gov. second time.

A little kindness and respect from those voters will help much to let him know he is not a "old man standing alone" as the editorial in the Pa. paper says; he has plenty backing. Kindness makes the dumb speak, deaf hear, and blind feel. So to our Gov. Earl K. Long, who is a friend to the poor, as well as the rich alike, let's dedicate the great old hymn to our Gov. Long. O God our help in ages past. Thanks.

A supporter of Long's ticket since Huey P. Long's election.

'CREEPING SOCIALISM'

Monroe, La.

To The Editor:

"Creeping socialism" must be thwarted by patriotic Christian Americans, if they aim to continue enjoying the liberty guaranteed us by the Constitution of the United States. A number of people have said that they believe a modified form of socialism is good. The Bible teaches that God will not tolerate any compromises between His people and Satan. "Ye shall not go after other gods, of the gods of the people which are round about you; (for the Lord thy God is a jealous God among you) lest the anger of the Lord they God be kindled against thee, and destroy thee from off the face of the earth." (Deut. 6:14-15). Materialism, prestige, and power are the gods of some people right here in this nation. Some of which claim to be protectors of the U. S. constitution.

This nation needs defenders of the truth which has made us free. Our freedoms are being denied us by the hands of men who have sworn to protect those freedoms. What did the Roosevelt administration do for us? It gave us the Social Security Act. What is the Social Security Act? It is a form of, or type of, socialism. Is that what the people of God want? What is the Supreme Court doing for us in the present Republican administration? It is freeing enemy spies that have been convicted or proven guilty of Communist activities.

Must America the Beautiful be destroyed from within, as ancient Jerusalem was destroyed? Let us not slumber any more until America has been saved from the dangers that lie at our doors. America the Beautiful is in travail; the terrible Dragon is now threatening to devour her.

Awake, ye Christians! Put on the whole armour of God and defend your cherished freedoms.

Yours in Christ,
R. Kenneth Busbice

ENDORSES BANKSTON

New Orleans,

Dear Governor Long:

We respectfully request you to call back Mr. Jesse H. Bankston as Director of the Department of Hospitals. He has served the State of Louisiana well. Wherever he speaks, in the councils of hospital administrators or mental health groups, he is listened to with respect. This is not only true in our own State, but in the South, and in the nation as a whole.

Mr. Bankston has been in the service of the State ever since his early twenties, and knows state hospital problems intimately. The Louisiana Hospital Construction Plan was developed by him and his colleagues the first year Hill-Burton funds became available, which was about twelve years ago. This plan is revised every year and persons who know say it is perhaps the best state plan in America. He is the father of the training and research program in Louisiana. It is a plan which fits nicely into your own expressed purpose of improving the mental hospitals of Louisiana. The plan is the envy of the other states, as I found recently when I visited fourteen medical schools in the South and Southwest, trying to get young psychiatrists interested in taking positions in our mental hospitals.

This is a critical time in the development of the mental health program of Louisiana, and we urge you to request Mr. Bankston to re-enter the service of the State immediately. Nobody else can do his job as well as he.

After this letter has had time to be received by you we will release a copy of it in the public interest.

Sincerely yours,
LOYD W. ROWLAND,
Director Louisiana Association For Mental Health

BASCOM TIMMONS

2 Stages In Aid

Congress Must First 'Authorize' And Then 'Appropriate' Funds

There are so many legislative steps necessary every year in the foreign aid program that the average citizen finds extreme dfficulty at any intermediate stage to tell just where it stands.

There are two very important separate and distinct stages in the voting of money by Congress for any purposes. It first "authorizes" and then it "appropriates" and the amount if "appropriates" can never be more than it "authorizes" and it can be less.

Applying these legislative facts to the foreign aid bill this must be kept in mind: There are ten legislatives stages before a bill can be completed and sent to the President. These are committee on action by both branches, floor action by both and reconciliation of their separate actions by a conference committee on "authorization." There must be the same processes on "appropriation."

Only when both Senate and House adopt the conference report reconciling differences in the bill which each originally passed, will the foreign aid bill be halfway through the necessary stages. But barring some unexpected occurrence on the international scene it can be said that the amount finally appropriated will be well below the authorization.

There was remarkably little difference in the total amount of the authorizations bills passed by the House and Senate on the first-go-around—$3,543,320,000 in the Senate and $3,542,600,000 in the House, a difference of $720,000. A difference between the two branches of Congress measured in thousands instead of millions of dollars is a rarity.

There is the possibility that President Eisenhower might call Congress back into session after its adjournment, as he intimated he might in a press conference if the completed legislation comes anywhere close to retaining the $300,000,000 cut the Senate made in military aid.

The President will call no such session if he follows the advice of his legislative leaders. There are, these leaders are convinced, no votes in foreign aid. As Senator Gordon L. Allott, Republican, Colorado, told the Senate: "The progr.m is not, popular. It in not popular with my constituents."

Nothing would please the Democrats better than to have the President call Congress into session for such a purpose. It would, they think, distroy what, to use a very much overworked word, is the "image" of the President as the leader of an economy offensive which has been very popular with the country and discomfiting to the Democrats.

In recent years it has been the House of Representatives that has given foreign aid its hardest time. Now there are storm warnings in the Senate of additional trouble when the appropriation stage is reached. The number of opponents has increased and there have been crossed signals between the supporters.

It got off to a bad start over the Senate Foreign Relations Committee's proposal for an economic development program for five years and not to exceed one billion dollars a year. Thus far five fiscal years the Treasury would have been not only authorized but directed to make these developments loans to backward countries.

Neither the Administration nor some Senators who have been the foremost champions of foreign aid would go along with this. Such Senators as Russell of Georgia and Cotton of New Hampshire insisted on following annual appropriation techniques, with Congressional surveillance and supervision.

Cotton pointed out that even in the early days of the Marshall plan no attempt had been made to obligate Congress for more than one year at a time. Russell said that such an action would make the program so rigid that even a majority of Congress could not change it unless whoever happened to be President at that time approved. Otherwise it would take a two-thirds majority.

Although the Senate would not go for a proposal which would have bound the new President who comes in in January, 1961, and the Congresses to be elected in 1960 and 1962, the coalition suvstitute retained a built-in obligation for two years—$750,000,000 for the fund this year and $1,250,000 next year.

There is no doubt the Administration's part in defeating the 5-year, billion dollars a year program so dear to the heart's of Senators Fulbright, Mansfield and others figured in building up an opposition Senate coalition which hacked military aid $300,000,000 below the $1,600,000,000 which President Eisenhower called a "minimum sum."

The probability is that the Development Loan Fund may be chopped further. There is strong opposition to loans for such countries as India, which has not given us any bases, which is neutral and does not assume any obligations to defend the United States or come to our aid in war.

Some Senators and Representatives, notably Senator Sam J. Ervin, Democrat, North Carolina, have insisted, that under the Constitution, Congress has not authority to take tax money and spend it for any purpose except that which is calculated to promote the general welfare of the United States, or in other words, that Congress is not empowered to take tax money and give it to neutrals merely to advance their economic welfare.

Democrats Shift

Most New Senators Stick with More Conservative Johnson

WASHINGTON, D. C. — It is easy to over - dramatize the running dispute between Democratic Chairman Paul Butler and the Democratic Congressional leaders Lyndon Johnson and Sam Rayburn. What looks like a party rupture may turn out to be a rebirth in a more conservative image of the party of Thomas Jefferson. More, the hassle could shape up to be a minor manifestation of a larger movement which for several years now, has been taking place in political thinking.

I reach for these dangling thoughts because Senator Joe Clark (D., Penna.) tells me I wrote wrongly the other day in noting that: "The country, in elections from 1954-58, endorsed the Democrotic leadership of Congress by populating Capitol Hill with more Democrats of lesser liberalism." It is true that Senator Clark himself was elected in 1956 and that he is an all-out liberal. Mr. Clark, while a gentleman, a sportsman and a scholar with whom I enjoy cordial relations is, alas, a political throwback to earlier days.

He associates in Senate groupings with Paul Douglas, Class of '48; Pat McNamara, the only bona fide Labor union officer in the upper chamber; William Proxmire, who equates himself with Fighting Bob La Follette, a "progressive" who went out of style with the suffragettes and, finally, with Wayne Morse, who wears no man's collar.

This group of Democratic Senators, I am saying, is a breed apart. It is not typical of the Democratic party, which has so greatly increased in population under the Johnson - Rayburn leadership. The difference between the out - of - fashion Democrats Senators Clark, Douglas, McNamara, Proxmire and Morse) and the in - fashion Democrats has been pointed up by the Butler - Johnson cleavage.

To demonstrate what I mean by the in-fashion Democrats, let us examine the Class of '58, elected only last November. There have been, by my count, three acid tests of the 15 new Democrats who were sworn in this year. In each test the Democratic freshmen had a choice to stand with Johnson or to stand with the throw - back group whose names appear above.

In January the Majority Leader called for a moderate change in Senate Rule 22, which controls filibuster. Senator Douglas and others demanded a radical change. There was a showdown vote - of - confidence at one point when Johnson made a non-debatable motion for adjournment. Only 2 of the 15 freshmen Democrats (Hart of Michigan and Moss of Utah) voted against Johnson. The Leader lost 6 of 15 freshmen on a tabling motion which he opposed. Then 7 of the 15 freshmen Democrats voted against Johnson and for the more liberal Douglas proposition. These were Hart, Moss, McCarthy of Minnesota, Muskie of Maine, Williams of New Jersey, Dodd of Connecticut and Engle of California. But on the final passage of the Johnson measure (two - thirds of those present and voting can stop a filibuster), the Leader lost only one Democratic freshman —Hart of Michigan.

In February Senator Proxmire made his heretical attack upon Johnson. There has not been a roll call on the issue, but Clark, Douglas, Morse and McNamara came to Proxmire's support. Not one of the 15 Democratic freshmen followed this revolt of throw - backs.

In July we have had the latest barrage by Paul Butler upon the Johnson - Rayburn leadership. Not one of the 15 freshmen Democrats has sided with Butler. Among the Democratic Senators who have publicly moved to defend the Johnson-Rayburn leadership, there are these eight freshmen: Dodd of Connecticut, Hartke of Indiana, Engle of California, McGee of Wyoming, Bartlett of Alaska, Young of Ohio, Moss of Utah and Williams of New Jersey. By the time this is published there may be more.

Winn Salt Sprinkled In Strategic Places

nants of Indian salt mining, the notes of M. de Bienville, and the remains of what reportedly became a $1,000.000 salt business during the Civil War.

Even these came after the Indians had built up a cross country salt business before 1700.

Bienville wrote of the Winn salt mining on March 22, 1700.

He was en route across the territory from Mississippi and noted:

"Four and a half leagues west of the Tensas we found some Ouachitas with several pirogues loaded with salt" and on March 29 after crossing the Red River into Natchitoches territory he met "six Natchitoches who were going to the Coroas to sell salt." At the time the Coroas were along the Yazoo River in Mississippi well over 100 miles to the east.

The Natchitoches were taking salt from springs along Saline Bayou later to be exploited for their saline content.

SPRINGS

These springs are located near the Winn - Natchitoches parish line about two miles east of the present town of Goldonna and are named for Rueben Drake who in the 1840's developed them extensively.

Just how long before 1700 the Indians gathered salt there is a guess, but they continued until 1805 at which time appeared several notations that white men had intruded.

Two aged and crippled men were producing six bushels of salt daily from 10 or 12 iron kettles, in which they boiled out salt crystals from brine water.

Only one name appears, Postlewaithe, who was apparently one of these two men.

Soon afterwards a Captain Burnett arrived from Mississippi bringing more kettles and Negro labor which he added to Postlewaithe's operation jumping salt production from six to 30 or 40 bushels a day in 1816.

Salt was selling at two dollars a bushel to Rapides and Natchitoches parish residents.

By 1840 Rueben Drake came in possession of salt making rights at the springs.

Drake was more enterprising and contracted with an Irishman to drill a deeper well seeking more abundant supplies of brine.

With crude equipment the Irishman drilled 1,011 feet, an unheard of depth and through much rock. This well still flows.

But Drake was unhappy with its production and ordered the Irishman to sink another well with Drake agreeing to pay for both. The first cost him $2,900.

REFUSED

When Drake refused to pay for the second well the Irish driller boiled into a frenzy and spent all night in a blacksmith's shop fusing a plug from steel crowbars.

With the breaking of day the driller deftly dropped the plug in Drake's second well, gathered up his drilling rig, and left Drake with a producer, and an unused, sapped off well.

But Drake kept at it, expanding, producing, but in 1854 sold out to Slaughter and Weeks and returned to Pennsylvania.

There some believe he had relatives and was among the drillers who brought in the nation's first oil wells in 1859.

Slaughter and Weeks continued production until the Civil War.

With Confederate forces flung against Union lines and dependent on salt from South Louisiana to preserve meats, foods, and tan leather, Federal troops ran a blockade cutting off the men in gray from their salt.

This immediately threw Slaughter and Weeks in a money making position. They had the biggest salt business in the Winn area, although there were a few other producers near Drake's works.

C. J. Weeks entered contract with the Confederacy to provide all the salt he could muster at $10 a bushel. This was the sole source of salt available.

Here one writer commented that Slaughter and Weeks had a million dollar salt business going.

But to their loss, somehow their salt producing neighbors upped the price to $12 and $15 a bushel leaving Weeks and partner stuck with a $10 contract. When the federal blockade ended production at Drake's work ceased.

However 50 or more developed salt springs remain, their curbing protruding out of the white sand lake bottom like sage stubble.

Drake's main well flows brine water and natural gas bubbling out of it ignites from flame easily.

PRESERVED

Hollowed logs driven into the salt spring veins have been preserved as well as the vat curbings.

Furnaces on which the iron kettles rested have crumbled but the ruins of brick and clay foundations are abundant beside the springs.

A recent trip to the works produced part of an iron kettle, a piece of chain, some clay crock fragments, and iron pipe.

But the business of salt mining in Winn Parish lay in rust and crumbles until an oil gusher near Beaumont, Tex., in 1901 oiled the hinges that swung open the gates again to salt mining in Winn.

In that year on January 10, Capt. A. F. Lucas brought in "Spindletop" with resulting belief that there must be some relation between salt domes and oil.

This set off a wild leasing and drilling spree that swept into Winn Parish salt dome areas, but it was still another natural wonder responsible for kicking off salt mining.

Beside the present Carey shaft four miles west of Winnfield lay an outcropping of limestone, calcite, streaked with marble. These gray rocks just thrust themselves out of the ground in a country side not paricularly given to such phenomena.

Southern Mineral Company had begun production of crushed rock from these beds in the 1920's, wild drilling over the salt domes continued, and black gold was the talk everywhere.

Leasing to Cady Petroleum Company the Southern Mineral Company heard a driller report salt at 999 feet near the present Carey shaft in October 1922.

And in 1927 another driller set things aflame with a rock salt report at 437 feet.

This was much nearer the surface than any previously reported salt.

What lay under the salt?

A national trade journal picked up the report and Carey salt Company by 1930 had begun sinking a shaft to mine salt, regardless of what the oil rumors were.

By December 1931 the Carey shaft rested at 838 feet with the working level at 811 feet, the present operations level.

For over 60 years abundant supplies of salt had rested untouched while Hopkins wrote in 1870 ..... "It certainly seems a pity that not even our home requirements can be met by such an abundant resources as we possess here but that we must still be tributary to New York, Turks Island, (in the Caribbean), and Liverpool for an article that we should supply the whole country with".

With the Carey Shaft came Winn's try for the world salt markets again, but on a scale never before seen.

Out of the circular 14 foot shaft can come 80 tons of salt an hour or about 650 tons in an eight hour shift.

Maximum production by Slaughter and Weeks ran 100 bushels daily during the Civil War.

Carey's rock salt is sawed under and then blasted loose from its solid walls and loaded onto tractors and rail cars inside tunnels that lead from mined out rooms with 85 foot high ceilings.

Four tons of rock salt can ride a cable-drawn skip out of the mine and the skip returns all in two and one half minutes.

This raw salt is 97.23 per cent pure before reaching the plant.

In addition to general home use salt from the Carey mine goes into 25 states and several Caribbean countries.

Its uses now include leather tanning, textile dyeing, paper, glass, chemical, steel, clay tile, and dentifrice manufacturing, refrigeration, lumber preservation water softening, and road construction.

And now it seems that salt may find its way to the front lines of a cold war.

What the AEC learns about silencing nuclear blasts by shaking salt tunnels with dynamite may be heard round the world.

But it will come from an area that through the years has thrust itself into world affairs.

Its gallant pine forests sent flame into the eyes of early explorers and remain to dominate a market.

Secession within secession during the Civil War when Winn declared itself independent and become the Free State of Winn.

Its strong national and state politicians led by Huey P. "Kingfish" Long whose share the wealth plan nearly disrupted financial planning during the 1930's still beat a loud political drum.

And now the best minds of men have decided to haske Winn's insides, this one time for silence.

put out before the year ends this time. It is believed that it will prove a popular fall addition that more students than ever will appreciate.

Of course, Lady Annie Lee West Stahl will be the chief advisor and right hand aid in getting this big book in tiptop shape. Others who are busy with the preparation of this book are Patsy Bearden, sports editor and Jackie Tharpe, co - editor, and others. Co-editor Brenda Gambrell is this summer in California doing special work.

Newspaper

Some energetic person has dug up an ancient newspaper issued in the Twin Cities in 1883. It stated at that time only two telephones had been in use in West Monroe. Trenton did a little better at that time with six phones and the grand total in this area was but 26.

Drury W. Lacey was manager of the Monroe Telephone Exchange, according to the semi - weekly Bulletin, published in Monroe by Willam H. Gayle. A descendant of the publisher will be recalled by many Monroyans. He was the late Dr. Phillip M. Gayle, a well known dentist up to a few years ago.

Letter

In a letter to Jes' Ramblin' from Rev. L. T. Hastings, now retired and living in Knoxville, Tenn., he tells of his pleasure when he entertained some close friends of his when he resided here. They spent part of a week with the Hastings and were Mr. and Mrs. Buddy Henderson, Mr. and Mrs. Albert McMullen, all of Monroe and Mrs. Clarence Shumate and son, Allen, of Houston, Tex.

Clarence Shumate was prominent in religious circles while in Monroe. His wife was formerly Miss Ruby Timberlake.

There was 42 million more newspapers purchased on the average day last year than were purchased on the average day 60 years ago.

the idea of running.

It was believed for sometime that either Ransom or Huenefeld, both young, both active in parish affairs, would get into the campaign.

However, there are others who may announce.

For instance, Pete J. Medak, an insurance man who has lived in Monroe since 1941, is a potential candidate for the House.

Latest rumored candidate is Gordie Roy, a West Monroe insurance man.

In Jackson parish, Rep. I. J. Allen will seek re-election, but hasn't announced yet. Even the rumors about Allen's possible opposition are quiet.

However, the sheriff's race has cranked up in Jackson. Ira Wyatt, owner of a small-engine shop in Jonesboro, has come out against incumbent Lloyd Bryant.

Nixon Wins Cheers From Most Soviets

your President. We like his sincerety, his gentlemanship which is quite up to the mark.'

The dinner climaxed another busy day for Nixon.

He began formal rounds of meetings with separate calls on first Deputy Premiers Anastas I. Mikoyan and from R. Kozlov, both of whom he had met before on their American tours.

The meeting with Mikoyan started on a strained note. Nixon brought along Harold Boeschenstein, president of the Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp., of Toledo, Ohio, to Mikoyan's office.

"I thought you two businessmen could get together," Nixon told Mikoyan who doubles as Soviet Trade Minister.

"The State Department will decide that," replied Mikoyan who has criticized U. S. trade restrictions.

Nixon, a non-smoker, declined a cigarette and the men sat down to chat.

As Nixon rode to Mikoyan's office, the Communist Party newspaper Pravda was on the streets with an attack on the American "Captive Nations Week" as "a coarse, dirty adventure of American imperialists."

Radio Moscow took up the theme and charged the declaration of "Captive Nations Week" by Congress was "an expression of cold war revival."

After his meeting with Mikoyan, Nixon and Adm. Hyman Rickover went to Kozlov's office — 28 minutes late for their appointment.

Nixon introduced Rickover as "an old friend," who had met the Soviet official on his American tour. Kozlov received pictures of himself and Rickover taken at the Shippingport, Pa., nuclear power plant.

Kozlov and Rickover told each other they were very photogenic and would make "good Hollywood movie stars."

From there, Nixon went off to the Soviet Exposition where Russians in groups of 500 applauded him as he went from exhibit to exhibit.

Three times, he was stopped by hecklers who demanded to know about American policy. To each, Nixon replied:

"Peace is a matter for two nations. The only way to get peace is a free exchange of ideas."

One man at the Uzbehkistan Pavillon wanted to know what the U.S. was doing for peace.

"We will discuss this tomorrow with Mr. Khrushchev," Nixon replied, "to have peace it takes two."

A sharper exchange came when a man leaned over his shoulder and said "it is great provocation to say we are suppressed peoples. We ... do not consider ourselves oppressed."

Nixon, apparently slightly annoyed, said "I think it is fine to have freedom of speech. I am glad that this man is able to speak up."

As the vice president stopped at another pavilion a crowd came up to shake his hand.

One man called out, how can we have peace in the light of your recent proclamation of so-called enslaved peoples which is crude interference in the internal affairs of other countries."

The man said he was I. Kuzmin, a worker at the exhibit. Nixon did not take kindly to him.

"We must always remember that peace does not mean a state of no change," the vice president replied. "To have progress we must have an exchange of ideas. We must have free criticism.

"For example, Mr. Khrushchev says we are imperialists, colonialists, that we are keeping down the working class of the United States and that our children will live under communism."

"I think he has the right to say it because he believes it. We think ours is best, he thinks his is best."

He concluded, "the main thing is the exchange of ideas.

TO OPPOSE CONGRESSMEN

Political Funds New Hoffa Goal

By WILLIAM J. EATON
United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Teamsters' President James R. Hoffa is planning to set up a political department in his union to try and defeat congressmen with anti Teamster voting records.

The program would be financed by a novel "political checkoff" system under which rank-and-file Teamsters could earmark 50 cents of their monthly dues for political action. This would be on a voluntary basis and thus in compliance with the Corrupt Practices Act.

Funds collected in this way — potentially several million dollars a year—would be split between regional and national headquarters of the 1,600,000 - member union.

They would be used against congressmen whose voting records were considered anti-labor.

Hoffa, who describes himself as a political independent, was pictured Saturday by his aides as a man who is going into politics reluctantly after suffering repeated setbacks in his efforts to tone down labor reform legislation during this session of Congress.

Many of the union control bills have been aimed openly at curbing the power of the controversial Hoffa, target of corruption charges by the AFL-CIO and Senate Rackets Committee.

In a tip-off to his plans, Hoffa discussed what he called the legislative threats to the labor movement in a recent article in the Teamsters' magazine.

"The day of reckoning will come at the polls," he observed.

The bantam-sized Hoffa is reluctant to discuss his political plans now until he polishes them for presentation to the next meeting of the Teamsters' executive board, in September.

But, in broad outline, here is what he has in mind:

Political departments would be set up at national headquarters in Washington and in the western, eastern, southern and central conferences. Similar sections would be established in nearly 50 Teamster joint councils in every major city.

The funds would come in the form of "contributions" from Teamster members. They would be asked to authorize the union to use 50 cents of each month's dues for political purposes. Hoffa's aides say this procedure is very legal.

The Teamsters, like the AFL-CIO Committee on Political Education, would compile lists of congressmen's votes on key legislation and label them "right" or "wrong" to guide the membership on which candidates to back or oppose.

If the dues-contribution scheme works perfectly, the Teamsters could collect up to $9,600,000 a year for their political war chest. Their hopes are much more modest. The AFL-CIO COPE, which appeals for voluntary $1 contributions, usually gets about 1 million dollars in a presidential election year although there are 12,500,000 members of AFL-CIO affiliates.

The new political emphasis within the Teamsters seems to have been inspired by Harold J. Gibbons, Hoffa's right-hand man and often called his "egghead."

Gibbons has used the "political checkoff" system in his home local 688 in St. Louis since 1950 and is well pleased with the results.

Lightning Bolt Severely Burns Explorer Scout

BOULDER, Colo. (AP)—A rescue party took five hours to bring an Explorer Scout down from a 13,000-foot mountain pass Friday night after the youth was burned severely by a lightning bolt.

The rescuers reached 16-year-old William MacDonald of Denver about 6 p.m., and using a special one-wheel stretcher made the torturous return trip with the injured youth.

MacDonald was one of 16 Explorer Scouts on a mountain hike when a summer storm struck. A lightning bolt knocked him unconscious and burned him on the head, right shoulder and back.

He was reported in good condition Saturday at Boulder Community Hospital.

'SLAVE TRAIL"

Ancient Slave Trails In Africa Flourishing Again

By N C. CHRISS

LONDON (UPI) — Ancient slave trails that wind across the arid deserts of the Middle East and Africa are flourishing again, and prices are going up in the black market of human beings.

"The heart of the slave trade in the world today is Saudi Arabia and the highest prices are obtained for young females sold to harems" said Thomas Fox-Pitts, secretary of The British Anti-Slavery Society, devoted to the abolition of slavery.

"The price commanded for a fair-skinned virgin in her early teens is $2,000 and we recently heard of a beautiful young dancing girl who was traded to a prince for a luxury American automobile," he said.

"Four years ago the price of a slave girl was around $1,000," he said. "A young man in good health costs about $$420 and old women are sold or traded for the equivalent of about $112.

"Our correspondents have informed us that the slave traffic is definitely on the increase with prices going up and up," Fox-Pitts said.

The society was founded in 1837 but has its roots in a similar organization established earlier by a group of Quakers. Today, according to Fox-Pitts, it is the only organization in the world devoted to the abolition of slavery.

The secretary said the slave trade in Saudi Arabia consists mostly of young girls who are sold into princely harems or to a few wealthy merchants.

"Natives who come out of Arabia are surprised when they encounter a rather hostile reception from Westerners who frown on the slave trade," he said. "It's strange to Saudi Arabia."

One of the world's oldest slave routes is still in existence across the jungles and arid deserts of Africa to the Red Sea Coast in Somalia where Negroes are taken to Saudi Arabia and sold.

Fox-Pitts said the Assembly of the French Union reported several years ago that out of 23,000 African Moslems who made the pilgrimage to Mecca, only 11,000 returned.

One of the most cruel aspects of the slave trade is the kidnaping of children, the secretary said. This takes place mostly in the undeveloped areas of Saudi Arabia.

Article Six of the official Saudian law on slavery states that "The owner or possessor (of slaves) shall not separate children from their mother so long as they are minors." Fox - Pitts said that under Islamic Law this could be interpreted at seven years old.

According to article one of the Saudian slavery law adopted Oct. 2, 1936 and still in force, it is illegal to bring slaves into the country by sea or to bring them in a land route "unless the importer produced a government document confirming that the person imported was recognized as a slave" in his own country.

All slaves in the country are supposed to be well treated, according to the slave laws, and are to be enrolled on a special register with certificates made out in triplicate. One must go to the slave, another to the master and the third to "competent authorities."

"Many Americans working in the oil fields of Arabia have written books about their experiences," Fox-Pitts said. "Some of them mention that they have been the guests of Arabs who keep slaves but most of them apparently still think of it as a quaint old custom," he said.

"Americans in Arabia are horrified when then see a hand, stuck on a barbed wire fence, that has been chopped off because a man was a thief. That really worries them."

Fox-Pitts said the harems are presided over by eunuchs, or castrated men, many of whom are kidnaped from their homes when they are boys.

He said that up to several years ago at least 10 per cent of the boys died after the primitive operations. "Most of them today are castrated in hospitals now and the mortality rate is not so high," he said.

Fox-Pitts said the society fears that the slave trade will increase even more when Somaliland on the Red Sea is granted its independence in 1960.

"Royal Navy ships in the Persian Gulf and Red Sea are given instructions to board any ship suspected of carrying slaves, but they say no slaves have been found," Fox-Pitts said.

"I do not think we can be satisfied with that. I think we must ask that a special naval squadron be set up like the one we had in the old days to fight the slave trade."

Management, Labor Talks Set Pattern

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP)—Labor-management strife — as far as talking goes at least — is due to reach a new peak next week.

Outcome of this year's basic disagreements in the metals industries — the wage-price spiral and management's control of working rules — could set an over-all labor-management pattern for some time to come. That is probably why both sides are fighting so hard and stubbornly.

Here's the week's schedule:

Monday representatives of steel management and the striking workers will meet for the first time since the strike began. The U.S. mediator — in a sense representing the public — will be in the middle.

Tuesday giant U.S. Steel Corp. will announce its first half earnings, followed by the No. 2 steelmaker, Bethlehem, Thursday. Most of the other big companies are expected to announce theirs during the week. All are expected to show whopping gains. The outcry from the unions is sure to be loud.

Friday midnight the labor contracts with the big three in the aluminum industry expire. The union wants a wage hike. The companies are following the steel companies' pattern at the same stage of negotiations: Saying the wage-price spiral must be halted by a year's extension of the old contract.

Copper, meantime, continues its uneasy truce. Wage contracts have expired but the miners continue on the job while the talks go on. Partly this may be a desire to see the outcome of the steel strike and talks. Largely it is presumed due to an over supply of copper on the world markets, copper price weakness, and the recent cutbacks in production in many copper mines.

In steel the wage-price dispute is likely to reach new heights in decibels next week as the earnings are announced.

Allegheny Ludlum has reported its first half earnings nine times greater than in the like period of 1958. Management points out that the firm was having rough sledding in the early months of last year, one reason for the glowing comparison this year. The other reason is that the company's customers in the first half of 1959 ordered as much steel as they normally would in nine months. Hence new records in output, shipments, sales — and profits. Inland Steel Co.'s profits were about 100 per cent ahead of a year ago.

Biggest Rocket Tower In World To Be Erected

AZUSA, Calif. (AP) — The free world's biggest rocket test stand —an eight-story tower capable of holding a cluster of rockets generating six million pounds of thrust—will be built at Edwards Air Force base starting late this year.

Aerojet-General Corp. Saturday announced it had been given a contract to design the structure.

Initial plans call for a test stand that can handle two 1½ million pound thrust liquid-rocket engines, now under development for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration. Later the stand will be expanded to support four of these engines.

The concrete and steel stand, perched on the side of a rocky cliff at the desert test center 100 miles north of Los Angeles, will have a 60-foot square opening for the rockets' exhaust.

Mrs. Nixon Trades Gifts With Soviets

MOSCOW (AP) — Pat Nixon handed out lollipops and chewing gum at a children's hospital Saturday and received sponges and flowers as gifts at a farmers' market and a department store.

The lollipops and chewing gum were left behind in a mixup at Spasso House, the U.S. ambassador's residence where Vice President Richard M. Nixon and his wife are staying during their visit to the Soviet capital. But another mixup saved the day.

Reporters, late because of language difficulties, got to Spasso House in time to take the big white box of sweets along. Mrs. Nixon, already almost through her half-hour tour, happily distributed them in a surgical ward.

The smile of a blonde little girl with pigtails, who was just over an operation, showed just how important the gift was as she contemplated the dream lollipop.

At the hospital, with its 800 bed, she asked to be introduced to the children just as an American visitor, not as the wife of the vice president.

Like all children, she said, those she popped in on "semed to appreciate a visitor."

Mrs. Nixon, in travels with her husband, has visited hospitals all over the world.

"It is the only way you can get to the people and let them know you're interested in them," she said.

Besides visiting the hospital she went to a free market, the Soviet Union's biggest department store, and then joined the vice president to attend an agricultural fair.

At the busy market, where farmers sell surplus produce from collective farms, she was recognized by women in kerchiefs and working men. A crowd gathered and she shook hands and chatted with some of them.

"We must be friends so we can have peace everywhere," said a woman schoolteacher who spoke English. "Life is so short we should use every day to good purpose."

When Mrs. Nixon examined some odd shaped sponges shaped like long French bread, the smiling man behind the stand gave her one and handed several to others in her party. He would take no money.

The market administrator, a 42-year-old woman in a long white coat, hurried up and introduced herself and then hurried off to get a bunch of gladioli, which she presented to the visitor.

Mrs. Nixon bought a small squash for about 60 cents at tourist exchange rates and three small mushrooms for 50 cents.

She attracted little attention at GUM, the big department store. She bought a couple of Russian dolls for her daughters, Patricia, 13, and Julie, 11, which cost about $1 and five small lacquered wooden boxes for about 68 cents apiece.

"I enjoyed it very much," she told the administrator of the toy department. "It's a lovely store."

Man Distrustful Of Banks Loses $35,000 Savings

CHICAGO (AP)—A 78-year-old city employe told police Saturday he lost a wallet containing $35,000, his entire life savings, three days ago.

Leroy Hunter, a sidewalk inspector, said he lost the money Wednesday while working on the South Side and searched for it for three days to no avail.

Hunter said he always carried his savings, accumulated since 1932, because he doesn't trust banks.

PARIS RINGS UP CURTAIN

Battle Of Hemline To Begin Monday

PARIS (AP)—The annual battle of the hemline will be joined Monday. Paris rings up the curtain then on fall and winter fashions.

The hottest tip is that some like them short and some like them long.

Dior's designer Yves St.-Laurent has vowed he'll maintain the status quo that's shortish.

But Lanvin Castillo declares, "Monsieur Castillo doesn't want to see any calves this season."

But if the hemline is to be a divided issue, French designers are at least agreed on colors. They will be almost mournfully sober, with brown and black to the forefront.

Nobody seems to want to emphasize the waistline too much. Necklines will bare a lot, probably more in width than in depth.

The all-over silhouette will be tall and slim, rather than flaring. Many designers have sworn off stiffened petticoats. St. Laurent has declared them dead.

But the new clothes, while wrapping the figure, will not be vampishly tight.

Paris is looking forward to a "good and interesting season, particularly with the American buyers, because volume of business and profits are good in America," Jacques Heim, president of the High Fashion syndicate, said in an interview.

The gap between French and American fashion prices is rapidly closing, according to Heim, because while Paris prices are fairly stabilized, costs are going up in America. In other words, the American buyers should find less to grumble about, although Heim admits that increased fabric prices have made a small difference this season.

Here's what some of the big-name designers predict:

Young St.-Laurent—he's nearly 23 — in the first collection that he considers "really me," as he confided to a friend, promises to elongate the silhouette, uncover long necks, and put legs "in value" with no change in length. The outline will be straight but not tight. Blues will dominate.

Castillo, of Lanvin Castillo, decrees that skirts shall be "'a lot longer" (his were very short last season) and the waistline a little off center and not too tightly belted. Brown, mauve and black are the colors he mentions.

A key word that comes up again and again when you talk to designers here is "depouille," which means "plucked." They mean to take out the fuss and feathers this time, or so they say.

But even while plucking off the extras, Jules Gramay of Nina Ricci promises that "women will not only stay feminine, but be even more feminine."

He strives for a soft, rounded neck, a natural waistline; hemlines still short "but of course not above the knee"; browns, false black and bright red.

Jean Pomarede, designer for Jacques Heim, talks about a "lengthened bustline," with the waist indicated but not strangled. He won't change skirt lengths, but has something new in heart-shaped necklines, baring the shoulder tips but covering the neck with a scarf-line wrapover from the back. Plum black is his top color.

London Police, Patient Battle

BY HOUSE SPACE COMMITTEE

Cape Canaveral Unhappy Over Probe Of Failures

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla., (AP) —The Cape Canaveral mind is not at all happy about next week's congressional probe of recent failures in the Atlas and Polaris missile test programs.

For the Cape Canaveral mind does not, except in rare cases, recognize the word failure.

A missile may blow up in full sight of hundreds of persons. But if the rocket radioes back one small scrap of information before it explodes, the men who sweated to put it up consider the launching at least partially successful.

That one tiny bit of information may prevent the same thing happening again.

The real thing to consider, they say, is that Cape Canaveral is a test center. Once a missile works perfectly it is no longer tested here.

"We are merely seeking information here," said one engineer. "If a missile blows, we want to know why it blows. From our so-called failures we learn a heck of a lot."

The House Space Committee has scheduled a public hearing into the Atlas and Polaris programs for next Wednesday and Thursday in Washington.

Committee Chairman Overton Brooks (D-La) announced several high-ranking Air Force and Navy officials will be asked to explain the lack of success in efforts to develop the two weapons into operational weapons ready for combat use.

The congressman made the statement the same day that an Atlas registered its first success in more than five months. Five previous shots did not go their intended range, four of them blowing up shortly after launch.

A source close to the Atlas project said:

"Because of those blowups we were able to put up that successful shot. Tuesday's successful shot shows that we may have licked the problem."

It was learned that a faulty fuel flow valve was causing the trouble and that the valve was redesigned for the Atlas.

"The trouble," the informed source said, "happened as we were changing models — from the "C" series to the more-nearly-operational "D" series. Unfortunately, it came at a time when pressure is great for this country to have an operational intercontinental range ballistic missile."

The House committee will ask why the Atlas did not meet its operational target date of last July 1. Secretary of Defense McElroy announced a delay last month, saying it will be at least September before the missile is ready for troop use. McElroy also said he didn't think the Soviets would have an operational ICBM before the U.S.

Brooks said he was less concerned about the Navy's Polaris submarine missile because he understood it requires additional testing and is not expected to be operational before next year.

Nevertheless, he felt "an inquiry into the Polaris missile malfunctions should be taken at this time."

A two-stage Polaris test vehicle, similar to the operational model, has been fired 11 times. Four of the rockets blew up. Only three were considered completely successful.

"Take one of those blowups," said a man close to the Polaris program. 'The Polaris was alive only about 20 seconds after it was launched. But we were seeking only information on the powered phase of flight, and we got more than 90 per cent of what we wanted. Therefore, we considered the shot 90 per cent successful. Yet, the shot was reported as a dismal failure."

A missile is one of the most complex things ever created by man. The Atlas, for example, has more than 300,000 parts which must function properly at the same time.

When do missilemen consider their missile a failure?

"Only when not a single telemetry signal is received from the time the bird leaves the ground," says an engineer. "If we can convince the space committee of this, maybe these hearings won't be so bad after all."

FBI REVEALS DETAILS

Kidnaping Hoax Story Verified

CHICAGO (AP) — Blonde Gay Hart, 21, started home to New Jersey Saturday as the FBI disclosed it had verified that her story of being kidnaped was a hoax. She came to Chicago alone by bus under emotional tension over her impending wedding, the FBI said.

Richard D. Auerbach, FBI chief in Chicago, told newsmen that the young woman rented a hotel room in Chicago and listened to news reports about her possible kidnaping.

He said that after attending five movies Thursday, "in a panic, and not quite realizing what she was doing, and being all confused, she took a cab out into the park.

"She walked for a while and then hailed the first police car she saw."

Then followed her story of a cross-country terror ride as the prisoner of two kidnapers, which she later recanted.

The FBI man said details of the situation were turned over to the U.S. attorney's office for possible prosecution.

But, Mitchell S. Rieger, chief assistant U.S. attorney, declined to prosecute her for giving false information about a kidnaping "in view of her current and previous general mental and physical condition."

Miss Hart was shepherded out of the 15th-floor hotel suite where she had rested under a physician's care. Her fiance, 25-year-old Stokley Gaines, walked her to a freight elevator with his arm around her waist. He told newsmen, "We're going to be married."

At the freight elevator, Gay's father, Ralph Hart, and two burly hotel detectives scuffled with the reporters, preventing them from boarding the cage. Hart, his daughter and Gaines left the hotel.

The Hart party posed for photographers at O'Hare Airport shortly before leaving on a Capital Airlines flight to Newark.

Miss Hart disappeared from Newark Tuesday night after seeing Gaines off on a flight to Pittsburgh. She turned up in Chicago early Friday morning, and told police and federal agents the hoax story of two harrowing days as the victim of two kidnapers.

British Urge Quick Action For Summit

GENEVA (AP) — Britain was authoritatively reported Saturday night to be urging her allies to agree quickly to join the Soviet Union in early summit talks.

The view of Britain's Selwyn Lloyd is understood to be that the Big Four already have moved near enough toward a Berlin truce to justify the calling of a top level conference.

But his American, French and West German colleagues at the foreign ministers' conference do not see eye to eye with him. As a result all will press ahead with more slow, grim, hard bargaining with Andrei Gromyko of the Soviet Union in the next few days.

Lloyd's position became known as the two-month-old conference here faced a week of crucial decisions. It is clear the negotiators must make up their minds in a matter of days whether to set the time, place and work-program for a summit meeting or to suggest some other form of continuing negotiations.

This weekend Lloyd is back in London conferring with Prime Minister Harold Macmillan, who thought up the idea of a long series of East-West summit conferences stretching over the years ahead. Both take the position now that "the sooner the summit the better."

With this Geneva conference approaching its climax it would surprise nobody if Macmillan picked up the telephone and told President Eisenhower what Lloyd presumably is saying to his partners here.

Gloomier, more suspicious of Red intentions, Christian A. Herter and French and West German Foreign Ministers Maurice Couve de Murville and Heinrich von Brentano do not share the confidence of the British.

They are thinking along other lines, although the events of the next few days could swing them around to Lloyd's way of thinking. As of now Herter, for instance, is believed toying with the idea of a long recess in the negotiations unless the Soviet softenu terms for a truce.

Lloyd's efforts at East-West conciliation have been a feature of the Big Four conference. His role reflects Britain's preoccupation with the quest for a negotiated settlement of East-West cold war problems. He argues that:

1. Poedges given by Gromyko during the conference rule out the danger of one-sided Communist action against West Berlin until 1961 or 1962 at least.

2. Then, with all their rights intact, the West can re-enter new negotiations, which the Soviets have offered, to seek a longer-term arrangement for the city.

3. This means the West loses nothing by accepting Gromyko's assurances.

4. Information fro[m] [Mo]w suggests Premier Nikit[a] ... shchev really does want summit talks soon.

Lloyd has said on the record an agreement on a Berlin standstill already has been outlined by the Big Four.

But some tangled issues still need to be settled.

The toughest: The Soviet Union's insistence that East and West Germans, alone in a room, begin "peace and unity" negotiations as part of any Berlin deal. Each arrangement would function under an 18-month time limit.

The West has answered "No, no, no" to this.

They argue that the Berlin crisis and the wider all-German political issue are two distinct things and must be kept separate.

BRIGITTE SETS FAD

PARIS (UPI)—Actress Brigitte Bardot, the French "sex kitten," Friday set a new "cascade" hair fad for the thousands of French teen-agers who make a cult of looking as much as possible like Bardot. Brigitte's studio released pictures of her with long, wavy locks framing her face and rippling down to her shoulders.

Negro Suspect Shot In Battle, Another Jailed

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—Chief of Detectives M. B. Pierce said Saturday one Negro was shot and another jailed Friday night in a gun battle and auto and foot chase that resulted from a town marshall's attempt to arrest them for reckless driving.

Pierce identified the Negroes as Wallace Brown of Jackson, 24-year-old ex-convict arrested as he entered his home about daybreak, and Willie Pickens, 16, not in serious condition with a bullet wound in the chest.

Pierce said Marshal W. L. (Del) Fairchild of nearby Raymond sought to arrest Brown but the Negroes sped away and he chased them.

He said Brown shot at him and he fired back.

Later, the Negroes abandoned the car after volunteers, highway patrolmen, county officers and Jackson police joined the chase.

Pickens was shot in a field.

Pierce said the car was stolen in Jackson Friday.

British Probe Tiny Boat's Near Tragedy

PENZANCE, England (AP) — Britain's Royal Navy launched an investigation Saturday into a Gilbert and Sullivan comedy that almost turned into tragedy.

Within a few miles of this setting of Gilbert and Sullivan's "The Pirates of Pensance," Britain's biggest cruiser almost blew a tiny fishing boat out of the water.

It happened Friday night. Chief Engineer Clifton Pender of the trawler Lyonesse told reporters about the nightmarish experience after docking. Let him tell the story: "Our ship is owned and manned by our family. We come from Mousehole, not far from here. Five Penders were aboard.

"We were fishing last night when suddenly we heard a great crash. It broke the peace of a very pleasant night.

"I thought at first the propeller had hit a shark.

"A few minutes later another bang was accompanied by a flash and I shouted for those below to come on deck.

"They came just in time to see a salvo of about a dozen shells pitch into the water within 200 yards to starboard."

The salvo was followed by another.

"By this time I was shouting to the Land's End radio, but they couldn't give me any information —except that no naval exercises were on."

The man from Mousehole said he bellowed into his ship-to-shore radio that he wanted to talk to the naval commander at Portsmouth.

"Finally," said Pender, "I got him on the phone. He said no ship was authorized to fire."

The engineer said such asurance was poor consolation when you're almost being hit by cruiser shells.

But the commander said there was a cruiser in the neighborhood. A few minutes later the Admiralty came on the radio.

"They apologized and much regretted that I'd been shelled," said Pender. "They said the shells came from the 11,500-ton Cruiser Belfast that failed to see us on their radar. They said there would be a full investigation."

AGREE ON GRANT

VIENNA (UPI) — The U.S. Atomic Energy Commission and the International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA) have agreed on a $20,000 U.S. grant for use in bone and metaolism research, it was announced Friday. The money will be used for the development of cheaper methods for the production of the isotope CA47.

SALES SET RECORDS

Consumers Keep Economy Soaring

By WALTER BREEDE JR.
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Consumers kept the economy steaming toward new highs this week.

Many businessmen were betting that not even the steel strike could stop the boom.

Stepped-up consumer buying of just about everything you could name held out the promise of record sales for dozens of major corporations.

The effects were already apparent in the auto industry, cashing in on its biggest sales bonanza since 1955.

Ford, Chrysler, American Motors and Studebaker-Packard turned in glowing reports. Ford's profit for the first six months this year was $285,900,000—highest in the company's history. Chrysler netted 58 million dollars, a dramatic performance when contrasted with the red ink figure of $25,239,802 posted a year ago.

Big General Motors, due to report its earnings in the next few days, was expected to make an even better showing.

If Detroit was worried about the steel shutdown, this week's production figures didn't show it. More than 125,000 new cars rolled o'f the assembly lines, against only 85,519 in the same week of recession 1958.

Chevrolet turned outs its millionth car of the year. Ford said that during the first six months, its production workers averaged a new high of $2.84 in hourly wages.

Signs of growing confidence among consumers showed up in the sales reports of companies making glass, chemicals, furniture, appliances, swimming pools, food products, shoes, cigarettes, textiles and apparel.

Swimming pool sales made their biggest splash yet. The National Swimming Pool Institute said current orders indicate that Americans will buy 70,000 pools this year. Most will be installed in back yards.

Renewed consumer interest in apparel gave the long dormant textile industry its biggest lift since the war-inspired boom of 1951. Burlington Industries Inc., the nation's largest textile producer, said its sales this year are expected to hit a new high of more than 800 million dollars, against 651 millions in 1958. The reason: Americans are dressing up again.

The week brought new signs of upturn in the depression-plagued railroad industry. The Pennsylvania Railroad, which lost $25,353,012 in the first half of 1958, reported a profit of $6,298,659 for the like 1959 period. The New York Central, which also lost more than 25 millions in the first six months last year, chalked up a six-month net of $10,128,634.

Orders for new freight cars bounded ahead sharply. The June total—8,054 cars—compared with only 317 ordered in the same month last year.

Freight carloadings lagged last week because of the steel tie-up. Even so they were higher than in the same week last year when there was no steel strike.

The railroads get most of their income from freight. When consumer appetites for cars, homes, appliances, food and textiles are high, the railroads keep busy. They move both raw materials and finished consumer goods.

Two forces that may blunt the sharp edge of the consumer spending upturn came into clearer focus this week. Their names had a dismally familiar ring—creeping inflation and rising taxes.

Living costs inched up last month. It was a small advance—only four-tenths of one per cent in the government's consumer price index—but it was the largest rise in more than a year.

The latest index, at a new high of 124.50, means that it now costs you $124.50 to buy what $100 would have bought in 1947-49.

Prices of fresh fruits and vegetables climbed, as they usually do in June. Other important family budget items moved up, too—rent, gasoline, medical care, used cars, cigarettes, shoes and haircuts.

Don't look for an early reduction in your federal income tax. President Eisenhower said this week that the huge national debt will have to be trimmed before any thought can be given to tax cuts. The debt now stands a more than 289 billion dollars. The interest costs U.S. taxpayers nearly 8¾ billion dollars a year.

The steel strike had almost everybody guessing. Iron Age, the authoritative trade magazine that speaks for the steel industry, said it looks like a long strike unless President Eisenhower intervenes.

Briefly over the business scene: White House economists estimate that gross national product—the sum total of all business activity—reached a record yearly pace of 483½ billion dollars in the second quarter. Department store sales in the first week of the steel strike were up seven per cent from a year ago. Personal income of Americans in June reached a record annual rate of nearly 389 billion dollars.

Mother Drowns After Rescuing Two Children

The woman waded part way toward the spot where the children apparently stepped off a sandbar. Two of the children made their way ashore while she rescued two others.

Firemen said the Ford girl and her two brothers had gone to the beach from a nearby home where they were visiting.

In a prepared statement Saturday, Koch said:

Koch, with a long career in the promotion of industrial development, is affiliated with the American Industrial Development Council, Southern Industrial Development Council, Southern Community Development Association and the Kentucky Bar Association.

Prior to coming to Monroe, Koch was with the Kentucky Chamber of Commerce after serving 23 years with the Louisville & Nashville Railroad.

In his new assignment in Longview, Koch will direct all operations of the Chamber of Commerce there, with special emphasis on the organization's industrial development program.

Police Report Here Revised

The Morning World last Thursday reported the arrest of Eligah McCoy, 34-year old Negro, by Monroe Police on charges of hit and run and crime against nature.

McCoy was actually charged with reckless driving and not crime against nature as the report stated. The discrepency was due to a mistake on the coded reports of the Monroe Police Department.

Arresting officers inadvertently entered the wrong code number on the daily register of police arrests. The world regrets this incident.

Last year the fuel industry increased its newspaper advertising by 3.1 per cent over the previous year.

RETURN STOLEN GOODS

OLDHAM, England (UPI) — Mrs. Joyce Willerton reported Friday that her television set, hair dryer, pressure cooker, electric toaster, vacuum cleaner and luggage suddenly re-appeared in her backyard Thursday, neatly stacked against a wall. The items had been stolen last month.

Since 1950 daily newspaper circulation in the United States has increased by 3½ million copies.

Newspapers' combined run-of-paper color linage, in cities measured by Media Records, Inc., has increased from a litfle over 46 million lines in 1951 to over 122 million lines in 1958.

The first balloon tires were introduced on U. S cars in 1922. Last year the tire and tube industry increased its investment in daily newspaper advertising by 11.7 per cent over the previous year.

U.S. OFFICIALS WORRIED

Aluminum, Copper Strikes Threaten

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government officials are worried that aluminum and copper industry strikes may soon develop as a companion to the 11-day steel strike — shutting down virtually all U.S. metal production.

Walkouts in aluminum or copper, or both, might cause President Eisenhower to reconsider invoking the Taft-Hartley law's national emergency provisions leading to court injunctions to suspend the strikes.

So far Eisenhower has steered clear of utilizing the law's 80-day strike-stopping powers. The White House apparently feels such a respite would merely postponed the labor-management showdown that must eventually and inevitably be faced. The theory is the same problems likely would exist after the 80 days ran out.

It is not lack of metal for defense and civilian industry that worries officials. There are on hand comfortable supplies of aluminum and copper, as there are of steel.

It is the collateral effect on the nation's economy that has officials most concerned. Already an estimated 78,000 workers in railroads, coal and allied industries have been idled by the steel strike. Without a steel labor settlement, and none now seems in prospect, the layoffs will grow.

If the approximately 120,000 aluminum and copper workers go out on strike, joining the 500,000 aluminum and copper workers already - idled steelworkers, the job displacement figure could mushroom quickly to a million or more.

This would have its effects on purchasing power and dent the over-all national prosperity.

Aluminum industry contracts run out next Friday midnight. Several unions including the steelworkers, already on strike against steel producers, are threatening a walkout. Union settlement proposals have been rejected in New York negotiations.

Major copper industry contracts expired June 30. The Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers Union, an independent, has been continuing work on a day-to-day basis.

Prospects seemed brighter, however, for a copper industry settlement than one in steel or aluminum. The mine-mill union was reported considering an offer made by one of the major copper producers. If accepted, it could become an industry-wide settlement pattern in copper.

A copper settlement might not pave the way for agreements in steel and aluminum, although it would tend to bring more pressure on those industries to reach agreements with their unions.

Meantime, Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell returned to Washington to consult with officials after a secret out-of-town trip. It was speculated that Mitchell had had some direct talks with principals in the steel strike. Mitchell is operating as a steel fact-finder for the White House.

Joseph F. Finnegan, director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, arranged to bring the disputing steel management and union representatives together here Monday in New York. That will be the first joint meeting since the steel strike started July 15.

Finnegan this past week has been meeting separately with the steel companies and Steelworkers Union. He said the joint meeting should not be interpreted as indicating progress.

U.S. Steel Corp., biggest of the steel companies, is to make public its six-month profits statement on Tuesday. Other major companies also are to have such reports next week. Some smaller steel firms have already reported spectacular 1959 profits gains.

In steel, the union has asked for a 15-cent annual raise in wages and benefits. The prestrike average of worker earnings was $3.10 an hour. The industry has refused any contract raises on grounds they would be inflationary. Steel firms also complain of allegedly wasteful work practices.

There is an estimated two to three-month steel supply on hand. Government officials estimated there is a 30 to 60-day aluminum supply and at least a 30-day copper inventory.

Accidents Are Biggest Killer Of Children

MONTREAL (AP) — Doctors someday may be able to spot youngsters who are prone to accidents—the greatest killer of children.

Personality may give one clue.

This possibility is being raised at the ninth International Congress of Pediatrics today by speakers who say that records show the most susceptible to accidents are the "inexperienced creeper" among the very young and the "daredevil types" of older children.

Childhood accidents do not occur by chance, said Dr. George M. Wheatley, a vice president of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., in a speech prepared for delivery to the 1,600 delegates from 63 nations.

"One study of nursery school children found certain personality characteristics associated with a tendency toward accidental injury," he said.

Wheatley said impulsive, emotional children were hurt or killed more often than youngsters who were passive, cooperative, eager to please and not inclined to engage in group play.

But the new trend of research, he said, is to go deeper into the family life of accident victims to determine whether their mishaps fit into certain patterns.

For example, he said, the studies seek to determine whether factors are "certain forms of discipline, the rate and manner in which parents foster independence in their children, the sex roles which parents prescribe for their children."

Thousands Visit U.S. Exhibition

MOSCOW (UPI) — Tens of thousands of Muscovites poured into the U.S. Exhibition in Sokolniky Park Saturday for their first glimpse of life in the United States Msot seemed impressed, but not overawed.

Many Russians, with tickets distributed through various Soviet Labor and Communist Party organizations, were lined up long before the gates opened to the general public for the first time.

At 11 a.m. (5 a.m. edt), the gates swung wide and there was a near-stampede of Russians in their Sunday best for the golden-domed central pavilion and the side exhibits.

Crowds thronged past the displays of baby food, shoes, hi - fi phonographs, and the model kitchen with push-button gadgets.

Some American products, such as the Pepsi Cola given away free at stands seemed to leave the Russians cold. They prefer fruit juices and mineral waters to soft drinks.

A mob scene develpoed around the display of American automobiles. Many Russians seemed astonished to learn they were easily available in the United States.

The American book display—minus such items as the 1959 World Almanac which Soviet officials removed—also drew favorable comment. Russians are avid readers.

The lack of more industrial and machine exhibits seemed to disappoint many.

Officials said they expected 50,000 Russians to visit the Exhibition on the first day, and they were trying to keep the daily figure to roughly that number to prevent over-crowding.

Tickets were at a premium throughout the Capital for the six-week fair which Vice President Richard M. Nixon formally opened with the snip of a ribbon Friday night.

One of the most controversial displays was the American art show — soon to be bolstered by 25 traditional paints at President Eisenhower's suggestion.

New Lights For Mer Rouge Field

MER ROUGE (Special — A better lighting program for the baseball diamond here became a reality last week.

C. L. Clark, Jr., chairman of the finance committee of the Mer Rouge Lions Club, pointed out 60 weatherproof bulbs and six poles had been erected at a cost of $2,500. He expressed his appreciation to the Lions Club, interested citizens in Mer Rouge and Bastrop and Businesses, all of whom assisted in the project.

Hickingbottom In Franklin Sheriff Race

WINNSBORO (Special) — W. M. Hickingbottom, 49-year-old Winnsboro man, is the first to issue a formal announcement as a candidate for the office of Franklin parish sheriff. His opening statement is as follows:

"I will be a candidate for sheriff of Franklin parish, subject to the Democratic primary to be held in December, 1959.

"I am a native of Arkansas, but have resided in Franklin parish since 1919. I have been a farmer, oil field worker and cafe operator.

"I will give a list of things I will do and am in favor of, if elected sheriff.

"The first thing is a complete change in personnel and operation of the sheriffs' office, such as using the parish automobiles for personal and family use.

"Employ only men with good moral character, and not employ any more men than it takes to run the office.

"I will do all I can to keep our schools and churches segregated and am against integration in any form.

"I will not act as a front man or puppet for someone behind the scenes who would like to control the sheriff's office. If elected I will purchase one vehicle to be used as an ambulance to haul the sick and disabled that can not afford to pay, to the hospitals. After all, the money the sheriff spends to run the office is the taxpayer's money. I will help the majority, not just a chosen few. And last but not least, I will devote my full time to running the sheriffs' office. All I ask is that the people give me a chance, and I will keep my word."

'Many Sided' Career Ends In California

SAN BERNARDINO, Calif. (AP)—In his 51 turbulent years, Manning Johnson had been:

A Communist, an undercover agent for the FBI, A Navy enlisted man, a Department of Justice consultant and a militant foe of some Negro integrationists — although he himself was a Negro.

Although his name once was in headlines because of his testimony in the Harry Bridges and Gerhart Eisler trials, only a few people attended his military funeral Friday.

Johnson died July 2 of a heart ailment in a Lake Arrowhead, Calif., hospital.

A spokesman for the mortuary which conducted the burial said the funeral was delayed because approval—and money—was needed from his wife, Mrs. Mae Johnson of New York City. His wife did not attend the rites.

Johnson joined the Communist party in the 1930s, attracted by the Reds' clamor for equal rights for Negroes.

Disillusioned with communism's methods and goals, he tried to quit but was persuaded to remain by the FBI, which used him as an undercover agent. He officially broke with the party and joined the Navy during World War II.

After his discharge, he was hired as an expert witness and researcher by the Department of Justice.

He testified in the 1949 Harry Bridges trial. The president of the International Warehousemen's Union, accused of lying at his 19945 naturalization hearing, was acquitted.

He also testified in the 1947 passport fraud trial of Communist spy Gerhart Eisler, who later jumped bail and fled to East Germany.

First Flying Saucer Skims Over Channel

DOVER, England (AP) — Britain's first flying saucer, officially called the SRN1, skimmed smoothly from Calais to Dover Saturday looking like an intruder from space fiction amid the workaday shipping of the English Channel.

It was the Hovercraft's first channel crossing. By unplanned coincidence, it made the journey exactly 50 years to the day that Louis Bleriot's historic first flight across the 23 storied miles.

The Hovercraft made the crossing in two hours, three minutes, flying a foot above the waves on its own self-made air cushion.

Inside Dover Harbor, it fluttered off the sea and over the beach to land without fuss amid a welcoming chorus of ship's sirens.

Christopher Cockerell, the hovercraft inventor, emerged from inside its open-sided cabin, wiped the salt spray from his sparse gray hair and said: "It was not as elegant as perhaps one would wish — she threw up a lot of spray and gave us a thorough soaking. But the crossing fully confirmed my belief that the hovercraft has a real future in practical transport."

The hovercraft looks exactly like the flying saucer of 1,000 space novels. It is an oval disc, 30 by 20 feet, surmounted by a squat, broad funnel. The funnel houses a fan of hand carved mahogany driven by a 450-horsepower piston engine.

The fan blows air blows air down through two rings of slots on the underside. More air from the same fan is blasted through four ducts at the sides of the disc to move it and steer it.

Forward of the funnel is the two-seat cabin in which test pilot Peter Lamb and Cockerell made the trip. A third man traveled on the disc itself as human ballast, moving around to help keep trim.

The saucer has the simplest of controls. By Lamb's right hand was a joy stick controling direction with a twist grip at the top for the engine throttle. By his left hand was another stick to control the saucer's balance by varying the downward pressure underneath it.

It lifts off the water or the engine is revving fast enough to build up the necessary air pressure beneath. Top speed on the crossing was 38 knots maintained only for just over a mile.

Lamb explained this will later be greatly increased by using an auxiliary pusher engine, perhaps a small jet. At the moment only 25 horsepower goes into moving the saucer.

Among those who watched the hovercraft complete its crossing soon after dawn was Fred Morecroft, 80-year-old former mayor of Dover. Exactly 50 years ago, he told newsmen, he stood on the cliffs above the harbor and saw bleriot land his tiny monoplane on the first historic airplane flight across the channel.

Several American companies have been experimenting with jet-air vehicles for both military and civilian use, and the Curtiss Wright Corp. announced Saturday at Wood-ridge, N.J. that production of a four-passenger air-car will start at its south bend, Ind., division in November. The corporation said the car travels on a cushion of air at a height of 6 to 12 inches and can travel equally well over land, water, swamps or mud.

IN STUDENT'S APARTMENT

Son Of Retired Admiral Is Slain

LAFAYETTE, Ind. (AP)—A retired Navy admiral's son was shot to death Friday night in the apartment of another Purdue University student, who would explain the shooting only as "a terrible accident."

Police found James F. Strain, 26, La Porte, Ind., son of retired Rear Adm. Charles L. Strain, dead from a .39 caliber bullet wound in his right chest. The youth's body was in the garage apartment of Prentice G. Von Conrad, 31, Houston, Tex., near the campus.

Von Conrad, who has been studying for a doctor's degree in psychology, was held by West Lafayette police for questioning. Prosecutor George Hanna said he expects to file a murder charge Monday.

Hanna said the two men were acquaintances, but Von Conrad wouldn't give any explanation of the shooting.

Both Strain and his father have been studying mathematics at Purdue. The son was a candidate for a bachelor's degree next Friday. Adm. Strain has been on the campus about a year, enrolled in a retired officers' course for training mathematics teachers.

The victim's mother lives in Arlington, Va.

State police said Von Conrad first called a friend, Georgia Wright, 34, telling her there had been "a terrible accident."

Miss Wright, a Home Hospital nurse who also is taking graduate studies at Purdue, took Von Conrad to the West Lafayette Police Station after she went to his apartment and found Strain dead.

State police said four guns were found in Von Conrad's apartment.

Young Strain finished high school in Lake Forest, Ill. He was born in Rockville, Ind.

Suspect Nabbed

MOBILE (UPI) — Police turned a successful $400 armed robbery here into a failure in less than two hours Saturday.

Negro Patrolmen Charles Shelton and Doug Jones picked up a suspect Robert D. Hazwood 24, a Mobile Negro, about an hour and a half after the 3:30 a. m. theft from an all-night grocery. Within another half hour they had a confession, most of the loot and Hazwood's pistol.

Police Blotter

Monroe police yesterday arrested Tommy Manning, 57, on charges of simple battery and disturbing the peace. He was placed under $500 bond.

Lincoln McCarter, 37-year-old Negro, was charged with keeping a disorderly place and gambling. He posted bond of $500. Four other Negroes were charged with gambling and placed under $360 bond.

They were Hardy Caster, 26, Burrell Richard, 33, who both posted bond, Mack Wallace, 37, and J. L. Ellis, 29.

Gunman Sought In Mississippi $1,000 Holdup

JACKSON, Miss. (UPI) — The Highway Patrol Saturday issued a statewide alert for arrest of a gunman who pulled a $1,000 holdup at a service station just north of here.

Service station attendant Frank Taylor told officers he was counting money on hand for cashing checks of workers for a nearby industrial plant Saturday morning when the ruddy - faced gunman came to the station on foot.

Taylor said the man, about 37, produced a snub-nosed pistol, ordered him to hand over only bills, and then fled with the money in Taylor's car.

The car was found abandoned about 500 yards away from the station on old Highway 51 just north of the Jackson city limits. Deputies said they had few clues as to the identity of the gunman.

Artist Here Creates Colorful Mosaics

By LYNN GARRETT
Staff Writer

Colorful bits of glass from Venice, Italy, will go to New York next month after an important layover in Monroe.

Mrs. Gregor Thompson Goethals, 505 Roselawn, has spent the past year and a half designing and executing two mosaics which will be set into a concrete wall of a new wing at Riverside Church, New York.

The smalti glass can be obtained only from Venice and comes in 7,000 different shades. Mrs. Goethals has about 80 of them.

After doing two wash drawings for the mosaics, the next step was putting the designs on canvas, she explained.

Finally, after more than a year of the preliminary work, Mrs. Goethals began placing each tessera, or bit of glass, onto the final drawing on heavy brown paper.

GLUE

A special glue Mrs. Goethals gets from a friend in New York holds the glass in place on the paper. Large sections of the mosaics are numbered on the back of the paper, to show workmen where each piece goes into the wall.

Finally, the paper will be peeled off, leaving the glass design in place. This means Mrs. Goethals must work backwards, because the side she is looking at while working is not the side which will show.

She keeps a mirror handy to check the work, comparing its mirrored view with the smaller images which she painted on canvas.

Although the thick, brown glue may look insignificant alongside the beautifully colored glass designs, it plays a very important role.

"I don't believe I could have managed without this type of glue," Mrs. Goethals commented.

She explained it is a "home brew" type of paste, mixed up by a friend using strange ingredients like molasses.

"Glue for this type of work must have three important qualities," she said. "It must be strong, flexible and water soluble."

HEAVY

The glass is heavy for its size, and a small portion of the mosaic may weigh five pounds. A strong glue is necessary to handle the weight, yet it must be flexible enough not to pop the bits of glass off.

And finally, it must be water soluble so that the paper can be peeled off when the art work is in place.

A native of Monroe and graduate of Neville High School, Mrs. Goethals attended Northeast for two years when it was a junior college.

It was there that she made her first formal study in the field of art. Then she went on to Louisiana State University where she received her Bachelor of Arts degree, and to Nashville, Tenn., where she did commercial art and studied for another year.

At Yale, she received her Master's degree.

EXPERIENCE

Mrs. Goethals has had varied experience in her field. She has done freelance art work for about 10 years, has illustrated three children's book, done political illustrations, and was art editor for two magazines back east.

Since returning to Monroe three years ago, she has worked with architects as a color coordinator for new structures. Among these are the First National Bank Building in West Monroe, the Ford-Bacon-Davis structure and the new Ouachita Parish Public Parish Library.

She also has designed a mosaic for a local residence, and has done numerous letterheads, trademarks and other industrial designing.

Mrs. Goethals has worked on this type of mosaic for the past four or five years, both designing and executing. She explained that some people design but don't execute, and others execute the work after someone else has designed it, but she enjoys doing both.

MOSAICS

"I really got interested in mosaics because of my interest in architectural art," she explained. "I enjoy working on something that is a planned part of the structure."

This form of art, she added, is quite old, dating back to about the fifth century. From then until the 13th century it was in full swing, but began dying when oils came into vogue.

The recent awakening of interest in the form has come about because the glass is easily adaptable to contemporary architecture, she added.

Mrs. Goethals, who is also assistant professor of art at Northeast State College, cannot remember a time when she was not interested in art, although she had no courses in it until she reached college.

She will leave early in August for New York, to be on hand when the mosaic is placed in the church, ending her 18 months of work on the project.

Mrs. Goethals points to one of the tiny pieces of glass used in her mosaic. The glass comes from Italy.

H-BOMB'S FATHER DISCUSSES Science Leaders

Editor's note — The scientist known as the father of the hydrogen bomb is convinced the Soviet Union will lead in science in a decade. Here's his suggestion for what must be done to help America catch up, in an article written exclusively for The Associated Press.

By Dr. EDWARD TELLER

LIVERMORE, Calif. (AP)—At the end of World War II there was no question of where the leadership in science was to be found. It was right here in this country.

We had the best scientists, the biggest and best-trained group of engineers, the most forward looking group of men in the applications of science to increase our power over nature and to use this power to the happiness and advancement of all.

If you would then have enumerated the other countries of the world, the Soviet Union would have come way down on the list. By quite a few of us, the Soviet Union might have been forgotten.

Today there is a question where leadership lies. But there is no question which country is developing scientists most effectively. This country is the Soviet Union.

I think there cannot be a shadow of a doubt that 10 years from now the Soviet Union will be the unquestioned leader in the scientific field.

EDUCATE

This is something which I believe we cannot change, no matter what we do today. To educate a scientist is a long-drawn-out process. It takes many years. The best minds are the youngest minds. The chief contribution to scientific work is made by people between, say, 25 and 30. The people on whom this duty will fall in 10 years are learning today. They are in greater number and they are better educated in the Soviet Union than they are anywhere else. And even if we bend all our efforts to change the present situation, all we can hope for is to regain lost leadership later. That we are going to lose our leadership is inevitable.

The Soviet Union, by the organization of its country — an organization which does not simply find its roots in communism but which goes back through the centuries — is a country where the individual is told what to do and he does it. After the revolution the Russians were told, "We have to do something about science."

In the Soviet Union, a scientist is a privileged individual. He has all the honor, the comforts, and he has also security. This in the Soviet Union means more than it means in our country. We believe, and I think rightly, that all of us should be respected if not honored; that all of us should have a comfortable life, and most of all the life and liberty of us all should be secure. This is as it should be. But in the Soviet Union a child knows that he can be comfortable only if he is a politician — a politician — a successful politician, that is — or a scientist. And he can be secure only if he is a scientist.

EMBARK

In order to embark on their scientific career, they work hard. They have to work hard. There is the whip of necessity which falls on every person in the Soviet society.

I haven't visited the Soviet Union myself. But I have talked with many of my good scientific friends who have visited there. What they report is generally a friendly reception. The vituperations of the Soviet officials do not represent the feelings of the man on the street in Moscow. But when any of my friends happened to mention that he was a scientist, this was another thing again. He became a wonderful person, no matter where he came from. A scientist! That is really fine.

Now let us consider the position of the scientist in our country. Let me start by saying that I am going to criticize — but I am going to criticize in a matter which is not easily changed, and I can offer no easy remedies. The poor situation in science stems from a generally good situatior of society as a whole; I will try to explain how in may mind these two things are connected. And I certainly don't want to change the general good background to save a detail even if that detail be ever so important. We shall have to think our way around this problem.

DIAGNOSIS

But first, let me try my hand at the diagnosis. I told you that the Russian children are driven on by the whip. Ours are not. And I think this is right. If we should embark on a competition in wielding a whip, there is no doubt that the Russians will win. Furthermore, the greatest accomplishments in this world are not accomplished by the whip. They are accomplished for other reasons—for reasons of inner necessity and that is how it should be.

But this inner necessity is not independent of the circle in which we live. Man is a social animal. And the most social of the social animals is the child. He feels his way in a society new to him and he adapts himself to what is around him. And what does he see?

We live in a democracy. I am almost tempted to say that we live here, in this country, in the only true democracy the world has ever known. And by that I mean not only political democracy, not only that we have the means by which to determine our political fate. I mean more. Much more.

I mean economic democracy. I mean that all our production is for the masses. All value judgments are for the masses. What is good for just a few is not appreciated. What is good for everyone is paramount. This makes it more difficult for the privileged ones among us; because even if you have money, and even if you haven't paid it all in taxes, you do not really have anything to spend it on. Because if you try to buy something that is better, you usually wind up with something that is merely different.

This is, in my opinion again, as it should be. It takes off the edge of the competition that otherwise would be nasty. It takes away another motivation, and throws the individual back into freedom of his own soul, where he can do with his otherwise comfortable life what he chooses. This is good, if applied to good people who know how to use their freedom.

But now let us consider the consequences of applying this thoroughly democratic order of things to the pursuit of intellectual achievements. Intellectual achievements are not attractive in themselves. The enjoyment of intellectual achievements is most definitely an acquired taste. You don't start out by liking classical music. You learn to like it. You don't start out by seeing the difference between good and bad architecture. You have to learn to see. And you sit down in front of a scientific treatise and unless you have worked on it a lot, it might as well be in Volapuk. (Volapuk: an extinct artificial language).

Intellectual achievement is not, and perhaps never can be, for everybody. This is not appreciated in our democratic society. Now it has been said recently about the American public, about American opinion, that it is anti-intellectual. I believe that this is not so. American opinion is not anti - intellectual. It is non-intellectual.

An intellectual is not resented; he is recognized as a person outside the common society. If he gets something accomplished, he is even greatly honored. He may be put on a pedestal, which is not the right place for him to be, in my opinion. But he is never, never understood.

When he begins to talk about his specialty to any but his closest colleagues he can, if he wishes to watch, notice the ear flaps coming down. Society says to the intellectual, specifically to the scientist: "Go ahead and play, but leave us alone." Now this attitude by the public has produced a response from the scientists, and a response from the intellectuals. And this response is no less disastrous than the cause that has produced it.

RESPONSE

The response is this: "I am an intellectual. I love my subject. It is the whole world to me. Practically nothing else exists for me. And you people don't give a hang what I am doing. Well, I don't give a hang what you are doing. I will be by myself, go off into a corner with some of my close associates, and we'll talk to each other in polysyllables which only we understand, and sometimes I wonder whether anybody else understands me but myself."

There is a chasm separating the scientist from the common crowd. This chasm has been established on both sides, and both sides must make an effort to overcome it.

PAUL MARTIN LOOKS 'EM OVER

He grew up as a kid idolizing high school boxers and absorbing an instructions passed out by the coach, but he never got to fight for his schools. He fought, instead, for his country in the Korean War, a conflict that cost him what hopes he may have had for a promising fistic career.

That's Buck McDuffie, Neville High grad of '46, Korean War veteran, presently an oil and gas well driller, who, at 30 years of age, is offering to pass on the ring wisdom he has been collecting for nearly 25 years as the new operator of Joe's Gym in West Monroe.

BUCK McDUFFIE

"I'm willing to train anybody in boxing, self defense, or gym workouts and age doesn't matter," said McDuffie as he announced he has taken over operation of the West Monroe gym on Jewel street. "We've got one of the best rings anywhere in this part of the country and can work with the medicine ball, punching bags, weights, bar bells, or on the mat. If we can stimulate enough interest we may put on some club fights right here at the gym."

Asked about the possibility of developing a team of amateurs or a pro boxing stable, Buck was non-committal. "Just say we'll wait and see what the interest is," said Buck. "We've still got plenty of time to think about it."

"Right now we're interested in building individual interests. There's lots of boys and young men around here who want a place to workout. That's what Joe's Gym is for. All they've got to do is show up ready to work, or a least come by and see what we have to offer."

McDuffie was a grammar school kid at Georgia Tucker in Monroe when he used to hustle up to Neville High, practically in his family's back yard off K Street. to hang around the Tiger boxers Parcy Brown used to coach. Old Neville fistic fans can remember a kid in his sub-teens hustling about carrying gloves, water buckets, or rosin boxes, helping as much as he could, doing anything and everything the coach or fighters asked of him. Buck was something of a team mascot and willing flunkie, waiting that day when he could become a boxer like his heroes of the late 1930s and 1940—Neville's last fistic season—like Ray Spicer, Robert Gates, Walter Brady, Perry Snyder, E. B. Peddy, Buck Brantley, Vaughn Payne, Sylvian Wiggins, Harold Cornett, Guy Miller, Anthony Danna, Pat Cole, Louis Ladart, Ernest Pierce, Howard Earl, Ed Endom, Mickey Head, Aubrey Young, Robert St. John, Salvadore Danna, "Red" Rivers, and Jack Gallien, all of whom won district or state recognition at some spot over a four-year span form 1937.

Boxing had been stricken from the Neville program when Buck entered high school. He joined the Marine Corps as soon as he finished school in 1946, and then began to display at last the talents he had developed as a kid following the high school fighters. As a middleweight marine boxer he made "All-Japan" in 1947 and '48, "All-Navy" in 1949.

Coming home after a four-year hitch in March of 1950, Buck promptly entered that year's Southern AAU tournament, winning the middleweight championship. But in November of that same year he went back to the marines for action in Korea. A few months later, in '51, mortar shrapnel ripped through his right hand, taking his index finger and putting a big hole through the palm of his hand. Plastic surgery plugged the hole and the rest of his hand was saved, but Bucky counted boxing, the sport he loves best, lost to him forever.

Home from the war, he operated a gym in the family garage on K street until work with a drilling company took him away. Back with a family of his own now, McDuffie is currently working at gas well operations near Choudrant and is living in West Monroe.

When he comes home from his regular work in the evenings, he's ready to work with the Twin Cities' youth at Joe's Gym, operated by Joe Knighten for nearly three years.

Buck is assisited by Beck Love, 28, pressman for a West Monroe job printer, who compiled a 21-4 won-lost record fighting lightweight and welter for an army team of '53-55. This former Columbus, Miss., man fought three fights as an amateur for Joe Knighten, won all three, and found no more opponents.

Incidentally, McDuffie's record as a marine boxer was a healthy 60-4.

Joe's Gym will be opened all week days except Saturday from 4 until 7 p.m. Saturday sessions will be from 2 to 5 p.m. The gym will be closed on Sundays.

IN MEETING TUESDAY

Wildlifers Schedule More Cheniere Talk

Cheniere Lake again will be aired at a public meeting of the Ouachita Wildlife Unit here Tuesday night.

The session is set for the Virginia Hotel at 7:30 p.m., according to club president Jack Rushing.

With the parish prepared to sell bonds for the lake purchase, the widlife unit currently is in the process of making recommendations to the Police Jury for the appointment of a Cheniere commission.

Rushing said this matter would be discussed at the meeting. In a board meeting last week, names were selected for commissioners.

A special feature of the Tuesday night meeting, Rushing said, will be a report from district biologist Joe Herring on the outlook for the coming duck season.

Rushing invited all duck hunters to attend.

In addition, June winners of the monthly fishing contest, sponsored by the wildlife unit, will be announce and prizes awarded.

Door prizes will be given too and Rushing invited all interested sportsmen from the Ouachita area to attend.

Mexican Scouts To Carry Torch

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Mexican boy scouts in relays Saturday started carrying the symbolic torch of the third Pan-American Games northward toward the border.

They will turn the electronic device over to United States scouts at Laredo, Tex., Aug. 4. The U.S. scouts in turn will carry it to Soldier Field in Chicago where it will burn during the Games, Aug. 27-Sept. 7.

The Mexican phase of the relay will include 570 scouts from troops along the central highway route via Queretaro, San Luis, Potosi, Saltillo and Monterrey.

Each boy will carry the torch 1,000 meters at the scout pace—25 meters running, 25 walking.

Leaders Win 23rd 1-Run Tilt Of Year

CHICAGO (AP)— Harry Simpson's pinch single in the 17th inning sent home the winning run and gave the Chicago White Sox a 3-2 triumph over Baltimore Saturday.

The victory, the 23rd one-run decision captured by Chicago, enabled the White Sox to maintain their one-half game American League lead over Cleveland.

Back-to-back singles by Jim Landis and Sherm Lollar started the 17th inning uprising. Al Smith was given an intentional pass and reliever Billy Loes, third Baltimore pitcher, got Jim Rivera to bounce into a force play at the plate. Simpson, batting for Bubba Phillips, then lined a single to right center to end the marathon.

The 17th inning affair matched the longest game in the majors this year. That was also between Chicago and Baltimore with the Sox winning on a homer by Earl Torgeson.

The Sox blew five different scoring chances in the extra innings after Lollar had tied up the game with a leadoff homer off starter Billy O'Dell in the ninth inning. They left nine runners from the 10th inning on and had two on and only one out in the ninth after Lollar had blasted his 13th homer but couldn't push anybody across.

The victory was the fourth straight for the Sox while Baltimore suffered its fifth defeat to give the Orioles their longest losing string of the season.

Turk Lown, who came on in the 12th inning, gained credit for his seventh triumph against two losses. Loes was shackled with his third loss in seven decisions.

The Sox tied it in the second on a double by Al Smith and John Romano's single but were virtually handcuffed after that until Lollar unloaded his homer into the left field stands.

After the first inning and until the eighth Bob Shaw kept the Orioles in check to three singles.

Willie Tasby opened the eighth with his third single and took second on a sacrifice. Bob Nieman doubled Tasy home to break the deadlock Gene Woodling was given an intentional pass and Brooks Robinson struck out. Billy Klaus then singled to left but pinch runner Albie Pearson was thrown out at the plate by Smith.

The Sox threatened in the 10th but were put down by reliever Jerry Walker. With one out Aparicio singled. Nellie Fox hit a soft liner to Bob Boyd who muffed the play and Aparicio raced to third. Walker came in and walked Landis intentionally before getting Lollar to hit into a double play.

Leon K. Wins Narragansett

PAWTUCKET, R.I. (AP)—Mrs. John Dalton's Leon K., the only stakes winner in the field of 10 2-year-olds, won the $17,775 Narragansett Nursery Stakes by 2½ lengths at Narragansett Park Saturday.

Third choice of the crowd of 15,532, the young son of Carrara Marble came from far back in the 6-furlong sprint, took command deep in the stretch and won going away from the favorite, Joseph Gavegnano's Fighting King.

The winner's time was 1:12 4-5. He paid $14.80, $7.20 and $4.80 while earning $11,553 for his Tuckahoe, N. Y., owner. The victory almost doubled Leon K.'s earnings which now are $23,122 in 11 starts.

Good Block But No Ball

Ceccarelli Takes 4th Win As Cubs Trip Giants, 5-3

By LEIF ERICKSON

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Southpaw Art Ceccarelli beat the San Francisco Giants Saturday 5-3 and won his fourth straight for the Chicago Cubs since being called from Fort Worth three weeks ago.

The loss stopped a three-game winning streak for the National League leaders, who won 6-5 Friday night in a 10-inning struggle.

The Giant lead was cut to two games, with second place Los Angeles playing St. Louis Saturday night.

Ceccarelli set down the Giants with three hits until pinch hitter Hank Sauer poled his first home run of the year over the left center field fence in the eight. Jackie Brandt and Jim Davenport followed with sharp singles and Brandt scored the Giants' last run on Willie Mays' pinch hit sacrifice fly to right.

Stu Miller was tagged for 11 hits in eight innings before retiring for a pinch hitter. He lost his fifth game against four victories.

Ceccarelli was Giant property last season before he went to Vancouver of the Pacific Coast league where he won 10 while losing 6. He checked in for spring training with the Cubs, weighing 216 pounds and went to Fort Worth with orders to trim down his weight. He now weighs 190.

Ernie Banks drove in his 90th run in Chicago's three-run seventh which put the Cubs ahead 5-1. Banks' sharp single to left scored Ceccarelli who beat out a bounder off Miller's glove and went to second on Jim Marshall's single up the middle. With the bases loaded on an intentional walk to Walt Moryn, pinch hitter Irv Noren shota single over second, scoring Marshall and Banks.

Chicago took a 2-1 lead in the fifth on George Altman's bunt single and two bloop hits over the infield. Al Dark scored Altman with a single to left and went to second on Jackie Brandt's throwing error. Marshall's short fly over second dropped in and Dark scored.

A'S WIN 6TH STRAIGHT

Daley's 4-Hitter Trips Boston, 3-0

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Bud Daley's four-hit shutout accounted for Kansas City's sixth consecutive victory Saturday night as the Athletics defeated Boston 3-0.

It was the knuckleballing Daley's 11th victory against six losses and the 10th Kansas City triumph in their last 12 games. The defeat was charged to rookie Al Schroll who was making his first major league start.

Daley fanned six as Kansas City made it two straight against the slumping Bostonians. He held them hitless for the first four innings.

Kansas City scored once in the second on a double and a single and added another in the fifth on a double, two singles and a hit batsman.

Ted Williams, pinchhitting for Schroll in the sixth, singled with one out only to have Don Buddin hit into a twin-killing.

Jack k Harshman replaced Schroll, loaded th ebases on an infield hit, an error and a bunt and was replaced by Mike Fornieles who got out of the jam by striking out one batter and forcing another to hit into a doubleplay.

The A's loaded the bases again in the seventh but Fornieles pitched out of it without damage. Leo Kiely came on in relief in the eighth with two on and one out, fanned one man then gave way to Murray Wall. Wall was nicked for a run-scoring single, then pitched out of a bases loaded situation.

Cards Obtain J.W. Porter From Solons

St. LOUIS (AP)—The St. Louis Cardinals dipped into the American League for catching insurance Saturday, obtaining light-hitting J. W. Porter from the Washington Senators on waivers.

The 26-year-old Porter, a big disappointment since the Chicago White Sox paid him a $65,000 bonus in 1951, will report to the Birds Monday in Cincinnati.

Porter played for the White Sox, Tigers and the old St. Louis Browns, in addition to the Senators. Detroit traded him to Washington last October in exchange for infielder Ozzie Alvarez.

The Cardinals will be one player over the limit Sunday, when Bill White's national defense service time expires.

Porter appeared in 37 games with Washington. He had 24 hits in 106 at bats for a .226 average. He hit four doubles and one home run and batted in 10 runs.

CHEEK TO BE NEW COACH?

Over 500 Attend Tatum's Funeral

By PHIL CORNER

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Jim Tatum, the North Carolina football coach who died on the threshold of what he hoped would be his greatest season, was buried Saturday in a little cemetery across the street from his office.

More than a score of big time football coaches joined some 500 mourners in this university city to pay tribute to the colorful Tatum, known far and wide as "Sunny Jim."

The Big, 46-year-old native of McColl, S.C., died Thursday night of a violent virus infection which overpowered the main organs of his body. Mrs. Tatum was unable to attend the funeral. Stricken with a similar virus infection, she is in a hospital but apparently recovering.

Tatum, master of the modern split T offense who returned to his alma mater in 1956 to rebuild its sagging football fortunes, succumbed only five weeks from the start of practice for a season he expected to be "my best ever."

Speculation, meantime, centered on Big Jim's successor. University officials hinted an interim coach will be named and that a decision may be reached early nert week.

Most frequently mentioned to guide the powerful squad Tatum had spent three years in building has been Emmett Cheek, an assistant to Tatum five years at Maryland and three years here. Cheek had head coaching experience at Guilford College before joining Tatum.

Other possibilities from the present staff are George Barclay, whom Tatum replaced as head coach in 1956, and Jim Hickey, former head mentor at Hampton-Sydney College.

The Rev. Charles Hubbard, a schoolmaster of Tatum's and a Tor Heel track star, delivered the eulogy during the half-hour funeral service. In referring to Tatum as "a great man," the minister said:

"He played the game hard, he played it better than most of us evre played it and he played it fairly."

The Rev. Mr. Hubbard said Tatum taught the true meaning of his well-known philosophy: "Winning is not the most important thing; it is the only thing."

Stores and other businesses closed for the funeral. Shirt-sleeved merchants and shoppers gathered across the street as 18 members of Tatum's squad bore the casket to the grave.

Among the prominent coaches present were Bud Wilkinson of Oklahoma, Bear Bryant of Alabama, Andy Gustafson of Miami (Fla.) Frank Howard of Clemson, Paul Amen of Wake Forest, Warren Giese of South Carolina, Eddie Teague of The Citadel and Tommy Mont, a former assistant to Tatum at Maryland.

Other sports world figures included Maryland Athletic Director Bill Coby, retired Southern Conference Commissioner Wallace Wade, North Carolina State Athletic Director Roy Clogston and Duke Athletic Director Ed Cameron.

Cards Score Two In 10th To Beat Bums

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The St. Louis Cardinals scored two unearned runs in the 10th inning as Los Angeles catcher John Roseboro made two errors for a 4-2 victory over the second-place Dodgers.

The Dodgers remained 2½ games back of the first-place San Francisco Giants, who lost to Chicago.

Don Blasingame, leading off the 10th for St. Louis, hit a slow roller in front of the plate. Roseboro fielded the ball and threw it into right field, Blasingame moving to second.

Bill White's triple scored Blasingame with the tie-breaking run and White scored when Roseboro fumbled the ball at home after pitcher Clem Labine fielded Ken Boyer's grounder and threw to the plate.

Joe Cunningham pulled the Cardinals into a 2-2 tie in the eighth with a bases empty homer. It was his fourth of the year.

The Cards got their first run in the fifth, when Hal Smith singled, moved to third on a throwing error by Roseboro and scored on Blasingame's single.

Los Angeles got both its runs in the first inning. Duke Snider drove in one with a single and the other scored on an infield out.

Lindy McDaniel, who relieved Cardinal starter Larry Jackson in the seventh, pitched shutout ball for four innings and won his ninth game. He has lost 10.

Starter Roger Craig, who went 9 1-3 innings for Los Angeles, suffered his second loss against five victories.

Jordan Meets Art Aragon In Non-Title Go

LOS ANGELES (AP) — World welterweight champion Don Jordan and Art Aragon, onetime Los Angeles Golden Boy, will meet in a 10-round non-title bout here Aug. 25, matchmaker Jackie Leonard said Saturday.

Leonard, matchmaker for Hollywood Legion Stadium, said the fight will be staged in Los Angeles' Wrigley Field with seats scaled from $3.50 to $15.

He said the two fighters have settled for a 30-30 split of the gate, which Leonard hopes will hit $100,000.

The bout has the approval of the California Athletic Commission, which earlier rejected Aragon for a title go with his fellow townsman. Aragon, now 31 and unranked, beat the 24-year-old Jordan twice before the latter became champion. They were 10-round decisions June 2, 1955, and Dec. 15 of the same year.

Jordan took the title from Virgil Akins in a 15-rounder here last Dec. 5.

No Races Today

Track owner O. O. Cloyd announced yesterday races would not be held at Twin City Speedway today because of rain.

Yanks Finally Tip Tigers On Berra's Home Run, 9-8

By DAVE DILES

DETROIT (AP) — Yogi Berra walloped a two-run homer in the ninth inning that gave the jittery New York Yankees a 9-8 decision over the Detroit Tigers Saturday in a frantic baseball contest witnessed by 26,530.

Mickey Mantle, who could not get the ball past the pitcher's mound in four previous at bats, set the stage for Berra's climactic smash by beating out a bouncer to third base by an eyelash.

The Yankees boosted their margin over the fifth place Tigers to two games.

They stumbled and fumbled around for more than three hours in this wild exhibition before gaining the decision. The Yankees handed the Tigers five unearned runs and committed five errors, three of them by third baseman Hector Lopez. A two-out bobble by Lopez gave Detroit two runs in the seventh and another two-out fumble let in an eighth inning run.

Lopez also threw away Coot Veal's bounder leading off in the ninth, but the Detroit shortstop was out trying to reach second base. On that play, Veal crashed into first baseman Bill Skowron, who was making his first appearance in the New York line-up since July 11.

Skowron, who had been out with an ailing back, suffered a broken left wrist.

Bobby Richardson and Fritz Brickell hit their first major league home runs for the Yankees before Berra connected. The Yanks had the lead three times, the Tigers four times and there were two ties in the struggle.

Duke Maas, fourth Yankee pitcher, was the winner and Smith took the defeat. Smith was the fifth hurler to work for Detroit.

Sprint Ace Wants Crack At Pro Ball

SAN JOSE, Calif. (UPI)—Ray Norton, the world's fastest human, has announced he wants to take a crack at pro football.

Norton, a double victor against Russia last weekend in the 100 and 200, has informed San Jose State Coach Bob Titchenal he'll be out for the team come September so he can pick up some expereince before trying the pro brand of ball.

The lanky sprinter, who is a co-holder of the world's 100 - yard dash record at 9.3, has played only as a spot player for San Jose State. In his sophomore year his first ever on the gridiron, he was so green even his great speed couldn't win him a regular spot. Last season he missed the first four games due to track commitments.

This season, however, Norton says he is ready to go all season and will take the chance of risking injury.

McLISH, O'DELL, PASCUAL

Pitchers Added To AL All-Stars

BOSTON (AP) — Pitchers Cal McLish, Billy O'Dell and Camilo Pascual have replaced three other hurlers on the American League squad for the second All - Star Game, President Joe Cronin announced today.

The contest will be played at Los Angeles, Aug. 3.

Manager Casey Stengel, field boss of the defending world champion New York Yankees, has inserted Cleveland's McLish, Baltimore's O'Dell and Washington's Pascual in place of Jim Bunning of Detroit, Whitey Ford of New York and Billy Pierce of Chicago.

The latter were on the squad for the first All - Star Game at Pittsburgh, July 7, won by the Nationals 5-4.

True to his word that he would shake up the team, Stengel also added three outfielders when the squad limit was raised from 25 to 28 players for the second game. The additional fly chasers include Bob Allison of Washington, Kansas City's Roger Maris and Gene Woodling of Baltimore.

The rest of the squad remains the same as it appeared in Pittsburgh including pitchers Bud Daley of Kansas City, Ryne Duren of New York, knuckleballer Hoyt Wilhelm of Baltimore and Chicago's veteran Early Wynn.

Boston's Ted Williams, picked for the 15th year on an All-Star squad, Rocky Colavito and Minnie Minoso of Cleveland, Mickey Mantle of New York and the Detroit tandem of Al Kaline and Harvey Kuenn complete the outfield.

The nine infielders are Luis Aparicio and Nellie Fox, Chicago; Harmon Killebrew and Roy Sievers, Washington; Vic Power, Cleveland; Frank Malzone and Pete Runnels, Boston; Gil McDougald and Bill Skowron, New York.

Stengel is bringing Frank Crosetti of the Yankees and Cookie Lavagetto of Washington as his new set of coaches. The batting practice pitchers will be Truman Clevenger of Washington and Johnny Cooney of Chicago while the batting practice catcher will be New York's Ralph Houk.

Aussies Beat Canada; Gain Zone Finals

MONTREAL (AP)—Neale Fraser, Australia's most experienced amateur tennis player, forgot all about his throbbing appendix Saturday and combined with Roy Emerson to defeat Canada 6-3, 6-3, 6-1 in the decisive doubles of the North American Zone Davis Cup semifinals.

By Virtue of its victory, Australia qualified to meet Cuba here next week end in the zone finals. That winner then will advance to the interzone final against the European Zone champion at Philadelphia Aug. 7-9.

The Canadian pair of Don Fontana and Bob Bedard was on the defenisve throughout and scored only one service break in the entire match, that against Emerson in the third set.

Capt. Harry Hopman of the Australians was able to start his Wimbledon doubles champions when Fraser reported that his appendix wasn't troubling him today. Fraser was handicapped at Mexico City last week end and was not named to play Friday when Australia swept the two opening singles matches. Emerson played in Fraser's place and whipped Bedard in straight sets. Twenty-year-old Rod Laver won the other from Fontana.

Italy, defending European Zone champion, likely will be the team to make the trip to Philadelphia. The Italians took a 2-0 lead over Spain in their rain-delayed series at Milan Saturday. Orlando Siroal completed his conquest of Juan Manuel Couder 2-6, 8-6, 7-5, 2-6, 6-4 and Nicola Pietrangeli defeated Andres Gimeno 8-6, 6-3, 6-3.

Sirola was leading Couder 3-2 in the fifth set when rain intervened Friday. The doubles will be played Sunday with the remaining singles on Monday.

Jurges Hotly Denies Sox Lack Hustle

KANSAS CITY (AP) — In a tense press conference with all his players present, Manager Billy Jurges of the Boston Red Sox Saturday night declared deep resentment over a published interview with an unnamed player.

The story, written by Ed Rummil of the Christian Science Monitor, accused several of the last-place Red Sox with not hustling.

"I'd like to know the name of the player who gave out the story," stormed Jurges, inviting the man to identify himself at the clubhouse meeting prior to the game with Kansas City.

There was no response from the players.

"Whoever he is," Jurges continued, "maybe he should be the manager of this club. Or possibly he should be the general manager if he knows so much."

Rummil broke in and said the player had not come to him to volunteer the opinions quoted freely in the story.

"I went to the player," Rummil said, "and all he did was answer my questions."

Jurges said he believed every member of the club was hustling and he deeply resented the story which said "Too many men in key spots just don't care whether school keeps or not."

The unnamed player also was quoted as doubting that Jurges could "rule with an iron fist" and shake up the club.

"I see no reason why players cannot be contacted and stories written about them," Jurges said. "But if any writer wants to know about the club itself, whether any player is not hustling, I want him to come to me.

"My door is always open and I feel that I should be the one to be consulted about such matters."

Veteran George Blanda Retires

RENSSELAER, Ind. (AP) — Veteran Chicago Bear quarterback George Blanda, holder of the National Football League record for consecutive extra points, is retiring from football, the team announced Saturday.

Blanda, who kicked 156 straight extra points between 1951 and 1956, will devote all his time to his work with a Chicago trucking firm. He played 10 years with the Bears.

The Bears, meanwhile, began running through plays as most of the team's veterans arrived Saturday at the St. Joseph's College training camp. Rookies have been at the camp since the beginning of the week.

Coach George Halas will hold three sessions a day, two outdoor drills and one lecture session each evening. Contact plays will not start for about 10 days, a team spokesman said.

MOUNT PROSPECT OPEN

Wright Sets Pace By Single Stroke

MOUNT PROSPECT, Ill. (AP) —National Open champion Mickey Wright carved four stroked off par with a 70 Saturday for a 36-hole total of 145 to take the halfway lead in the $20,000 Mount Prospect Women's Open Golf Tournament.

Pressing the 24-year-old blonde from Bonita, Calif., was Betsy Rawls with a competitive course record of 69 for 146, a total matched by Louise Suggs with her second successive 73.

The 31 - year - old Miss Rawls, winner of six tourneys this year, including the Ladies PGA title, completely tamed the 6,421-yard par 37-37—74 Mount Prospect course. She hit 17 greens in regulation, had five one-putt greens, found the rough only three times and never was trapped in a 34-35—69 effort.

The old course record of 71 was set by Beverly Hanson in Wednesday's pro-amateur event. Also bettering that mark was 45-year-old Fay Crocker of Uruguay, the 1955 U.S. Open champion, whose 70 gave her 148.

Six pros were bunched only three strokes apart in the chase for the distaff side's biggest winning payoff of $6,500.

Grouped with Miss Crocker at 148 were Patty Berg, who double bogeyed the last hole after hitting the sand to author a 73; and Miss Hanson with a 72.

Currently, Miss Rawls leads the LPGA money winners with $13,154, followed by Miss Wright with $12,482 and Miss Suggs with $11,764.

The $6,500 top prize to be awarded to the winner in Monday's windup is the equivalent of the amount that would be won by taking about four other tournaments on the women's circuit.

Three strokes behind the 148 group at 151 were Kathy Cornelius with a second round of 72, Jo-Ann Prentice also with 72 and Mary Lena Faulk with 75.

Miss Suggs, the first round leader, had her downfall on the 176-yard ninth hole. Her tee shot was trapped and her explosion out went into another trap. She settled for a double bogey 5 for an outgoing 37 and came back with 36.

Miss Wright had but one bogey on her 34-36—70 round.

The leaders:

Mickey Wright	75-70—145
Louise Suggs	73-73—146

Endine Takes Upset Victory In Delaware

STANTON, Del. (AP)—Endine, winner of only one race this year, carried the silks of the Christiana Stable to an unprecedented second straight victory Saturday in the $155,000 Delaware Handicap, richest race in the world for fillies and mares.

The crowd of 24,020 paid little attention to Endine, who ran as an entry with Mooring Stable's Tempted. But the Christiana-Mooring entry went off as co-favorite with J. Graham Brown's Bornstar, mainly on the past performance of Tempted, easy winner here last week of the New Castle Handicap.

Oddly, the entry ran the same way it did last year in this 1¼ mile test for fillies and mars. Tempted was third in the 1958 edition of the Delaware and again wound up in the same position.

Ned W. Brent's 30-1 shot, Polamby, was a driving second. Bornastar, 1958 mare handicap champion, was fourth.

Endine, 5-year-old chestnut mare ridden by jockey Paul J. Bailey, won by half a length in 2:03 3-5 and earned $108,312 for Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lunger of Wilmington, De., owners of Christiana. The entry returned $8.50, $5.00 and $6.40.

FOUL CLAIM DISALLOWED

Dancer Captures Monmouth 'Cap

By JOHN CHANDLER

OCEANPORT, N.J. (AP) — Sword Dancer sliced through what seemed an almost impossible wall of horses at the top of the stretch Saturday, and under a masterful ride by Willie Showmaker pulled away for victory in the $113,750 Monmouth Handicap at Monmouth Park.

No sooner had the numbers gone up on the board, than jockey Howard Grant astride the second horse, Amerigo, claimed foul against Sword Dancer.

The claim, however, was not allowed after a study of the movies. Sword Dancer finished two lengths ahead of Amerigo. It was another 1½ lengths back to Talent Show.

Sword Dancer, owned by the Brookmeade Stable of Isabel Dodge Sloane, is a leading contender for the 3-year-old championship. He won the classic Belmont Stakes after finishing second in the Kentucky Derby and Preakness.

This was the second time Sword Dancer had gone out of his division to challenge the older handicap horses. He beat them in the $100,000 Metropolitan Handicap at Belmont May 3, in which Talent Show, owned by Ada L. Rice, Chicago, was third.

Amerigo is owned by Mrs. Tilyou Christopher and was beaten by a nose by Hillsdale several weeks ago in the $100,000 Californian at Hollywood Park.

Grant claimed that Sword Dancer bothered Amerigo near the turn for home, but the stewards said they saw no foul. They said Amerigo probably ran up on the heels of Nickel Boy.

Sword Dancer, a handsome chestnut son of Sunglow-Highland Fling, is only the second 3-year-old to wallop his elders in this race. Furthermore, the other was Greek Ship, another Brookmeade Stable colt, who did it in 1950.

Shoemaker hustled Sword Dancer under the wire in 2:05 flat on a track made slow by the week's heavy rains. But, before the end of the 1¼ mile journey, Willie had to do some lightning calculations to get to the winner's circle.

Air Pilot, the other half of Mrs. Rice's entry, went to the lead soon after the start and was piling it on passing the stands the first time where Sword Dancer was fifth.

Heading into the backstretch with about ¾ of a mile to travel, Larry Gilligan still had Air Pilot on the front end. Plion was second, followed by Oh Johnny, Talent Show, Portersville and Sword Dancer.

Air Pilot, Oh Johnny and Plion were neck and neck around the last turn, with Talent Show coming up on the outside. Sword Dancer was on the rail, with no place to go but outside.

Willie waited, but no hole opened. So suddenly with a quarter of a mile to go, he took the Dancer out around Talent Show, Air Pilot, Oh Johnny and Plion.

But it still looked like the Wall of China confronting the little Sword Dancer. Then a hole opened between Talent Show and Babu, who was further out. Shoemaker gunned Sword Dancer through, set sail for the wire and with an eighth of a mile left there was no doubt who was going to take this rich race.

Talent Show was 2½ lengths in front of Babu at the finish, while trailing along in order were Nickel Boy, Air Pilot, Plion, Oh Johnny, One-Eyed King, and Portersville.

The crowd of 31,962 bet Sword Dancer heavily, and he paid $3.20, $2.60 and $2.20. Amerigo returned $6.40 and $2.20, and the Talent Show - Air Pilot entry was $2.20.

13TH WIN

Burdette Blanks Pittsburgh, 3-0

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Fidgety Lew Burdette tossed a four-hitter for his 13th victory Saturday as the Milwaukee Braves strengthened their hold on third place by blanking the Pittsburgh Pirates 3-0.

Burdette, who had lost five of his last six outings, was in complete command, allowing only one runner to advance as far as third base. It was the second four-hit shutout for the Braves over the Pirates within 24 hours. Juan Pizarro turned the trick Friday night.

Hammerin' Hank Aaron, the National League batting leader, made his major league debut as a third baseman, filling in for the injured Eddie Mathews. Hank collected two hits in three official times at bat but was the cause of great alarm for a split second in the sixth inning. Aaron was hit on the back of the head by a fast ball thrown by Vernon Law and dropped to the ground. However, he was saved from serious injury by his plastic helmet and hopped to his feet unhurt.

Law, now 11-6, gave up only five hits before retiring for a pinch hitter in the eighth. One of the three runs off him was unearned as a result of his own throwing error.

The Braves scored the first run in the fourth. Aaron opened with a single, moved to third on Joe Adcock's single and scored as Wes Covington hit into a double play.

Johnny Logan's homer over the left field fence in the fifth, his 11th, made it 2-0.

The Braves added an unearned run in the seventh. Covington beat out a bunt down the first base line and after Lee Maye fanned, Law fielded Logan's chopper and threw past second in an attempt to force Covington. Del Crandall's sacrifice fly scored Covington from third.

Legion Game Washed Out; Reset Today

Monroe's first round state American Legion baseball playoff opener with Industrial Sheet Metal at Shreveport was called off yesterday because of rain and has been reset for 2:30 this afternoon.

Monroe manager Ralph "Red" Sims said the second game of the best-of-three series would probably be played here Monday night at 7:45.

Legion baseball rules specify a day layoff between first and second games of playoffs but Sims said the rule would probably be waived since the two teams must complete their series by Wednesday.

Lefthander L. M. Welch or righty Neal Gunn, both 5-1 for the year, will start for the local Brown - Rivers - Scogin nine while Kyle Stephenson (6-2) is expected to throw for the Shreveport club.

MACKAY GAINS FINALS

Top-Seeded Olmedo Upset By Vermaak In Lawn Play

HAVERFORD, Pa. (AP) — Ian Vermaak of South Africa scored a major surprise Saturday by upsetting top-seeded Alex Olmedo, Wimbledon titleholder from Los Angeles, 6-2, 6-4, 6-2 in reaching the final round of the 60th Pennsylvania Lawn Tennis Championships.

A capacity crowd of 2,500 at the Merion Cricket Club saw Barry MacKay of Dayton, Ohio, fill the other place in the final round in defense of his title by winning from Ramanathan Krishnan of India 2-6, 6-4, 6-2, 6-1.

MacKay, a member of the 1958 U.S. Davis Cup team, will play Vermaak, a South African Davis Cupper for the title Sunday.

The loss for Olmedo was his first on grass since he won at Wimbledon, and his first setback since his listless performance in losing to Abe Segal of South Africa in the quarter-finals of the U.S. Clay Court championships last week in River Forest, Ill.

The red - haired Vermaak outclassed Olmedo all the way. He was sure in his placements from deep court, and brought off effective volleying too.

He won five straight games in taking the first set after Olmedo led 2-1. Olmedo also led 2-1 in the second set but gave ground as Vermaak went ahead 4-2 and won the set in the tenth game by holding Olmedo to one point.

Games in the third set followed service to 2-1 in favor of Olmedo. Vermaak then mounted a strong attack, outplaced Olmedo in the forecourt exchanges and won five straight games for the victory.

Krishnan, placing his shots well down the line, won the first set with a run of six straight games after MacKay led 2-0. The Indian continued to hold an edge in the second until 4-3, after which he was held to two points as MacKay bore down and won three games to square the match.

MacKay also won the first two games of the third set and quickly ran up a lead of 5-1. After Krishnan served for 2-5, MacKay rallied from 15-40 in the eighth game to win the set.

MacKay also won the first two games of the fourth set. Krishnan served for 1-2, and then did not get another game as MacKay put on the pressure and ran out the match.

In the women's singles, Sandra Reynolds and Renne Schuurman, both of South Africa created the first all-foreign final by coming from behind to defeat two California opponents. They also will play for the title Sunday.

More Entries Sought For District Meet

Several more teams are needed for the District Two Softball Tournament for men to be held here the week of Aug. 3, assistant recreation director Jackie Neal said yesterday.

The tourney is open to teams from Caldwell, East Carroll, Ouachita, Richland, Union and West Carroll parishes. The winner will be eligible to compete in the annual state tournament slated for Aug. 14-16 in Alexandria.

Teams already lined up for the affair include CIF Sporting Goods, West Monroe Baptist Church, Sampognaro's Pharmacy and Monroe Auto Mart. Neal urges teams from the City League and Church Leagues, as well as out of town squads to register before the July 31 deadline.

The tourney will be a double elimination series and will be played on the Selman Field diamond. An entrance fee of $10 will be charged and all gate receipts after expenses will go to the winning team to defray costs of attending the Alexandria meet.

Anyone disiring further information should contact District Commissioner Neal at the Monroe Community Center, 103 Catalpa St., or phone FA 2-2170.

Old Timers Hold Reins As Pro Gridders Open Camp

By EARL WRIGHT

Hopeful rookies are sweating in the National Football League's 12 training camps—and any good quarterbacks among them can buy a split-level ranch house and order the wife a sable coat.

The rugged professional league has trouble finding good quarterbacks. Any young signal - caller who wins a berth on an NFL squad is practically assured of better than a decade of employment at good wages.

Every year the press notices make a bevy of college quarterbacks sound like combinations of Sammy Baugh, Sid Luckman and Otto Graham. But most of the NFL clubs begin training again this season with the same graybeards listed as their top signal-callers.

They're going to give 29-year-old Frank Gifford, an all-league halfback, a chance to win the quarterback job. But their No. 1 quarterback, until someone proves otherwise, is 38-year-old Charely Conerly. Conerly is a quiet, gray-haired athlete who was fighting in World War II as a Marine corporal when most of the current NFL rookies were in kindergarten.

It's virtually the same story with the Pittsburgh Steelers, Detroit Lions, Philadelphia Eagles and San Froncisco Forty-Niners.

Pittsburgh figures it has a good chance to win the Eastern title this year, mainly because of Bobby Layne. Layne is 32. He also is a master quarterback. The Steelers got him from the Lions last year and were undefeated in their last seven games after Layne became familiar with the playing form of his new teammates.

Layne barks like a first sergeant while moving his receivers around and the Eagles have a 33-year-old quarterback who even find time to sass the opposition in a game. He is Norm Van Brocklin. Van Brocklin is one of the game's top passers and figures to give Philadelphia's rivals some tough afternoons again this year.

Detroit has two young quarterbacks in Earl Morrall and Jerry Reichow but they have to prove they can do the job better than 31-year-old Tobin Rote, one of the league's best all - around signal-callers. Rote meets the current requirements for an NFL quarterback because he can throw or run with the ball.

The Forty-Niners have one of the few young quarterbacks who has made an impression in the league in recent years, John Brodie, 24. But the "old master" of their quarterback corps is Y. A. Tittle, 32.

Conerly, Layne, Van Brocklin, Tittle and Rote represent 52 years of pro quarterback experience and are old by football standards. But the job they handle is so demanding that younger men again will have trouble ousting them from the starting lineup this season.

Coach Jim Lee Howell, who will give Gifford a crack at Conerly's job, tabs Brodie and Bart Starr of the Green Bay Packers as two of the league's better young signal-callers.

"And I still think Milt Plum is a good quarterback," Howell said with a grin.

Plum is the young Cleveland passer who had such a tough time on consecutive Sunday's last December while the Giants took the Eastern Division title from the Browns.

"Our defense overwhelmed Cleveland's offensive line and didn't give Plum much change," Howell said.

True. But one play in the Dec. 21 playoff game showed why NSL coaches stick with their old quarterbacks. The wrowns were on the New York four yard line when the Giants chased Plum and threw him for a 12-yard loss. A Conerly or Layne would have deliberately thrown the ball away in order to keep in on the New York four.

The "old pro" quarterbacks are masters at deliberately grounding a pass. That's just one reason they make about $20,000 a season.

MILLION DOLLAR SCARE

Helmet Protects Aaron In Skulling

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The Milwaukee Braves received a million dollar scare Saturday when slugger Henry Aaron was hit on the head by a Vernon Law fast ball in the sixth inning of a 3-0 victory over Pittsburgh.

Aaron fell to the ground as if pole-axed, momentarily stunned. However, he shook off the cobwebs and trotted down to first base as the Braves heaved a sigh of relief.

The National League batting leader with a .362 average was saved from seriouus injury by his plastic batting helmet which was cracked by the impact. Aaron, who made his professional debut as a third baseman to fill in for the injured Eddie Mathews, went the entire distance after being struck, collecting a long double to right center in the eighth.

However, after the game he complained of a slight headache and was ordered to Milwaukee Hospital for precautionary X rays. A spokesman said there was no evidence of a fracture and Aaron was released.

"The ball glanced off the top of my helmet," Aaron said. "I was stunned but probably more scared than anything. I was scared as hell. Its the first time in my life I've been hit on the head."

Hammering Hank absolved Law of any intent to hit him.

"I don't think he threw at me" Aaron said. "He was trying to pitch me inside all day."

Aaron, the National League All-Star right fielder, was all smiles as he talked about his play at third base.

He handled four chances flawlessly, the first a great backhanded stop to throw out Dick Groat in the third inning.

"It's the first time I've played there since high school," said the 25-year-old native of Mobile, Ala. "It certainly was strange and I was a little concerned at first but I settled down once the game had started and felt fine after throwing out Groat. I wasn't worried about ground balls—it was the different type of throw you have to make in the infield and that one play did it for me."

BAGDAD OUT OF MONEY

Waltz Registers Surprise Victory

By TED MEIER

NEW YORK (AP) — Waltz led all the way to register a mild surprise victory in the $82,100 Dwyer Handicap at Jamaica Saturday as Bagdad, 4-5 favorite, finished out of the money.

Under a masterful ride by Sammy Boulmetis, the 3-year-old gelding owned by W. Arnold Hanger and trained by canny Max Hirsch, outfinished Middle Brother in a sterling stretch duel. Waltz won by a head in track record time of 1:54 4-5 for the mile and three-sixteenths.

Imon finished fourth, Bagdad a disappointing fifth, and Audience last in the six-horse field.

Waltz, the second choice, paid $6.80, $4.90 and $3.90. Middle Brother returned $6.40 and $4.40, Hoist Away $5.20.

A crowd of 27,657 saw Waltz, breaking from the outside post position, run like in his front-running victories in the Jersey Stakes and the Leonard Richards in May and June. He reeled off the first quarter in :23 4-5, the half in :47 1-5, the 6 furlongs in 1:10 4-5 and the mile in 1:35 3-5 in shattering Lucky Draw's previous track record of 1:55 1-5.

Coming into the stretch Waltz held a length lead over Middle Brother. At the sixteenth pole Waltz appeared beaten as Middle Waltz carried 121 pounds to 124 for the odds-on Bagdad, who did not show the form he displayed in finishing second to Sword Dancer in the Belmont Stakes and in winning the Hollywood Derby in his last outing.

Boulmetis was a happy jockey in the winner's circle.

"Mr. Hirsch left instructions that if we got off on top to stay there, but not to kill the horse," he said. "This horse runs wonderfully. He can put in a slow quarter and come again. The race went exactly the way we wanted it to."

8TH STRAIGHT FOR CAL

McLish Beats Solons, 8-1, To Become Top AL Winner

CLEVELAND (AP) — Cleveland's Cal McLish became the winningest pitcher in the American League as he turned back the Washington Senators 8-1 on seven hits Saturday. The right-hander is now 13-3.

It was the eighth straight victory for McLish and the third straight for the Indians.

Jim Piersall led a 13-hit attack with three hits, including a three-run homer.

McLish lost his shutout when Jim Lemon cracked his 22nd home run in the seventh inning.

McLish now has pitched 8 one-run games this season and still is searching for his first ALs shutout. He pitched one eight years ago while with the Chicago Cubs in the National League.

Piersall, subbing in center field for the team's leading hitter, Tito Francona, who suffered a pulled muscle two days ago, responded with a single, double and his third home run. Minnie Minoso had three singles and Vic Power extended his hitting streak through 11 games with a fourth - inning double.

The Indians tagged Bill Fischer, the Washington starter, for five runs in the first four innings and sent him to his fifth defeat in 13 decisions.

Cleveland jumped off to a 2-0 lead in the second inning on an infield hit by Jim Baxes, Piersall's pop double to right field and McLish's pop fly which went for a single when Bob Allison and Lenny Green collided.

Singles by Minoso and Rocky Colavito produced another run in the third. Colavito was trapped as he rounded first, but got back safely and Minoso came home on the rundown.

Singles by Piersall and Minoso and Power's double in the fourth gave Cleveland a 5-0 lead. Piersall homered off relief pitcher Hal Woodeshick in the fifth, following a single by George Strickland and a walk to Baxes.

Southpaw Strikeout Artist

Lefty Fred Southerland, one of the La-Ark League's top moundsmen with a perfect 3-0 record, has been named to pitch for the Monroe Sports against West Monroe at Legion Stadium today. Southerland, a former Neville High School athlete, struck out 13 batters in a five-inning contest against Bastrop earlier this season. He fanned 12 while beating West Monroe, 3-1, in their last meeting with the Sports. (Staff photo by Jim St. Julien)

Latins On Card At Local Arena

Two fiery Latin misses with curves — and muscles — tangle in a special event at B&B Arena Monday night, one of three wrestling bouts on tap.

China Mira of Cuba and the "Mexican Spitfire," Rita Cortez, will meet in the 45-minute special event, slated for two-out-of-three falls.

A tag team match featuring a former state champion and the present titleholder holds main event billing on the card while a 15-minute affair will open the program.

Chris Belkas, who beat Firpo Zybysko for the state title a little over a week ago, is paired with former state titlist Bill Barney of West Monroe against Mickey Sharp and Golden Apollo.

This little get-together will have an hour time limit with two falls to win.

Belkas and Sharpe will class in the 15-minute opener.

Belkas made his local debut last week and promptly ran afoul of Sharp. Mickey objected to Belkas' treatment of fellow villain Carlos Mendoza and jumped into the ring several times, finally drawing the ire of the referee.

Barney laid away Sharp with a haymaker or two in their match last week and the two are poised for another free-for-all.

The Golden Apollo, a muscular gold paint and blonde bleach, lost to Jerry Miller in his first appearance here last week.

TIMELY HITTING

15 Phils Fan But Redlegs Fall, 6-3

CINCINNATI (AP) — Fifteen Philadelphia Phils went down on strikes Saturday but they still came up with the timely hitting, including three important doubles, that meant a 6-3 victory over the Cincinnati Reds.

Joe Nuxhall, the Reds' starting hurler, struck out 11 in six innings but allowed five of the Phil runs before he bowed out for a pinch hitter in the sixth.

Don Cardwell, the winning pitcher, allowed only four hits through seven innings. He was relieved by Ray Semproch after being hit with a pitched ball. Cardwell's chores were made easier by two double plays.

Willie Jones, a former Phil, hit into both, making it four in two games.

Rube Gomez finally bailed out Semproch in the ninth.

Nuxhall struck out two Phils in both the first and third but they got two runs in each inning.

In the first, the runs came on a walk to Richie Ashburn and doubles by Wally Post and Gene Freese. In the third, Post's single drove in two runs after Ashburn had beat out an infield hit and Ed Bouchee had doubled.

Nuxhall's final strikeout came in the sixth but it was after the Phils had scored again on a single by Freese, Harry Anderson's safe bunt and Joe Lonnett's single.

Vada Pinson's throwing error let the final Phil run in in the eighth.

Johnny Powers' pinch hit home run was Cincinnati's only run off Cardwell, but the Reds got two in the eighth off Semproch. Jerry Lynch's single drove them in after two singles and a walk had filled the bases.

Moore Resumes Training Today For Title Bout

MONTREAL (AP)—Light heavyweight champion Archie Moore flew back to Montreal Saturday night to resume training for his Aug. 12 defense against Canada's Yvon Durelle.

Moore will start training again Sunday. It was reported the champ still is seven pounds over the 175-pound class limit.

The champ left hurriedly early in the week when he was told his wife had undergone a serious operation in a San Diego, Calif., hospital. She is now off the danger list.

The bout has been postponed twice, once because of an injury to Moore's heel and later because of his wife's illness.

Two Games Still On La-Ark Slate

Water - soaked fields notwithstanding, officials still hope to play two La-Ark League games today at Monroe and Bastrop. Crossett and Oak Grove agreed to call off their scheduled contest.

West Monroe is slated to meet Monroe at Legion Stadium and Dubach is scheduled at Bastrop. Both games will start at 3 p.m.

Monroe manager Bob Carter said "If the sun shines Sunday, we hope to play the game."

At Bastrop, Lark president Carl Livingston said about the same thing. The Larks, with an outside chance for third place, hope to play several makeup games next week before Shaughnessy playoffs begin Friday, Livingston stated.

Bastrop is 2½ games out of third place with three games still unplayed. Dubach, the third place club, has played only 14 games of its 20-contest schedule.

Monroe has played 16 of its 20 games, winning 15 and losing only one. West Monroe has three games unplayed, and Crossett and Oak Grove six each.

Crossett manager Bill Jack Edwards said last night he dosen't plan to play any makeup games and the fifth place Millers have closed up shop for the season.

Unless Harold Moore's Bastrop club can squeeze into third, next Friday night's playoff openers should have Monroe vs. Bastrop and West Monroe vs. Dubach.

First round playoffs will go two-out-of-three and the finals three-out-of-five.

Southpaw Freddy Southerland, 3-0 for the season and 1-0 against West Monroe, is Monroe manager Bob Carter's choice to pitch against the Vols today. The young LSU hurler beat West Monroe, 3-1, earlier this year.

Another lefty, Jack Norman, who beat the Sports in the All-Star game, could be the West Monroe starter with Robert Bennett (1-1), Wayne Hendricks (4-1) or George Fruge (5-0) other possible choices. Norman is 2-1 for the year.

Dunce Cops Arlington On Stretch Drive

CHICAGO (AP) — Lightly regarded Dunce, bay colt son of Tom Fool-Ghazni, turned on a blistering stretch drive to capture the $140,425 Arlington Classic mile in Arlington Park Saturday.

Intentionally, the 2-5 favorite, placed third behind On-and-On in the seven horse field.

Claiborne Farm's Dunce, given a magnificent ride by Lois C. Cook, won by a length and a hall over On-and-On of Calumet Farm.

On-and-On placed second to Intentionally in the Warren Wright Memorial June 27 in Washington Park when Intentionally equalled Swaps' world mile mark of 1:33 1-5.

Dunce, winner of only four of 19 starts, captured the top purse of $78,475 in this feature for 3-year-olds. Dunce was clocked in 1:35 over a fast strip.

The crowd of 27,988 roared in surprise as Dunce came up from fourth at the head of the stretch and gradually wore down the pacesetting On-and-On, Intentionally and Top Charger.

With an eighth of a mile to go, it appeared Intentionally, ridden by the imported Willie Hartack, would hook up in a finish duel with On-and-On, ridden by Steve Brooks.

Built in the closing strides, it was the fast-moving Dunce who took complete control of the race which tied the 31-year-old classic's fastest time set by Errard King in 1934.

Dunce returned $14.60, $5.40 and $2.20. On-and-On's prices were $3.60 and $2.20. The favored Intentionally created a minus show pool of $734 in returning $2.20.

Hartack was aboard the luckless Intentionally, who carried 123 pounds, compared with 117 for his six rivals. Hartack replaced Intentionally's regular rider, the suspended Manuel Ycaza.

Fifth was Open View, followed by Die Hard and Fightin Indian.

Jockey Cook said of Dunce, "He sure likes to run that last quarter. This is my first $100,000 win, and boy, it sure feels good."

Hartack said of Intentionally, "We didn't have any trouble. The horse ran a game race."

Nine New Producers Seen Last Week In Local Area

Nine new producing wells were added to the roles of Monroe District completions last week, according to Duncan S. Cook, Louisiana Department of Conservation.

Cook also reported nine new locations, 30 active rigs and nine wells plugged and abandoned.

Last week's most prolific producer was Sklar Producing Co.'s H. W. Wright Jr. No. 4 in Mean Lake Field of Catahoula parish.

This well in Sec. 6-8-7E was flowing 50 barrels of gravity 42 petroleum per day through an 8-64 inch choke from perforations at 4380-81½ feet. Gas oil ratio was 200:1, tubing pressure 410 pounds and casing pressure 200 pounds.

In Georgetown Field of Grant parish W. L. Holmes' Tidwell No. 1 in Sec. 9-9-1E was completed to pump eight barrels daily from 1525-29 feet.

Pumping five barrels daily from 1511-13 feet was Thompson and Grezaffie's Winberry No. 2 in Sec. 18-10-2E of LaSalle parish in the Tullos Urania Field.

A gas distillate producer was the Southwest Nat'l Producing Co.'s Louisiana State University Unit No. 1 in Calhoun Field of Ouachita parish.

Located in Sec. 26-18-1E, the well was completed to flow 4,942 million cubic feet of gas and 996 barrels of distillate per day from the Davis Sand through a 17-64 inch choke. Shut in pressure was recorded at 5,800 pounds with an overflow of 13,000 milion cubic feet and a gas oil ratio of 4762:1. Gravity was 52.

Smaller Cars To Have Less Accessories

By JACK VANDENBERG
UPI Automotive Editor

DETROIT (UPI) — Buyers of the new American small cars which will be placed on the market this fall will not be able to get some of the accessories offered on larger cars even if they are willing to pay extra for them.

The heaviest casualties among the accessories on the small cars —Chevrolet's Corvair, Ford's Falcon and Plymouth's Valiant — will be the power accessories — power steering, power brakes and power windows.

Auto industry sources said none of the auto companies have made firm decisions on exactly what options will be available on the small cars but some pretty definite "tentative" decisions have been made.

For example, all three companies have ruled out power brakes as extra cost equipment on the cars. This means even the buyer who is willing to pay extra for this luxury will not be able to get it on a small car.

Tentatively, GM and Ford also have ruled out power steering on their small cars while Chrysler plans to make it available on the Valiant at extra cost.

None of the companies plans to offer power windows.

All the companies will offer back-up lights and turn signals, which are required by law in some states. Radios, heaters and automatic transmissions, the most popular extra-cost accessories on larger cars, also will be available on all of the small cars as optional equipment.

The swivel seats Chrysler Corp., introduced last year for its larger models will not be offered on the Valiant and the company still is debating whether to offer windshield washers.

Items with such safety advantages as seat belts, those with obvious utilitarian value such as clocks and ornamental items which have been widely accepted such as white sidewall tires also will be offered as extra cost equipment for those who want them.

Some items which have secondary importance but have been widely accepted, such as a sun visor on the passenger's side, will be offered as optional equipment to keep the basic price of the cars down.

Chevrolet, which will have its engine and most of its weight in the rear, claims the Corvair will handle as easily without power steering as the current larger cars do with the power assist. It claims the added weight in the rear will give the car better braking than a larger car with power brakes.

Stocks Surge On Despite Steel Strike

NEW YORK (AP)—A flock of healthy corporate earnings reports snapped the stock market out of its steel strike doldrums this week.

The rosy first-half profit picture of most companies apparently tempered investor anxiety about the economic backlash of a lengthy steel industry shutdown. The market had retreated last week with the onset of the steel strike.

Trading moved at a cautious pace, though volume quickened when prices pushed higher and dwindled during the declines.

The market began the week by lengthening the losses absorbed during the previous week.

But prices recouped much of this lost ground with brisk rallies on Tuesday and Wednesday. The market then dug in to cement these gains on Thursday and Friday.

Over-all, The Associated Press average of 60 stocks stepped up $1.40 to $231.80. The Dow Jones industrial index, which hit a new closing peak of 664.63 after the mid-week recovery, added 6.59

RUNNING THE SCALES

With JOHN CALE

The American industrial and cultural extravaganza was scheduled to get underway in Moscow this week as sort of an answer to the Soviet display of like dimensions in New York which opened several weeks ago. Both the expositions represent government and industry trying to put on a show.

At this writing, the accounts from the Russian capital pointed to anxious moments as to the exposition's opening on time. Many displays in the big building were not ready as late as Thursday.

This would mean frustration to the many Muscovites who had tickets for opening day as well as a beating for American punctuality. These expositions are built around a theme of material accomplishment and both nations have plenty to show.

There is a loss of perspective in this sort of thing when the countries involved assume the attitude: "This is what our government provides for its people."

Both the United States and Russia would like to include this claim flying on a streamer just under the flags waving over the New York and Moscow exhibitions. But such is not actually the case.

In fact, one of the guiding principles of life in America has always been the freedom of one individual to better his own lot through his own efforts. And the Russians have not yet succeeded in doling out automobiles and rides on jet transports to all citizens.

CULTURE DEPARTMENT

Equally impressive are the cultural swapouts which have been stepped up between the United States and Russia during 1959. In fact, these performances are the more truthful expressions of the whole exposition program, which strives to prove the one country better than the other.

No conclusive proof can be accumulated in this manner, just as a matter of this sort is never settled by a war. In this light, the battle of accomplishments between Russia and the United States has been compared to two fueding Indian tribes. One made cushions out of alligator backs, the other from porcupine hides. Both tribes were proud of their products, but neither could afford to make extensive use of them. So they passed them around to impress one another.

LOCAL EVENTS

If you missed the opening performance of the summer production of the Northeast Speech Department, "Out of the Frying Pan," there is to be a second run tomorrow evening. The performance will be in the air-conditioned recital hall of the Fine Arts building on the Northeast campus and curtain time is 8:00 p.m.

The showing of an all water color art exhibit by Mrs. Edward Dalton, Monroe artist, attracted wide attention last week. The show includes about 25 of Mrs. Dalton's works in this particular medium and represents several different styles.

Of particular interest is the use of definite color and line in these paintings rather than the "suggestion" or "illusion" techniques so often associated with water colors. The paintings will remain on display the remainder of this month in the Fine Arts building at Northeast.

-THE ARTS-

NON-THEORETICAL

Progress Of United States

IMAGE OF AMERICA. By R. L. Bruckberger. Translated from French by C. G. Paulding and Virgilia Peterson. Viking. $4.50.

The Europeans who came to settle here found something not within their previous experience or conception, says this author. They came to a virgin land, for their purposes an unoccupied land, but a land where opportunity was completely unlimited, where they were as never before on their own. They could begin with a clean slate.

In other words, there were no theories to fit this situation, they carried on in a practical way. They were doers, not thinkers; they experimented; it was a muddling through.

Father Bruckberger, a Dominican who lived here eight years, praises this muddling, this non-thinking, non-theoretical progress for guiding us, as he sees it, to a unique position in the modern world. We have accomplished a social miracle, and what's more, he says, we don't really know it. But he tells us.

He bases his bold and provocative picture mainly on three men — Henry Charles Carey, whom Marx called "the only American economist of importance;" Henry Ford and Samuel Gompers. Carey's economic theories had an evangelistic flavor; he was not trying to make society richer or laborer or employer more powerful; he was trying merely to better the lot of the individual man too much buffeted by brute inhuman forces. Ford, says Father Bruckberger, made the year 1914 memorable — and he doesn't forget World War I — by producing autos for the benefit of all the people and at the same time paying his worker so much by his new $5-a-day scale as to emancipate him from the proletariat and elevate him to consumer. Gompers, accepting Socialist ideals, rejected Socialist methods; he was the laboring man in the labor movement, not the outsider like Lenin. He brushed aside politics and alien theorizing and devoted himself exclusively to the immediate, tangible, commensurable problems of American labor on the American scene.

Thus, Father Bruckberger concludes, the world is not forced to choose any longer between the Marxist Socialist way of revolution and the ruthless capitalist way of suppression. The alternative is the American way, not capitalism in his view but an indigenous humanistic resolution of the age-old rich-poor, boss-worker antagonism. "The American economic and social revolution is the only revolution in modern times to have achieved its aim."

He goes on to say with considerable asperity that however illustrious our heritage, we are not living up to it now; we stupidly let the Reds take the propaganda initiative, and the chances of the civilized Western humane culture against the other three-quarters of the world diminish instead of increasing. But it is not his warning that interests me so much—stern though it is, we have been warned before — as it is his uniquely complimentary picture — all of it by the way turned into a very sympathetic English by the husband-wife translator team. I'm not sure Americans have been so unaware as the author thinks of the significance of the Declaration of Independence, nor that our Revolutuion was made by as large a group as he claims, nor that labor would so readily accept his estimate of its good fortune. Most of all, it is alarming to reflect that, if our progress was, as he argues, sort of witless or at least haphazard; that is, if we got where we are by chance, then maybe we have not developed the brains required to guide ourselves in this immediate pressing crisis, our worst and most hazardous since it leaves us no time any more to experiment with solutions. His very praise indicates we may have an excuse for being foolhardily complacent, though that's no justification for it.

But whether we quarrel seriously or not, this is a remarkably fresh assessment of the unprecedented American success. We can only hope that if he is right about our past, he's wrong about the dangers of our present.

Thomas; Novel Of Great Love, Great Tragedy

THOMAS By Nathaniel Christensen (Vantage Press, $3.75).

This novel of love and great tragedy extends a ray of realistic hope to all who seek the light. It is a mirror held before today's Christian, so that he may see himself. Thomas is that mirror.

Named after the great doubter, this Thomas also becomes a doubter. He then finds his way out of the mire of frustrations, fears, wars, politics and false Christianity.

Woven into the story line are all the experiences of mankind; birth, murder, suicide, violence, wars grief. . . and above all, the soothing caress of love.

Summertime Selections

THE BOTTLETOP AFFAIR. By Gordon Cotler. Simon & Schuster, $3.50.

Lt. Merle Wye on a cushy Military Intelligence job in Hawaii discovers he's expendable: He's to be sent to a stodgy little island post as exchange for a good ballplayer needed badly by his present outfit.

But there are compensations: Nurse Mollie is to be sent there, too, and for once he has an assignment of some importance: A Japanese still loose on this island long ago reconquered keeps snitching Army supplies, like Cokes. The Navy and Army wrangle, love runs its familiar halting course, and by the time it's all over you've got agreeably through a couple more of these hot summertime hours.

The Run; Top Novel About The Alewives

THE RUN By John Hay (Doubleday $3.95). This excellent book explores one of the few remaining untouched pockets of the Atlantic coast—the marshes and ponds of Cape Cod.

Hay, a year-round Cape Codder, has recorded the annual run of the alewives (members of the herring family) from the ocean to their inland breeding grounds. In so doing, he recreates a fascinating and intricate world.

Man cannot explain the drive behind the alewives' migration, but can discribe all its mystery and symmetry.

The run of the alewives, complete in its own way, and filled with danger as well as beauty, is a kind of journey — a journey different from any other, yet, in its essentials, not unlike our own.

Novelist Slaughter

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — A man who quit the medical profession to become a writer so he would have more lesiure soon found he was involved in two to four books at once.

A result of this bear-by-the-tail situation is that Dr. Frank Slaughter, after 34 books in 18 years, is among the best selling authors in the country and perhaps the world.

Housewives, he says, can make or break an author because "they are the reading public."

His paperback reprints sell two million a year and all other editions including book clubs bring his total sales to over three million yearly. Only Erskine Caldwell and mystery writer Erle Stanley Gardner outsell him, Slaughter claims.

THREE FIELDS

He used to write fiction each morning, nonfiction each afternoon. Now to give his output variety and to keep his interest up he writes a Bibilical story, a modern medical story and a serious historical novel. But he is hunting for a fourth field.

His next book, "Lorena," a Civil War novel, will be published by Doubleday Aug. 6 and he has just completed "Pilgrims in Paradise," about a group of Pilgrims in the Bahamas in the 1600s.

The project uppermost in his mind is a story with a 2,000 B. C. setting.

Slaughter works 50 hours or more each week. He writes in longhand on a yellow tablet, dictates it each afternoon, gives it to a typist, then starts revisions.

CHANGES NEEDED

"There are not two consecutive sentences in the first draft which aren't revised," he says.

Slaughter's hands move constantly as he talks. Only now and then can one tell by his speech that he was brought up in North Carolina. He was born in 1908 in Washington, D. C.

His eyes behind rimless glasses are direct. He is extremely neat, does not drink or smoke but objects to neither and is a bargain book-hunter, keeping a constant lookout for reduced-priced source material.

Slaughter was graduated magma cum laude from Duke University in 1926 when he was 18; entered Johns Hopkins in 1926 and received his M. D. four years later. He was a Jacksonville surgeon when he was commissioned a major in the medical corps in 1942. He came out of World War II a lieutenant colonel in 1945.

FIVE YEARS WRITING—$12

In 1935 he began writing as a hobby and in the next five years sold $12 worth of fiction. He has written two movies and two TV shows. He lectures; has written countless articles and some short stories; and has repeated college offers to teach fiction.

He would like to do a little teaching — if he can ever find time.

Slaughter thinks out his plot ahead of time but says it must come spontaneously or it is harsh. "Half my story problems solve themselves while I'm shaving — maybe its the hum of the motor.

"At times I've built historical fiction as I thought it might have been and then in later research found out it actually happened — you take a set of humans and they'll usually react in normal fashion under given circumstances."

CUTS 25 TO 30 PER CENT

His Biblical novels take about five months for the first draft, his others a month or so less. He writes 2,000 to 3,000 words a day; cuts 25 to 30 per cent out of his manuscripts for the finished product.

Slaughter never stops writing at the end of a sentence, paragraph or chapter. He stops in the middle "because when I take up work again I'm caught in the sweep of movement. It's very effective for me."

Over 25,000,000 of his books have been published in English and 16 foreign languages. He says his sales are increasing although he has reduced the emphasis on sex in recent years.

The story he likes best about himself concerns a drug store in West Chester, Pa. It has books arranged under three heads: "Fiction," "Non-Fiction;" and "Frank G. Slaughter."

Guide To Good Reading

By FRANCIS FLANDERS
Ouachita Parish Librarian

A book by Frank Slaughter is always eagerly received by the patrons of the Ouachita Parish Public Library. His latest book, Lorena" is just off the press. The scene is Georgia, just at the time Sherman made his famous march and the period of devestation which followed. It is certain to appeal to all readers who enjoyed "In a Dark Garden. "Advise and Consent" by Drury Allen is an informed book about what goes on behind the scenes at our nation's capital. It is a book that will enthrall, fascinate, puzzle and intrigue its readers and it promises to be very popular. For the audience who enjoyed "Comfort Me with Apples," Peter De Vries has a new title "The Tents of Wickedness. It will not appeal to everyone, but there are many who will thoroughly enjoy it.

Readers who would like a long contemporary American novel will be amply repaid if they read "Love and Money" by Noel Clad. It begins just before World War 1 and goes through the period of World War II. It's scene is New York and the book presents a realistic and fascinating picture of the period and the place. Four new mysteries are available this week. "Shadow of Guilt" is the title of the new book by Patrick Quentin. "Not Me Inspector" was written by Helen Reilly. "With this Ring" was written by Emilie Loring, while a posthumously published book by Mary Roberts Rinehart is "Miss Pinkerton," nurse detective.

Readers of factual material also have a wide choice this week. Gardners and flower arrangers will find several books to appeal to them. "Landscape Gardening and Tree Maintenance" by P. P. Pirone is very fine, "How to Make Money from Your Greenhouse" is a most valuable book by Peggy Schulz. "House Plants for the Indoor Gardener" is a new book published by the Better Homes and Gardens magazine. "Modern Art in Flower Arrangement" is the title of the new book by Emma H. Cyphers, while a more specialized book is "A Treasury of Rose Arrangements and Receipes" by Julia Clements. Business men will want to see "Increasing Pharmacy Profits" by Frank T. James and "The Development of American Industries" by John G. Glover. In the field of religion there are three new books, "Favorite Sermons of John A. Broadus" by V. L. Stanfield, "Now or Never" by Smiley Blanton and New Testament" by Frederick C. Grant.

One of the most beautiful books I have seen in a long time is "Gothic Europe" by Harold Busch. It is beautifully illustrated and will appeal to all who like the old world. Those who like to read plays will want to see "Requim for a Nun" by Ruth Ford, based on William Faulkner's book. In the field of history there are two new books "The Etruscans" by Raymond Bloch, a history of the people who inhabitated Italy, before the Romans and "Sarajevo" the account of the asassination which sparked World War I. The biographies are "King of Pontus" by Alfred Duggan; The Life of the Ancient King Mithradates and "Days with Albert Schweitzer" by Frederick M. Franck.

Urbane But Light, Fun And Harmless

The art of Llewellyn Jones. By Paul Hyde Bonner Scrivners. $4.50.

On the first page of this novel we meet Jones the fugitive — the tags all snipped out of his clothing, the marks on his shoes rubbed out, a shrinking, unsure but new born man aged 55 traveling by Pullman.

But he's different from the man you meet on your travels. He has $300,000 in his suitcase, for one thing. For another he was until the day before Townsend Britton, our one-time ambassador in Belgium, and husband of the copper heiress Edith Ketcham. Copper and Edith together made him ambassador and would have done more but he decided to walk out and become a man on his own. At his first stop in the Midwest he banks under his new name, meets the girl Terry, buys a car and moves on southward, though with Terry not far behind. The FBI has been on his trail, and having a bent and training for sociablility, he is popular and finds himself working back up involuntarily to the social position he had abdicated. Also, he proves to have a knack, and then a pronounced talent, for painting.

But Jones' art, whatever he does with one phase of it in Pairs galleries, consists principally in his success in working out a new, secure life for himself. The author doesn't hesitate to introduce some unusually improbable coincidences, but they won't hurt you, especially in a story of this sort. Bonned establishes a light and sentimental mood with an occasional glib witty accent or a touch of mockery. Styled urbanely, this is reading for fun.

W. G. Rogers

Buried Loot And Flight, Pursuit, Sex

MAN RUNNING. By Elliot West. Little, Brown. $3.95.

Ben Dana, American newsman with some anti-Franco fighting in his career: the Stoddards, Linus and Fay, naive young Americans who've gone to Europe for the regulation tour; ex-Nazi Gen. Steck who for lack of a passport can't get to France where he has some buried jewels; and Soledad, Steck's beautiful mistress — these are the characters in this novel laid in Madrid and Paris.

Ben wants a news job in Madrid, but maybe a quicker way to fortune would be to lend Steck his passport — illegal but not necessarily very harmful — and then collect a share of the buried treasure. Flight, pursuit, sex, dangers of various sorts and a sure-fire romantic ending are the main ingredients in this competent novel. You mustn't blame West, of course, just because the man who wrote the jacket copy couldn't tell the Alps from the Pyrenees.

An Ode To A Young Love

ODE TO A YOUNG LOVE. Basil Davidson. Houghton Mifflin. $3.50.

In the neighborhood of a vast asphalt runway built by the Americans, some English people lead a shoddy existence. Poppy Wellin, though she does a little work at a dairy farm, has some fun on the side and earns money and drinks by entertaining men friends, among them in particular an American soldier called Dock. Then an old acquaintance, Ted, joins her. Ted has a car and the two figure they can earn more by expanding —more girls as entertainers and more Yanks than just Dook brought out to visit them and be entertained.

But in the midst of this squalor and exposed to it though unspotted by it is teenage Lindy, Poppy's daughter, and there comes to join her Ted's son Jacob, a boy in an untamed, half-natural state.

This is the old story of the lily flourishing on the dunghill but Davidson tells it with sober and persuasive constraint; and more convincing than the romatic young couple is the grim, vicious portrait of the mothed.

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Nest for Shelly Winters, currently on view in "The Diary of Anne Frank," is the role of Nellie Romano in the screen adaptation of the Willard Motely novel, "Let No Man Write My Epitaps."

Here are a few facts about the life of Geo. Eastman that a lot of folks might find interesting. Eastman was born in 1854 at Waterville, N.Y. Eastman studied to be a Machinist and in 1879 at the age of 24 built his first photographic instrument. This started one of the most fabulous careers the business world has ever known. Although he courted many women, he never married. In 1903-5 he built what was to be a monument to the Eastman family. It was a mansion of 37 rooms, 12 baths and 9 complete fireplaces. On 10 acres of ground and its own light plant. In 1903 Kodak showed a profit of 3 million. By 1925 this had grown to 18.5 million and by 1955 it was up to 633 million. Employed 74,200 people. Paid 87.5 million in taxes and showed a net profit of 50 million. In 1932 Eastman committed suicide. No one knows his reasons unless it was his bad health. He left a hand written note that said "My work is done, why wait, GE".

REV. W. A. MASSEY

Area Pastor Will Speak At Ridge Avenue

A former West Monroe minister will return today and preach in his home town and the church where he was licensed, ordained and served in an official capacity as a minister.

Rev. W. A. "Dub" Massey, now pastor of the First Baptist Church Urania, La., will be the guest preacher at the Ridge Avenue Baptist church in the absence of the pastor, Rev. A. T. Mitchell.

After being licensed, and ordained by the Ridge Avenue church, Rev. Massey served as assistant psstor of the church for a number of months. He attended Louisiana College and graduated from Northeast State.

Rev. Massey has served as pastor of the Spencer Baptist Church, Union Parish, and the Kelley Baptist Church in Caldwell parish. He is married to the former Billey Griggs of Calhoun, and they have two children.

Privileged Information Law Sought

By TOM HENSHAW
AP Religion Writer

There is a growing pressure on state and federal lawmakers to lift clergymen onto the same legal plane as lawyers and doctors.

The campaign slipped into high gear last year after a Baptist minister in Tennessee had been fined $50 and given a 10-day suspended sentence. He had refused, during a divorce trial, to reveal information he had received in confidence.

The minister, the Rev. James Glisson, later was pardoned, but Tennessee churchmen were aghast to find that existing state law extended privileged communication only to lawyers and their clients.

There was further stir in church circles when Washington lawyer A. Robert Theibault submitted a report on the national situation to the Baptist Joint Committee on Public Affairs.

Theibault's finding: Sixteen states and the District of Columbia had no laws protecting communication between clergymen and their parishioners. Since the report, two states, Tennessee and South Carolina, have passed such legislation.

The unprotected 14 remaining are Alabama, Connecticut, Delaware, Florida, Illinois, Maine, Massachusetts, Mississippi, New Hampshire, North Carolina, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Texas and Virginia.

Furthermore, Theibault reported, at least half the existing laws are inadequate, and their wording leaves them open to almost any interpretation an individual court cares to give.

Theibault's idea of a typical inadequate statute: "A priest or clergyman shall not, without the consent of the person making the confession, be examined as to any confession made to him in his professional capacity, in the course of discipline enjoined by the church to which he belongs."

Such a law leaves it up to the court to decide: What is a confession? Is information obtained in the course of giving counsel a form of confession? How formal must a practice be before it qualifies as a discipline?

One of the best laws, Theibaut reported, is on the books in Iowa.

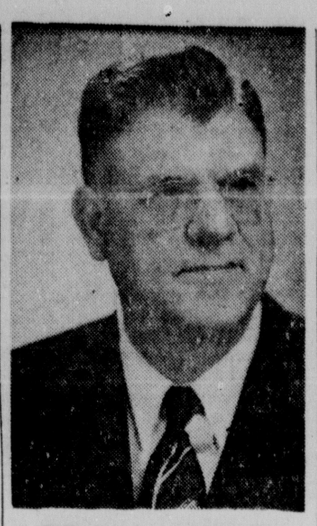
It specifies: "No . . . minister of the gospel or priest of any denomination shall be allowed, in giving testimony, to disclose any confidential communication properly entrusted to him in his professional capacity, and necessary and proper to enable him to discharge the functions of his office according to the usual course of practice or discipline. Such prohibition shall not apply to cases where the party in whose favor the same is made waives the rights conferred."

Efforts are being made to bring into camp those states which have no laws and also to strengthen the inadequate statutes.

The June convention of the 1½-million-member American Baptist Church passed a resolution urging its members to work for state and federal statutes guaranteeing ministerial immunity.

The conference of synodical presidents of the United Lutheran Church in America has started the ball rolling toward getting approval of a similar declaration at the UCLA's 1960 convention.

Last year the American public spent 25 million hours reading its daily and Sunday newspapers.



DR. R. O. CAWKER

Guest Speaker To Fill Pulpit At Local Church

Dr. R. O. Cawker, secretary of evangelism for the Louisiana Baptist Convention, will be the visiting speaker at both services today at the College Place Baptist Church, it has been announced.

Dr. Cawker is a native of Canada and received his education at Baylor University in Texas. He came to his present position as pastorate of the Highland Baptist Church in Shreveport where he did an outstanding work for many years.

He has spoken in our vicinity many times. He will speak at both morning and evening services, 11:00 a.m. and 8:00 p.m. at the College Place Baptist Church, Monroe, in the absence of the pastor, T. Earl Ogg.

Church Of England To Seek Vitality

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

LONDON (UPI) — A movement imported from America is helping to revitalize the Church of England.

This ancient institution, which is the parent body of U.S. Episcopalians and Methodists, has long suffered from a conspicuous lack of popular support.

Of the 40 million people who live in England, 27 million, or two thirds, are nominally members of the established church. But only one-tenth of them attend worship services on Easter Sunday, the day of the biggest turnout.

Public apathy is particularly evident in church finances. In a land where living costs are comparable to America, clergymen receive an average pay of less than $2,000 a year. And two-third of this stipend comes from endowments accumulated by the church over past, more pious centuries. Even if you count only the Easter communicants as church members the average free-will contribution from the man in the pew figures out to less than 35 cents per member per week.

U.S. AVERAGES $1.20 WEEKLY

These figures may sound shocking in America, where more than 50 per cent of the church members attend worship services each Sunday, and where the average financial contribution (counting even the nominal members) is about $1.20 a week.

But to English churchmen, they are not surprising. This country has experienced a religious revival since World War II, but its impact has been felt primarily among intellectuals, particularly at the great Universities of Oxford and Cambridge, and in the upper economic groups. The majority of working people, far more class conscious here than in America, tend to identify the church with landlords and managers, and they are not easily persuaded that its religion is relevent to their embattled lives.

The church is trying in many different ways to break through this inherited barrier of disaffection. It is learning to speak out boldly on issues of popular concern, from birth control to nuclear tests. It is sending specially-trained industrial chaplains into the factory areas of South London, Sheffield, Bristol and Birmingham, to make friends with workers at their jobs and in their homes. It is appealing to young people through a growing network of youth clubs that sponsor every kind of activity from rock-and-roll music sessions to week-end religious retreats. It is trying to make worship more meaningful, by soft-pedaling the unctuous sermon and restoring the sacrament of Holy Communion to the central place at the Sunday morning service.

COST-OF-DYING UP, TOO

LOCKPORT, N. Y. (UPI)—The will of former Youngstown mayor Guy H. Wall was very specific on one point. Regarding burial, he instructed: "Get Dayton Hardison (local funeral director) and don't spend over $700 for the job."

However, when a state tax appraisal was filed in Surrogate's Court it listed funeral expenses for Wall at $1,379. "Infaltion caught up with us," an executor explained to the court.

The world's largest collection of ancient ruins is at Luxor, Egypt, about 450 miles upstream from Cairo. The ruins are of Tehbes, which was the center of civilization from about 1600 to 1200 B. C.

West Monroe Church Opens Revival Today

A return appearance of two young men who conducted a successful revival at the First Baptist Church in West Monroe last year will highlight a one - week revival opening at the church today.

Dr. Jaroy Weber, pastor of the church, announced the services would open at 7:30 p.m. with Max Morris serving as evangelist and Eddy Nicholson directing the music.

Dr. Weber pointed out the two men had conducted a revival at the First Baptist Church in West Monroe last year which "proved to be one of the most spiritually successful meetings ever held in the church."

The pastor invited all members and visitors to attend the services which will continue at 7:30 p.m. throughout the week.

Move To Lift Legal Status Of Clerics

By TOM HENSHAW
AP Religion Writer

There is a growing pressure on state and federal lawmakers to lift clergymen onto the same legal plane as lawyers and doctors.

The campaign slipped into high gear last year after a Baptist minister in Tennessee was fined $50 and given a 10-day suspended sentence. He had refused, during a divorce trial, to reveal information he had received in confidence.

The minister, the Rev. James Glisson, later was pardoned, but Tennessee churchmen were aghast to find that existing state law extended privileged communication only to lawyers and their clients.

And there was further stir in church circles when Washington lawyer A. Robert Theibault submitted a report on the national situation to the Baptist Joint Committee on Public Affairs.

Theibault's finding:

Sixteen states and the District of Columbia have no laws protecting communication between clergymen and their parishioners. (Since the report, two states, Tennessee and South Carolina, have passed such legislation.)

The unprotected 14 remaining are Alabama, Connecticut, Delaware, Florida, Illinois, Maine, Massachusetts, Mississippi, New Hampshire, North Carolina, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Texas and Virginia.

Furthermore, Theibault reported, at least half the existing laws are inadequate and their wording leaves them open to almost any interpretation an individual court cares to give.

Efforts are being made to bring into camp those states which have no laws and also to strengthen the inadequate statutes.

The June convention of the 1½-million-member American Baptist Church passed a resolution urging its members to work for state and federal statutes guaranteeing ministerial immunity.

The Conference of Synodical Presidents of the United Lutheran Church in America has started the ball rolling toward getting approval of a similar declaration at the ULCA's 1960 convention.

Mt. Pleasant Church Holds Centennial

Mt. Pleasant Methodist Church in Jackson Parish held services last week commemorating its hundredth year as a church organization.

On Christmas Eve. Day, 1857, the Brooklyn Church—about three miles from the Mt. Pleasant Church—was established. In 1859, the church moved to its present location.

Miss Della Jordan welcomed members and visitors and gave a brief history of the church, believed to be on of the oldest in the Ruston District of the Methodist Church.

The Rev. Ira Yeager of Monroe delivered the sermon for the occasion following talks by guests and special music.

TO HOLD FAIR

BAGHDAD, Iraq (UPI) — The Iraqi government announced Friday an international fair will be held in Baghdad in the autumn of 1960 or the spring of 1961.

Four million U. S. retailers and other local advertisers invest about $2.4 billion a year in daily and Sunday newspapers — more than they spend in all other major advertising media combined.

Miss Stanford Joins Faculty At Northeast

Miss Hazel Leroy Stanford has been appointed to the Northeast Louisiana State College faculty as instructor in secretarial science, President George T. Walker announced yesterday.

The instructor comes to Northeast from Arkansas Agricultural and Mechanical College, Monticello, where she has taught for the past two years. She has been employed by Northeast during the summer session.

Miss Stanford, a native of Poplarville, Miss., graduated from Pearl River Junior College in Poplarville, then completed studies for the bachelor of science degree at Mississippi Southern College, Hattiesburg. She was awarded the master of business education degree by the University of Mississippi in 1957.

The instructor's professional experience includes teaching in Mississippi high schools and Pearl River Junior College prior to her joining the Arkansas A. and M. College faculty.

She has held official posts in various teacher associations and is a member of several professional organizations, including the United Business Education Association, Arkansas Business Education Association, American Association of University Women and others.

ON CIVIL RIGHTS, HOUSING

Dirksen Predicts Passage Of Bills

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate GOP Leader Everett M. Dirksen said Saturday Congress would not go home this year without passing civil rights, housing, and probably a new farm bill.

The Illinois Republican said in an interview that there was a "real hope" that a compromise farm bill, acceptable to both President Eisenhower and the Democratic Congress, could still be worked out.

He was more certain of enactment of a housing bill to supplant the one voetoed by Eisenhower, and "a modest civil rights bill."

These three are the hard core legislative measures standing in the way of congressional djournment, now expected in late August or early September.

In addition, Congress must clean up its appropriation bills, with the big defense and foreign aid measure the most troublesome, and try to get action on labor reform, highway financing, and monetary policy bills.

The President specifically named the farm, labor and highway bills as things Congress should do before adjournment.

Dirksen said of the housing outlook, now before a senate subcommittee: "We'll not leave here without a bill. There'll be a lot of squabbling, but there will be a new housing bill, even if it is rather foreshortened."

He pointed out that the Senate Judiciary Committee meets again Monday when it will be confronted by a motion to make civil rights the pending business for action. How much time the Southern-dominated Committee will take depends largely on how many rigid amendments are proposed, he said.

"At best, we're going to get a modest bill," Dirksen said.

Both Democratic and Republican leaders "want" a civil rights bill passed this year rather than in the 1960 presidential election year session. This is viewed as meaning there will be action in this session —whether it comes first from the House or the Senate.

On the farm bill controversy, Dirksen said various compromises are "under exploration" both in Congress and the executive branch.

He said those concerned with the problem, which embraces wheat and tobacco bills already vetoed by Eisenhower, must decide whether they can develop a "reasonable, sound program which looks down the road," and whether they can "command enough support for it."

Asked what the outlook for doing this now, he replied: "There is a real hope that it might still be worked out."

Gov. William Francis Quinn of Hawaii wanted to become an actor. He chose law, instead.

BATON ROUGE (AP) — The East Baton Rouge Parish Grand Jury cleared James Hendrix of rape charges Friday.

The woman claimed the incident occurred last week on Highland road.

Hendrix was booked for simple rape after the woman's complaint, but the Grand Jury studied and dismissed an aggravated rape charge against Hendrix.

Monroe continues to attract new residents. And Monroyans, party people all, delight in welcoming them with parties. Two newcomers were honored with coffees this week.

From New Orleans come the Carlton Kemps, who are living on Spencer street with their two children. CHRISSIE ANN and LYNN CARTER. Ann was honored with a neighborhood party Friday morning, in the home of CHARLOTTIE DENT. CHARLOTTE BRIGHT was co - hostess. White grapes and limes in a silver candelabra centered the dining table. MARGE MULLENS and SYDNIE SMITH assisted in the courtesies. Cucumber sandwiches, doughnuts, and banana cake were served with lemonade to about twenty - five friends.

The R. M. TROYS have taken an apartment on North Twelfth street. He, of course, is a native Monroyan, while Millie is a newcomer. VERA TROY introduced her daughter - in - law to a group of friends at a coffee at her home on Wednesday morning. Millie wore rosy red and white checked organza with a wide white organdy bertha collar. A corsage of peppermint carnations complimented the colors of her outfit.

Flame colored gladiola were used in the living room, and a compote of fresh fruit on the coffee table . . . Yellow Fiji mums centered the dining table. MARY COKER and JEAN HAMILTON alternated at the coffee service. At the other end of the table was a watermelon shell holding fresh figs, grapes, and melon balls. Other goodies included cream cheese balls, hot cheese cookies, and candies. MARTHA HEUER and AMALIE GAINES served iced drinks on the porch. Others who assisted were LOUISE KLAM, KAY CAUSEY, and PATSY PICKETT. About seventy-five friends called between ten-thirty and twelve-thirty.

Another favorite reason for having a party is to honor former Monroyans who are home on a visit. JOYCE KELLOGG invited a group for luncheon with JESSIE LEE LAMB of Cookeville, Tennessee, and JOAN PECK of Washington, D. C. The party was held in the private dining room of the Bayou DeSiard country club. A green cloth covered the table, which was centered with a wicker bird cage filled with daisies, yellow daisy mums, and tiny birds. Fourteen friends were served a luncheon featuring Alaskan crab meat au gratin, and ending with coffee pie.

On Thursday JANE OLIVER invited eight for bridge and luncheon for Jessie Lee. Chartreuse zinnias and varigated foliage were the flowers. On the menu were shrimp salad, limabeans with sour cream, and banana pie for dessert.

The FOSTER WALLACES were hosts at a houseparty at "Camp Petty" on Lake Bruin last weekend. Guests included members of a Wednesday luncheon and bridge group which has been meeting locally for twenty years. Members and their husbands on the party were the IVY JORDANS, the HENRY HINKLES, the H. W. M'SHERRYS, and the ROY M'CUES. Other guests brought the number to thirty, who spent a week - end filled with fishing, swimming, bridge, water skiing.

Not present for the houseparty were the J. L. Adams and the CHARLES LeDOUX-Merle and Sara Lee are members of the bridge club, but these two couples are in Miami, Florida for two weeks.

Another Lake Bruin houseparty last week was that hosted by the J. HUNTER THATCHERS. Their guests included MRS. SCOTTIE M'CRANIE and ANNE M'CRANIE of Nacagdoches, Texas, and MR. and MRS. S. T. HAMITER of Shreveport.

It's been over a week, but everyone is still talking about the party of the year, hosted by the SHELBY HILLS and the EDWARD HOLMES at Bayou DeSiard country club. The tropical theme was carried out with the use of fresh fruit, palm trees, and tropical flowers in all the decorations. June was wearing a beige organza dancing frock with full, full sleeves, and a skirt of unpressed pleats. Her hibiscus corsage was the exact shade of her coral cummerbund and her coral lipstick. Vicky's dress was of palest pink batiste, with panels of tucks and lace insertions. Her corsage was of white anthurium.

The gentlemen in their white dinner jackets made a most effective background for some of the loveliest dresses seen on the dance floor in many moons. Two men branched out from the traditional black and white—SIDNEY GILL wore a tan dinner jacket with all black accessories . . . and the DOYLE HAMILTONS were outstand-in their blue. Doyle's jacket was the exact shade of Jean's tiered silk organza, her jewelry, and her satin shoes.

SCOTTIE CARBONE's pale green batiste featured exquisite detail work in the flower-shaped lace insertions, the rows of tucks, and the straight lace panels . . . Red piping and red bows trimmed WAVA FRAZIER's red and white dotted Swiss . . . Also in red was SUE STUBBS, a vision in floor length chiffon. The dress was cut to the waist in back, with a flowing chiffon train. Red satin slippers matched exactly . . . The stark white of kid gloves was most effective with MARY ANN RAY's full skirted black organza . . . POLLY RILEY wore cornflower blue chiffon with shoes to match.

ALICE SMITH looked a dream in American Beauty red chiffon . . . In white lace with matching stole was LELA EWING . . . ELIZABETH TROWBRIDGE's white chiffon strapless also featured a matching stole . . . Black lace over white organdy was the choice of DARLENE CROSSLAND . . . and ZANONA FLINN chose dusty rose shadow - printed organza . . . Over two hundred couples attended the party. Cocktails were served beginning at eight, and Paul Neighbors orchestra played for dancing from nine until one.

The JIMMY STOKERS, who are leaving soon to make their home in Alexandria, invited friends in for a final get-together Tuesday night. Marthann greeted her guests wearing a muted blue and green floral print. Mixed bouquets of summer blossoms were used in the entrance hall and in the living room. Pink crape myrtle was used in the dining room: in a cut glass vase on the buffet, and in a punch bowl on the table. Platters of turkey and ham were set out, along with raw vegetables with an exotic caviar dip. Prairie fire was served from the chafing dish on the buffet. About seventy friends attended.

Guests of the E. T. HEARDS this week have been Mildred's sister and her husband, the OTTWAY DENNYS and their children, OTTWAY and SUSAN, from Racelands, La.

BUDDY DENT has returned from Shreveport, where he spent a week with former Monroyan MARK THARPE.

MRS. J. H. EDMONSON is vacationing in Miami, Florida with her son and his family, the JAMES ROBERT EDMONSONS and NANCY. She is making the acquaintance of her new granddaughter, KATHY ANN, who arrived July 14. The maternal grandmother is MRS. W. D. GOLSON of West Monroe. The mother is the former Mary Alice Golson.

The BERNARD BIEDENHARNS left on Thursday for Chicago, where they will attend a meeting. The HAROLD DIXONS of Hattiesburg, Mississippi will join them there and the two couples make a trip through the Northwest before returning home.

CORNELIA and GRANT THOMAS left on Wednesday for their home in Louisville, Kentucky. They were here for a flying trip to pick up their children, JOE, CARL, ANN and LAURIE, who have been visiting their grandparents, the CARL M'HENRYS, for five weeks.

Here is a little something called "Half Way Stone" by Karle Baker:

I have not much to show for all
The dedicated years;
A little tree of ecstasy,
A little jar of tears;
No lordly forest of sweet shade
To make my name be praised:
No pyramid of living stone
Such as my masters raised;
I shall not leave a noisy name,
But there'll be two or three
Who'll want me, not for oracle,
But just for company.

How To Bathe Dog During Dog Days

NEW YORK (UPI) — A dog bath during the dog days can be easy on both pet and owner when a few simple precautions are taken.

The water temperature should be about the same used for bathing babies, says Bob Bartos, manager of research kennels for a dog food manufacturer. Test the water with your elbow to make sure it's not too warm.

Before dunking your pet, put a few drops of sweet oil in each eye and plug its ears with cotton to keep out water and soap.

Two soapings with a mild bar soap or mild flakes should be applied with a soft brush, a sponge or a heavy cloth.

Rinse the dog thoroughly, preferably with a spray, and rub the coat dry with a turkish towel.

After a summer bath, it's best to keep your dog indoors until dry, or the dog might speed the drying process by rolling in dirt or grass.

For sparkle, add a few drops of ammonia to the water in which glassware is to be washed.

MRS. WILLIAM GEORGE PEEVY

Peevy-Buckalew Vows Are Said In Shreveport

Miss Lorene Buckalew and William George Peevy exchanged marriage vows last Thursday, July 16, in the Cherokee Park Baptist Church in Shreveport. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Buckalew of Jonesboro. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Peevy of Waco, Tex. The double ring ceremony was performed at 8:30 in the evening by the Rev. The vows were spoken before the altar banked with pink and white gladioli and fern, illuminated by pale pink tapers in candelabra.

Wanda Lou Mouton Wed To Jamie Lee Wilhite

Vows uniting Miss Wanda Lou Mouton and Jamie Lee Wilhite were solemnized Thursday, July 23 in the First Baptist church in West Monroe. Dr. Jaroy Weber performed the double ring ceremony at 6:30 P.M.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. J. Rodney Mouton and the late Mr. Mouton, and the bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Walter E. Wilhite, all of West Monroe.

White wedding bells, encircled by silver rings, interspersed with arrangements of orchid gladioli and silvered fern formed a setting for the exchange of vows. Orchid cathedral tapers in branched candelabra completed the scene and the chancel rail was draped with silver and orchid tinted greenery.

Traditional nuptial music was rendered at the organ by Bob Oldenburg, who also accompanied Rev. Jack Day as he sang "My Beloved" and "O Perfect Day."

The bride, given in marriage by her uncle, Rudy O'Banion, San Antonio, Tex., wore a gown of silk marquisette over taffeta, fashioned with panel front and fitted basque bodice. The hoop skirt in three flounces was edged with tiny scallops forming a brief train. White satin lilacs embossed the portrait neckline and extended down the skirt panel forming a cascade. Her fingertip veil of French silk illusion cascaded from a lilac-shaped headdress and her bouquet was fashioned of white lilacs and feathered chrysanthemums centered with a purple throated orchid.

Bridesmaids were Mrs. Glenda L. Saxon, Miss Linda Lavender, Miss Mary Beth Varner, Miss Brenda Bayles, Miss Judy Wilhite and Miss Glenda Sue Young. They wore gowns and hats fashioned identical to the honor attendant's in various shades of orchid. The attendants carried nosegays of orchid tinted pompoms, centered with a large orchid, linked together with an orchid wedding chain entwined with silvered ivy.

Junior bridesmaids were Gloria Gantt, San Marcos, Tex., and Carolyn Sue Wilhite, who wore floor - length frocks of orchid tulle over taffeta with clusters of violets caught in the draped skirts. Candlelighters were Pam Gatlin, who was dressed identical to the bridesmaids' and Johnathan Mouton.

The flower girl, Dawn Gatlin, wore a floor length frock of pale orchid with miniature violets scattered over the ruffled skirt. She carried a tiny nosegay of lavender chrysanthemums.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Mouton chose a cocoa beige lace dress over antique gold satin. The neckline was embellished with iridescent beige and bronze sequins which were repeated on her capulet hat. Her corsage was of large purple cattleya orchids. Mrs. Wilhite, mother of the bridegroom, wore a pastel blue lace fashioned with a portrait neckline and a blue satin bow at the waist. She wore a blue lace capulet hat and a corsage of purple orchids.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held at Highland Park Country Club. The V-shaped reception table was covered with white nylon net adorned with orchid nosegays of pompom chrysanthemums and orchid tinted orange blossoms. Twin arrangements of orchid and white blossoms were in crystal epergnes in the center of a branched silver candelabra, from which hung garlands of tuberoses and orchid blossoms.

Hostesses at the reception were Mrs. Margaret McLemore, Mrs. Winnie Silmon, Mrs. Sue Gatlin, Mrs. Karmel Jones, Mrs. Christelle O'Banion, Mrs. Margie Gantt and Mrs. Laverne Bayles. They were assisted by Miss Linda Silmon, who distributed souvenir match folders bearing pictures of the bride and groom and the wedding date, Brenda Younse and Kay Harris.

After a wedding trip to Monterrey, Mexico, the couple will be at home in West Monroe. The bride was graduated from West Monroe High school and is a member of Delta Kappa Pi. Mr. Wilhite was graduated from West Monroe High school and is now attending Northeast State College.

Out - of - town guests included Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Mouton and Jonathon, Jennings; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Gantt, Carol Dean and Gloria, San Marcos, Tex.; Mr. and Mrs. R. B. O'Banion, San Antonio, Tex.; Mr. and Mrs. Louie Rasberry and Mrs. Julia Mae Staggs, of Alexandria; Mr. and Mrs. Walter Horner, Lafayette; Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Smith and daughter, Shreveport; Mr. and Mrs. Earl Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. Elton Albritton and sons, Mrs. Hazel Albritton, Mrs. Estelle Greer and Judy, all of Farmerville and Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Granberry and daughters, Bastrop.

ANNOUNCEMENT OF MISS NANCY KATE MILEY'S engagement and approaching marriage to Charles Herbert Harrigill is made by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter B. Miley. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Harrigill of Rayville. August 21 is the date chosen for the ceremony at 7 p. m. in the First Methodist Church in Rayville. The Reverend W. D. Boddie will officiate.

The well - organized outdoor cook keeps her equipment together to save time and labor. A handy way to do this is with a basket large enough to hold long forks, gloves, shish - kebab sticks, fry pan, paper plates and soap pads for after-dinner cleaning chores. Clean the grill after each use, as soon as the fire cools.

Remove burned foods from enameled and tin ware by putting water into the cool pan, adding baking soda, and bringing the mixture to a boil.

Miss Ledbetter A. W. Magruder Pledge Rites

MRS. ABBEY W. MAGRUDER JR.

The Ruston Presbyterian Church was the setting for the double ring ceremony of Miss Mary Lillian Ledbetter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie C. Ledbetter of Ruston, to Abbey Wailes Magruder Jr. son of Mrs. Abbey W. Magruder and the late Mr. Magruder of Jackson, Miss. The ceremony was performed on Saturday at three o'clock in the afternoon on July 11. Dr. S. E. McFadden assisted by Reverend J. W. Lipscomb, pastor of the church officiated.

White wrought iron candelabra, entwined with English ivy held a multitude of burning white Cathedral candles to cast a soft glow over the altar which was flanked by tall standards of white gladioli, stock and mums. In the background were potted palms. Bows of embossed white satin ribbon marked the ends of the pews.

Herbert Purcell of Shreveport, at the organ rendered a program of nuptial music prior to the ceremony. He also accompanied Mrs. R. C. Ellis as she sang "I Love Thee" by Grieg and "O Perfect Love". The strains of the traditional Lohengrin Wedding March heralded the approach of the bridal party.

Mrs. Gayle C. Wells of New Orleans served her sister as Matron of Honor and only attendant. She wore an afternoon frock of powder blue dacron and cotton batiste fashioned with a full skirt and fitted torso bodice, accented with rows of inserted lace. Upon her head she wore a bandeau of blue velvet petals and rhinestones. Completing her ensemble were matching blue slippers and she carried a pink nylon tulle round from which streamed garlands of garnett roses.

Serving the groom as best man was his brother, Fred A. Magruder of Jackson, Miss. and ushers were Ernest R. Magruder of Lafayette, cousin of the groom and Robert Merryman of Shreveport.

The bride, entering the church upon the arm of her father, was gowned in white Chantilly lace combined with gleaming white taffeta. The moulded bodice featured a rounded neckline outlined in seed pearls as were the brief sleeves. The bodice was closed at the back by a row of self-covered buttons. The bouffant skirt was caught in back with pouffs of the taffeta that fell in panels to the waltz length hemline. Her fingertip veil of French illusion was held in place by a cap of appliqued daisies. Her bouquet was a wedding ring arrangement of white feathered carnations and bride's veil of illusion in which nestled a white orchid. For something old and borrowed she wore an heirloom platinum necklace with a single crystal teardrop. Completing her ensemble were white slippers.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Ledbetter was attired in a slim sheath model in Dior blue fashioned with a deep yoke of silk organza and re-embroidered with dainty blue flowers. Her slippers and hat were of pale blue and she carried a white satin bag on which was fastened a pink nosegay.

RECEPTION

The bride's parents were hosts at a wedding reception in the church annex immediately following the wedding. An arrangement of white gladioli and Fuji mums was placed on the antique marble topped table in the parlor where the bride and groom received with the bride's mother, members of the bridal party and Mrs. John W. Nelson of Ruston and Mrs. Martin J. Ledbetter of Simsboro, maternal and paternal grandmothers of the bride.

The bride's table was covered with a floor length white cloth with an over-skirt of white organdy. Centering the table was a crystal epergne holding an exquisite arrangement of white carnations and mums. At one end of the table was the tiered wedding confection placed on a reflector and at the opposite end was the crystal punch bowl, presided over by Miss Jo Ann Arnold of Shreveport, alternating with Miss Virginia Shaw, also of Shreveport. The cake was served by Miss Janice Waller of Shreveport and Mrs. Tom Dennis of Crossett, Ark.

Miss Mimi Wile of Shreveport asked guests to sign the bride's book which was placed on a table laid with a white linen cut work cloth and centered with a white anniversary candle embossed with lily of the valley.

Assisting in the courtesies were Mrs. Warren Jahncke of Dothan, Alabama; Mrs. Billy D. Nelson of West Monroe and Mrs. Loy M. Nelson, all aunts of the bride; Miss Norma Jean Ledbetter of Shreveport, Mrs. Herman Ladner, Mrs. Alexander Boyd and Mrs. Wayne Liner, cousins of the bride; Miss Sandra Schudder, Shreveport and Mrs. C. H. Edwards.

Master Charles Edwards distributed dainty rice bags among the guests.

Upon their return the young couple will be at home at 1043 Poplar Blvd., Jackson, Miss.

Mrs. Magruder received her education from the Ruston public schools. She attended William Woods College, Fulton, Missouri; Louisiana State University in Baton Rouge and is a graduate of Louisiana Polytechnic Institute, Ruston. Her social sorority was Alpha Chi Omega.

Mr. Magruder is a graduate of the University of Mississippi Law School, Oxford, Miss., and his social fraternity was Kappa Alpha. His forebears are the late Dr. and Mrs. Christopher Herbert of Jackson and the late Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Magruder of Yazoo City, Miss.

The Rev. W. E. Spencer, Pastor of the church, officiated at the double ring ceremony in the presence of a large company of relatives and friends.

The bride given in marriage by her father wore a baby blue eyelet dress, its skirt falling in soft unpressed pleats. Quick-frozen green beans, wax beans, peas or cut corn adapt well to cooking on an outdoor grill. Wrap each solidly frozen package in aluminum foil with a pat of butter inside. Seal edges and ends with double fold and turn packages once or twice during cooking. Allow 30 minutes to 1 hour for cooking, depending on the type of grill and the heat.

Let Mom Give Kids A Workout

By BETTY A. DIETZ
Dayton Daily News

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — "Instead of picking up after the kids, let 'em do a little bending and stretching of their own. Most women can use some extra help anyway."

This two-in-one suggestion isn't based entirely on sympathy for the housewife. It's an old-fashioned but sure-fire way to see that today's children get some much-needed exercise.

Maj. Robert E. Shirley of the preventive occupational medicine services division at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base, who helped set up the current fitness fair there, insists that household chores are good for the children.

"It's that up-and-down business they need. None of them get enough of it," Shirley says.

TOO MUCH SITTING

The trouble with team sports, the officer contends, is that only the 10 or 20 boys on the field get the exercise.

"Everybody else is sitting around on the sidelines eating hot dogs and drinking sweet stuff," he adds.

Parents can and should do much to increase their children's physical activities, especially in the formative pre-school period when "living habits are firmed up."

Don't expect the schools to do the whole job, he cautions. They've got enough to do with academic education.

"Play games with the kids instead of telling them to go watch TV," he says. Shirley suggests developing a variety of outdoor interests — skating, bicycle riding, swimming, jumping rope. Even the outdoor picnic is important as well as fun, he adds.

EXERCISE!

Exercise is essential at all ages, he points out. If the major had his way, every American would get 10 or 20 minutes of calisthenics a day.

"Sure it's a nuisance sometimes. And if you wait 'til the muscle tone is gone, things start to hurt."

As a supplement to the school exercise programs, Shirley suggests several ideas for parents who want to look after the health of their 13 and 14-year-olds.

"Team sports are good — so are Boy Scouts or similar activities. They learn to work together without sacrificing their individuality.

"Don't forget social activities, parties. Let 'em jitterbug or square dance. That'll make them move around."

Finally, he says, don't neglect daily push-ups and other calisthenic classics.

"The worst physical specimens of all are those ex-what-ever-they were. When they stop, they go to fat. And that's bad!"

Mrs. Luckett Attends Altrusa Convention

Over 1200 business executives and professional women from the United States, Canada and Mexico have registered for the twenty-sixth convention of Altrusa International being held this week at the Edgewater Beach Hotel in Chicago. "What's My Line" is the guessing game at the moment among the femininity seen in the banquet rooms and lobby of the hotel.

Among the delegates a showing of interest is seen in the problems of the world today and doing their best to help out with the solution in a combined effort of executive and professional women through Altrusa International, a classified service club.

New theme being adopted at this convention for working years 1959 - 60 and 1960 - 61 is "Make Service Your Business".

Mrs. Edith Wood Nelson of Richmond Virginia, International President is presiding at all meetings. A fuel work program beginning at 8 a.m. and running through 9:30 p.m. is being carried out.

On Monday the delegates were privileged to hear an address by Dr. Kenneth Wells, President of Freedoms Foundation. Dr. Wells set the keynote of the convention and said, "What the World needs today is information and inspiration and the Will to use both.

Seminars were started on Tuesday through Thursday on phases of administration, classification and membership, Extension, Program and Publicity. Tuesday's activities were concluded with a panel discussion. "Women's Progress and Opportunities" with Dr. Viva Boathe, president-elect presiding.

Thursday was a day of voting ending with the President's banquet. Miss Chloe Gifford, President General Federation of Women's Clubs will make the address on "World Communities." The convention convened on Friday after the installation banquet being the highlight of the day.

Among the delegates attending is the President of the Monroe-West Monroe Altrusa Club, Mrs. Helen Luckett. On Tuesday Mrs. Luckett attended a breakfast for the Governor and members of the Fourth District of which Monroe is a member.

Dancing Good Therapy For Repressions

By DOROTHY ROE
AP Newsfeatures Writer

IF A CHILD can work off his killing urge in a dance, he won't have to join a gang and use a switchblade knife.

This is the somewhat simplified theory of Blanche Evan, who has been teaching creative dancing in New York City for the last 20 years, and finds that today's children have more violent feelings than ever before. Says she:

"Today's young people are constantly exposed to violence — in television, comic books and movies. It's all around them all the time, and they are overstimulated by it.

"It's a difficult age altogether, for the young. They hear talk of atomic wars, of fantastic power, of voyages through space — and often one small child feels he's just not big enough to cope with all this."

Most of Miss Evan's dance pupils are girls — but there is no difference in their feelings of violence, and their need to express them.

"I find that the nice, well-brought-up girls from good families who come to my classes have tremendous repressions," she observes. "These are children of average families — the polite girl of our society. At first they resist free expression, but later they love it."

Miss Evan has found through the years that both small children and teen-agers find great joy and satisfaction in violent dances, which depict everything from fist-fights to murder. The modes of expression vary somewhat with the age. For instance, the 3-year-old likes to pretend to be an animal — a big woolly bear or a cuddly little kitten. From ages 6 to 9 children are preoccupied with speed — any kind of dance, just so it's fast. From 10 to 12 they like to depict monsters, and in their teens they are likely to express fears and uncertainty, which can be dispelled by violent action.

The dance as taught by Miss Evan has a great deal of psychology mixed up in it, and a number of her adult students are sent to her by psychotherapists.

"Psychotherapists are discovering more and more that bodily action can be an outlet for mental repressions," says Miss Evan. "My theory always has been that an active body is necessary for a healthy mind. And our modern culture has put too much stress on intellectual achievements, too little on bodily activity."

After a dance session in which girls act out movements of violent anger and rhythmic mayhem, their teacher usually winds up the session with a quiet peaceful dance about love or compassion.

"After they have worked off their feelings of violence they are ready for feelings of beauty and affection," explains Miss Evan. "To be able to love you also must be able to hate."

Miss Evan recalls an instance when a group of girls in the preteen age bracket were engaged in a dance in which they improvised motions of beating and killing. When the music stopped one gentle little girl was disappointed, saying:

"But I still had three more people to kill!"

Parents Should Choose A Camp With Much Care

NEW YORK, N. Y. — With summer on its way, the next few weeks will see more than 5,000,000 youngsters enrolled in organized summer camps, but parents should be selective.

"The business of selecting a camp should be no haphazard thing," says Dr. Ernest Osborne, Professor of Education at Teachers College, Columbia University. It may mean the difference between a fine experience for your child or one that he would much rather have done without."

If a child feels especially unhappy in a camp, he or she can react in potentially explosive ways. Feelings of inferiority, stemming from an inability to keep pace with the other children, can make a child battle with his bunkmates, try risky stunts to gain attention or even steal. Then a tragic chain reaction may ensue: he will be punished for his deeds, perhaps sent home and, out of his anger and resentment, misbehave all the more.

The child, could well be started on the road to more serious difficulties.

On the other hand, an acute sense of not belonging can make a child increasingly withdrawn, retreating into his own world of fantasy where he will be more at ease. He will daydream a lot, wander off by himself and perhaps try to run away.

The American Camping Association says camps are now sprouting so rapidly that it is hard to keep accurate count. A new census is under way and officials estimate it will show between 16,000 and 18,000 camps—about 5,000 more than in 1951, the last time they were tallied.

There are now camps in every state—including Alaska—ranging from plush $1,000-a-season "country clubs" to fine, free-of-charge camps where a child can live like Daniel Boone in the wilderness. There are special camps for a child's special interest such as music camps, travel camps, competitive and non-competitive camps, coed camps and sailing camps.

By knowing what is available, says Cornet, you can assure your child the best vacation for your money. Visit the camp before choosing and satisfy yourself that it is the right camp for your child.

Bridesmaid Mrs. Lloyd Johnston and junior bridesmaid, Miss Ginger Lee Collins, and Judy Collins the flower girl were all dressed in identical dresses to the matron of honor. The punch was served from the other end of the table by Mrs. R. C. Appling. Asking guests to register was Mrs. Gerald McLaughlin, this table held a single white candle with wedding bells tied to it.

DEAR ABBY

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I have been a widow for 17 years. My children are married and gone. A man who recently lost his wife asked me to a Drive-In movie. He slipped his arm around the back of my chair. I shook so bad my teeth chattered. Then he kissed me. It had been 17 years since I was kissed by a man and I'm afraid I wasn't very responsive. I held back quite a bit. Then he said he had been married to a frigid woman for 22 years and didn't intend to get stuck with another one. I know he would be interested in me if I could show him I really wasn't frigid. But how can I do this, Abby, and still be a lady? I am lonesome, so please don't tell me to forget him. LILLIAN

DEAR LILLIAN: This man's line is as old as the hills. A woman who gives too generous a sample of her "wares" is apt to end up with no sale. Be a "lady," and if he's a gentleman, he'll be patient.

DEAR ABBY: Either my husband is crazy or I am, and I have to know which of us is. I never looked at another man before I was married or after, but he accuses me of all the dirty things he can think of. If I don't take one of the kids with me when I go shopping he says I am going to meet another man. He tells me he is sure our last baby is not his and he asks the little boy not to call him "Daddy." I know it's hard to believe, but he is a real good husband (hasn't missed a day's work in 16 years) goes to Church, and is good to the kids (all except the little one), but what makes him so jealous and suspicious? Is there a cure FOR IT? END OF ROPE

DEAR END: Jealousy is a sickness of the mind. Try to get your husband to see a doctor who deals with mental and emotional illnesses.

DEAR ABBY: Our home is in a continual state of disrepair and our yard is a disgrace because my husband spends all his spare time doing odd jobs for his mother, who is a wealthy woman and could hire a handy man and not even miss the money.

I can mow the lawn and weed, but I can't load and haul heavy trash, tighten the clotheslines, repair the walks, service the lawnmowers, trim trees and put up screens and storm windows.

Is there any tactful way I can suggest to my husband that his own home should come first? IRRITATED

DEAR IRRITATED: Perhaps your husband neglects his own home because he knows that you are a better sport than his mother. The squeaking wheel gets the oil. Squeak a little.

DEAR ABBY: I have a friend who visits me constantly and calls me on the phone every day. The only thing I have against her is the questions she asks about our finances. She asks the price of everything I have in my house. When I wear something new she asks how much I paid for it. She asked me what my husband's salary was, how much taxes we paid. Yes, Abby, she has even inquired about how much my telephone bills and grocery bills are every month. I am fed up to the teeth with these questions. How can I put a stop to this without hurting her feelings? FED UP

DEAR FED: What feelings? The next financial question she tosses should not be answered. Give her a great big beautiful smile (and show all those teeth you are fed up to) and tell her sweetly, "It's none of your business, Dearie."

DEAR ABBY:: Do you think it is every wife's duty to get up in the morning and fix her husband's breakfast? My husband gets up at 5:30 every morning and it's awfull hard for me to get up that early as I have three children and the oldest is four. My husband says I don't have to get up to fix him breakfast but I think it's my duty and feel guilty if I don't.

DEAR PUZZLED: A mother who must care for three children (under 4) needs all the rest she can get. Set the table and do as much toward the breakfast as possible the night before and sleep in the morning. And don't feel guilty.

DEAR ABBY: I've been following your column ever since it started in this newspaper and I can't help but wonder what a visiting out-of-towner would think of our community if he were to read it.

I happen to be happily married to the same little woman I walked down the aisle with 19 years ago. don't cheat on her. I don't get drunk and beat her and she's never left me. We have two teenaged children who respect us and they have never been in Juvenile Court. We consider ourselves normal, average citizens. I am sure there are lots of people in this town just like us. Be fair, Abby, and put this in your column just to prove that you don't have to go out and rob a bank to get your name in the paper. FRED C. MACINTYRE

What's your problem? For a personal reply, write to ABBY in care of this newspaper. Enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Red gladioli were used in the living room arrangements. A silver epergne held an arrangement of yellow Fuji mums on the party table. Lingerie Is Going Out In Polite Society

NEW YORK (UPI) — Lingerie will be going out in polite society in fall. New two-piece slips can be worn as theater and cocktail costumes, as well as undies.

"You can wear it as a blouse with a theater suit or cocktail costume. I got one for the theater," said Eleanor Schrader, spokesman for the manufacturer.

The half-slip is slim and comes in combinations of lace and tricot to match the camisoles. And a wide velvet or other type of black sash, said Miss Schrader, and you have a party skirt.

"A friend of mine couldn't find anything else she liked, so she's taking the outfit on her vacation to Mexico City. It will pack well, too," Miss Schrader added.

The lingerie house also has a new line of petti-tights—a combination of pants and half-slips. They look like carry-overs from Civil War days—skin-tight, knee-length pantalettes trimmed with lace or ruffles.

The petti-tights, originated by this firm, come in nylon tricot in a variety of shades, including red, pale blue, pink, green, watermelon, aqua and gold. Some have three rows of ruffles at the knee, others have bows, lace scallops or hand-cut lace insets. One pair has fabric polka dots; another is entirely covered with black lace.

They can be worn with matching camisoles.

"They're so old-fashioned, it's a new fashion," said Miss Schrader.

The designer, Mrs. Dorothea Woodfin, dreamed up the petti-tights a year ago for herself. She wanted something less bulky than slips and pants to wear under sheath dresses. So she made up a few models as a fashion gimmick.

"Then we found women were uncomfortable in clam diggers (pedal pushers) and ankle-length slacks because of seams and chafing. They wanted something different. These are good under bouffant skirts in windy weather, too," Miss Schrader explained.

The firm now stocks a line priced from $3.95 to $8.95 and sells the pants in Singapore, Cuba, Canada, Puerto Rico and Panama.

Flattering Hairdo Has No Part

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Beauty Editor

A hairdresser doesn't have to give you a rigid part in your hair to prove that you have been coiffed. A definitive part is likely to spoil your hairdo, anyway, producing long and short ends, unless the exact part is followed every time you comb your hair. That's the word from one of New York's creative hairdressers, John Andol. He explains:

"A good hairstylist can create the illusion of a hair part if a woman wants one to give balance to her face — a center part may be achieved, for instance, by parting the hair with the fingers after the hair has been set. But the part shouldn't be so definite that it gives a wig-like look."

Andol cuts hair in a pattern that he describes as a sun's rays shape. He combs it forward, up, back, and at the sides as he cuts. The crown is his pivot point, he says, and when he has cut those four sections of the hair "it will make no difference how the hair is set — it may be brushed into symmetry in the blending of hair lengths that cannot be achieved when hair is cut around a part," he says.

The hair part should not be the focal point about the head, he says, because a woman who is not blessed with features of classical perfection may find it merely accentuates imperfections — a too - long nose or a too - determined jaw.

"A woman's hair should not show rigidty. But many women can never achieve that carefree look because they like the lacquered look," he points out. "That stiff look is a head full of curls that become stiff coils from constant spraying. At the end of the week they go to the beauty parlor for another wash, set and spray into the same old coils."

A hair stylist who does a good job will give a woman a style that may be combed and brushed into a casual appearance.

Andol tells his customers:

Modern Motif Achieved By Use Of Color

By BETTY PEPIS

Q. — My daughter has bought a split - level house and I am going to have the first level off the foyer in which to live. It consists of two rooms with a six-foot opening between the two. I have modern tables, desk and chairs and a black, white and red studio couch. One room has a chair rail. I would like suggestions for color and pattern of vinyl for the floor, color of walls, curtains, four - piece sectional I plan to do over, also colors for fixtures in bathroom. I like modern.

A. — I think you could create a red, white, pink and black color scheme that would be both cheerful and sophisticated. Paint all walls white. Select pink marbleized vinyl for the floor. Paint the ceilings pink. Select a red and pink toile on a white ground and us as cafe curtains at all windows. Also use it as a dado below the chair rail in the room where that exists. Red scatter rugs in cotton would be pretty and the sectional could also be covered in red. Use all white accessories.

Q. — I am planning to redecorate my living room. One wall is papered with a small turquoise and pink and silver design on cream background. Draperies on picture window on opposite wall have same pattern. Other walls are painted pink. A sofa is blue-gray. Tables are mahogany with leather tops. I need another chair, rug, lamps and accessories. Three young children make a practical rug a necessity.

A. — A rug in a dark blue-green tweed should not be too difficult to keep clean and your extra chair might be in the same color. Repeat the silver of the paper in your accessories and lamps. Dull pewter, or the antique finish, will not show the ravages of small fingerprints. You might select this for lamp bases and use cream colored shades and cream - colored china accessories.

Mothers-To-Be Advised Avoid German Measles

By DOROTHY V. WHIPPLE, M.D.
AP Newsfeatures

Inside the expectant mother a new human being is growing and developing. The mother wants him to be a strong sturdy baby. She knows the importance of dieting, following the doctor's advice, and eating nutritious food.

What else is important? What will happen to the baby if the mother gets sick?

HOW BABY GROWS

The baby is, of course, nourished by his mother's blood, but the mother's blood does not circulate through the baby. Nature has devised an elaborate mechanism which keeps the maternal and the infant circulation separate. The mother's blood goes to the placenta, a large flat organ that grows on the side of the womb. From the placenta the mother's blood flows back into her body. On the baby's side of the placenta, new blood vessels develop. The blood they contain is pumped around the baby's body by his own heart. Nourishment from the mother seeps out of her capillaries on her side of the placenta and seeps into the baby's placental capillaries. In this way only substances in solution or very tiny things like viruses can go directly from mother to child.

Many diseases the mother may have during pregnancy do not harm the baby because the germs causing them are too big to get across the placenta. Infections with the streptococcus which can make the mother miserable with a sore throat or a nasty sinus infection do not seem to affect her baby at all.

VIRUS INFECTIONS

As far as we know many virus infections do not pass the placental barrier, but there is one virus disease, German measles, which we now know for certain does pass across the placenta. Why this disease does and other diseases caused by virus do not, we just don't know.

German measles is not dangerous for the baby during the entire time he is in his mother's womb. It is only in the early part of pregnancy — about the first three months that he may be injured by German measles.

During the early months of pregnancy each organ system of the baby goes through a peak time of development. While an organ is developing at a very rapid rate it seems to be more susceptible to damage than after it is pretty well formed. If the mother develops German measles while the ears are undergoing the maximum development, they fail to progress normally and the child may be born deaf. If the disease in the mother comes a week or so later it may be the eyes that are at their most vulnerable stage and the baby may be blind or have some serious visual handicap. Both the heart and the brain can be injured if the mother's attack of German measles happens to hit their peak moment of development.

German measles is a disease to avoid in early pregnancy. If you have had it during childhood you do not need to worry. Second attacks of this disease are very rare. If you should be exposed to it during the first three months of your pregnancy get in touch with your doctor immediately. He may be able to help you avoid getting the disease.

Girl Scout News

Another day camp session was concluded with a visitors' evening. Families and friends were invited to come after 5:00 o'clock and come they did — several hundred of them, bringing picnic suppers to eat on the ground. They visited the units, some making it only to daughter's others under enthusiastic guidance making the grand tour of all nine.

Reaching the climax of a progression in camping that was started when the day camp first opened at Pine Wood, the older intermediate group had a real pioneer experience. The first week the girls spent making a campsite in the farthest section of camp, a place never before used for a unit. They practiced using knives and axes, learned different kinds of caches and made two, one in the ground and an oriole cache to hang in a tree to keep food away from animals and insects. They learned to pitch tents and by the time visitors arrived had already spent one night sleeping in them. They spent an additional night, after which their leader, Mrs. N. L. Huckabee, declared that the following girls had earned the Pioneer badge, the most advanced of the badges in the outdoor program: Elaine Butler, Rita Brandon, Jane Edwards, Milann Gannaway, Brenda Hensley, Mary Murphy, Anna Margaret Miller, Becky Middleton, Helen Martin, Robbie Hicks, Becky Parkerson, Deas Parrish, Gayle Smith, Ann Spurgeon, Barbara Suomi, Michelle Varnado.

The closing color ceremony is always impressive. The 200 campers in horseshoe formation around the flag pole repeated the Girl Scout Promise and sang "Whene'er You Make A Promise" in rounds, after which six girls from Whispering Pines unit, lowered and folded the flag. Wearing the green camp uniform of the Scouts and the red sashes that denoted that they were set apart for the purpose of caring for the flag, were Diane Boyd, who gave the orders, Ann Murphy, color bearer, and Becky Mann, Ann Wallace, Marcia Kissell, and Kathleen McCoy, color guards.

From the flag circle, campers walked by twos to the campfire, seating themselves in a semi-circle and singing "Rise Up, O Flame" while Linda Breard and Mary Alice Pankey of Moss Grove unit lighted the fire. Bonnie Baldo of the same unit welcomed the guests and Ann Brinson presided over the brief program. Leaders gave out badge cards to the girls who had fulfilled requirements on which the unit program was based. Some of them were Tree, Insect, Adventurer, Outdoor Safety, Rambler, Campcraft.

Miss Annis Klie camp director, introduced Mr. L. B. Pettit, chairman of the Kiwanis Club committee which was responsible for the camp building eight years ago. She also introduced staff and program aides as follows and gave them credit for the good camp: Mrs. A. W. Wiley, Mrs. Clyde Stringer, Mrs. John H. Brown, Mrs. W. A. Roche, Mrs. D. T. DeMasterson, Mrs. Woodrow Hathorn, Mrs. Frank Halpin, Mrs. Charles Drennan, Mrs. L. L. Nash, Mrs. E. S. Parrish, Mrs. Huckabee, Anne McCarty, Paula Bauer, Karen Bauer, Joan Williams, Anne Pankey, Tish Poe, Alice Butler, Cecie Wood, Sue Gregory, Pat Porter, Diana Jordan, Linda Bird, Janet Noland, Mary, Kate McCarty, Julia Faye Anthony, Carol Groves Anne Hemphill, Dorothy Fortenberry.

The second session is now in full swing, will end Friday with another visitors' day.

"Kitchen and Other Storage Devices" was the demonstration given by the Agent when the Bosco Home Demonstration Club met for their July meeting in the home of Mrs. James Pender.

Following the business session reports were given.

Mrs. C. W. Hair and Mrs. James Pender will attend the Farm and Home Week at L. S. U.

Mrs. Pender and Mrs. Audrey Dawson were visitors.

ENTERTAIN THEM

Be prepared for young visitors by keeping an old suitcase packed with discarded jewelry, veils, both men and women's pocketbooks and hats and other grown up articles the kiddies can play with.

When you use salad dressing mix to season meat, poultry or vegetables, cut down the amount of salt called for in the recipe.

MR. AND MRS. E. C. LANDRUM of Mangham announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Rose Marie Landrum, to Billy Joe Gifford, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. O. Gifford of Bastrop. Mrs. Gifford is a senior student at Louisiana Polytechnic Institute. After her graduation on August 6, the couple will make their home in Dallas, Texas, where Mr. Gifford is employed with Texas Instruments Corporation.

ANN LANDERS
Your Problems

Dear Ann: To announce—or not to announce—that is the question. Whether 'tis nobler to announce your engagement to the man you love and wish to marry, or wait till his mother has used up all her ailment complaints?

I waited four years for my fiance to give me a ring. I got the ring four months ago, but he asked me when he put it on my finger, to please keep it in the box till his mother was "feeling better." I complied with his request, but it's making me madder by the minute.

His mother never liked me because I am not a sorority girl. Her sick spells have kept him away from me many an evening. And now he's asking me to hold off announcing our engagement because the "shock" might be bad for her.

Shall I go ahead and announce it anyway? — DIAMOND JILL

Dear Jill: Why don't you put the blame where it belongs—right on Casper Milktoast's shoulders, instead of directing all that venom toward his scheming mother?

Sure, Mom is pulling everything in the book to keep Sonny Boy on her knee, but only a jelly fish would ask his fiance to keep her ring in the box for four months because he can't bear to tell Mom he plans to take a wife.

I suggest a complete reappraisal. If Casper is afraid to announce an engagement, how on earth do you propose to get him to the altar? If you must clap an ether mask over his face, what good is it?

Dear Ann: I am a European girl who married an American. Maybe you can help me figure out what is wrong with my husband ? Or is it me?

Lately he has stopped talking to me for a few days at a time. Perhaps I say or do something that upsets him. I don't know what it could be. When he gets silent like this I ask him what is the matter. He says, "If you aren't smart enough to figure it out, then I have nothing to say to you."

These moods are making a nervous wreck out of me. I need your help. Is this American behavior or what? — B.B.

Dear B.B.: This isn't American behavior—it's childish behavior, and it can be found in any country where humans live.

His spells of silence probably have nothing to do with you, so stop falling into the trap. When things go wrong elsewhere people often take it out on those around them.

If your husband wants to act like a clam with a broken hinge treat him as you would a 4-year-old who tries to attract attention by sulking in silence.

Dear Ann: I'm 18 my husband is 21. We've been married three months. I work eight hours a day six days a week and take care of our apartment, do all the laundry and cooking. Three nights a week he insists I bowl in a mixed league and on Sunday I teach two classes as well as sing in the choir because he wants me to.

He only works five days a week but refuses to shop for groceries or do any housework. He naps while I get supper and sleeps an hour longer in the morning since he drives to work and I take the bus.

I'm dead tired all the time, yet he expects me to come running whenever he gets a glint in his eye. What can I do? — BEAT BABE

Dear Beat: Your husband is getting away with murder and your're a sap to put up with it. Tell him either you quit your job or he pitches in and helps with the housework and shopping.

You need rest more than exercise. Why not go along to the bowling alley as a spectator? Better get some changes made or you'll be tired for the rest of your life.

Dear Ann: I'm male, 52, and own my own business. I'm not bad looking and have two married daughters. My wife passed away three years ago and I'm very lonely. I suppose I'm crazy to think you could help, but I have nothing to lose but a 4-cent stamp. A few times I've walked into cocktail lounges because I've been so blue. The bartenders are always happy to point out the women in the place who are "looking." As far as I'm concerned, they can KEEP ON LOOKING. I want a decent, rspectable woman around my own age, and they just don't seem to be available.

My greatest pleasure is to play pinochle with the boys. But five nights a week at the card table is a poor substitute for what I really want. What does a guy like me do? — CHRIS

Dear Chris:: A guy like you gets smart and says to himself, "Chris, you're not going to meet any women in that pinochle game." Then he cuts the card-playing to one night a week and joins groups where men and women get together.

Apparently you've been so busy with the boys you haven't been reading me regularly. This is what I recommend: Join a library study group, a church group, an adult education class, a mixed bowling league, an art club, a Great Books group. Go where thinking people gather. You won't find them hanging around cocktail lounges or riveted to bar stools. Get interested in politics. The year 1960 is going to be a great one. The volunteer groups need help and many a romance has boomed at campaign headquarters. Get GOING!

Fall Wardrobe Details Made Known To You

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — Your fall wardrobe already is made. In the next seven days you'll learn details of the makings.

Some 250 fashion reporters from the nation's newspapers, radio and television stations arrive Sunday and Monday for the semi-annual "press week," held by the New York Dress Institute. Their job: To report back to you what is new in fall and winter clothes now ready for shipment from the nation's garment center.

In a single week, the 250 experts will see some 60 designer collections of dresses, coats, suits, sportswear, furs, fabrics and accessories from hats to hosiery.

Here, head to toe, are the major style trends:

Silhouette—For daytime and evening, a back to normal look which means an end to last year's high-waisted empire silhoutte. The ratio of slim to full skirts for day is about 80 per slim, 20 full; for late day, 75 per cent full; short evening gowns, 90 per cent full; long evening gowns, 80 per cent slim.

Necklaces—They come in two major styles, either hugging the base of the neck with three, four, five and six stacked strands, or plunge often with a tassel at the end to a new 22-inch length.

Suits—Most skirts are slim, a few are flat-pleated. Generally, jackets are longer than last fall, coming to hip length, or if you want to measure them as some designers do, to wrist length. Some suit jackets are even longer, almost tunic in appearance. Designers frequently belt the jackets, which are shaped in at the waistline so they also look good without the belt.

Coats—Belted waistlines run through the collections. A few are straight cut, without any swing. The fitted coat returns, either belted or cut on the princess line. Giant fur collars muffling a woman's neck are shown on casual, tweedy wraparounds reminescent of the 1930's.

Costumes—Dress and coordinated coat or jacket are shown for both daytime and evening. Some of the evening coats, in lush brocades and satins, are fully lined with fur.

Price—Women's Wear Daily, the trade publication, said clothing costs probably will be up slightly from last year because of the use of more imported fabrics and because general costs have risen.

Other Highlights—Look for fur hats, fur trims, fur linings using everything from hamster to Zebra. Watch for muted colors; for every shade of blue; for brown to compete with black and gray as a basic; and for a whole group of near whites—bisque, oyster, warm ivory, sand and cream.

Watch for frosted tweeds for daytime dress and suits; for woolens with a fluffy or fuzzy pile; for sheer wool crepe, wool chiffon and mohair lace for cocktail and evening clothes, while the sumptuous silks, satins and lames turn up as a blouse or as lining for tweed and other street woolens.

CHA-CHA-CHA—This French fashion takes on the flavor of Spanish paprika in a daring dance dress of flame red taffeta with swirled "pouff" tiers, the work of Parisian designer Yves Saint - Laurent. It was among the House of Dior's New York collection shown to visiting fashion editors at today's opening of the New York Dress Institute fall showings.

MISS FAYE BRAZZEL will become the bride of Dr. Charles D. Weaver in the fall. The announcement is made by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Brazzel. He is the son of Mrs. Beatrice Weaver and the late Mr. Weaver. They are all of this city. The wedding will take place in the Southside Methodist Church with the Reverend Lea Joyner officiating.

SAVING FACE

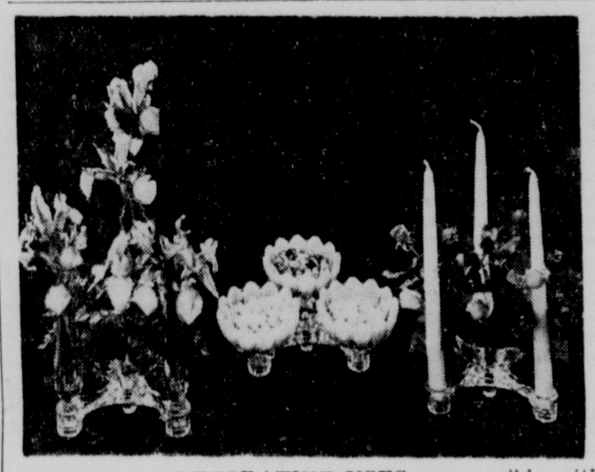
EXAMPLE OF WIDE USE OF FUR IN FALL FASHIONS — This white and gold gauze evening gown with matching sable-bordered cape, designed by Ben Reig, shows the accent on luxury in fall fashions. Gown was shown today among fall previews presented by New York designers for 240 fashion editors from all parts of the country. (AP Wirephoto)



DOZENS OF DECORATIVE USES are possible with new add-a-part crystal. Consisting of three basic pieces (Trindle Candle Arm; Peg Vase; and Flora Candle/Snack Bowl) you will be able to create table and mantel decorations which will become conversation pieces.

Farm, Home Week At LSU

By AUDREY DAWSON

It is time to make plans to attend Farm and Home Week at Louisiana State University August 10-13. Tuesday, August 11 will be Farm and Family Finance Day. Lecture, discussions and demonstration topics during the day will include: How to Save Money in Using Credit, Insurance Needs of the Family, Who Should Handle the Family Finances, The Writing of Wills and Health Insurance.

WORKSHOP

Ten enthusiastic members of the Liberty Home Demonstration Club met at the home of Mrs. Archie White on Highway 80 last week and made a sewing storage cabinet. Your columnist gave a demonstration on storage this month to the members of the club on making the cabinet. Members enjoyed the day at the workshop —they were Mrs. Clifford Foster, Mrs. Pete Griggs, Mrs. Loyd Coon, Mrs. Pat Camp, Mrs. Bill Walker, Mrs. Jerry Lovett, Mrs. Allen Goodling, Mrs. Johnnie Gross, Mrs. Jessie Aulds, and Mrs. Archie White.

REFRIGERATOR CARE

Constant care of the refrigerator increases its useful lifetime and prevents the need for many costly repairs. Normal care involves regular defrosting, keeping the refrigerator clean, and storing food properly. Defrosting is recommended when the frost is one fourth inch thick. Never use a sharp tool to dislodge the frost. Defrosting can be speeded up by placing a deep saucepan filled with hot water in the freezing compartment.

Plastic door gaskets require no special attention, but rubber gaskets must be kept free of grease to prevent deterioration.

Cover all foods stored in the refrigerator. Round dishes are better than square ones unless there is plenty of space around them. Never use paper to wrap foods because it keeps the cold air away from the food.

BUILDING, REMODELING

Simplicity is the number one factor to strive for when building or remodeling. Simplicity is achieved through consolidation of areas and spaces. Activities overlap in areas for work, rest and play, therefore, areas used for many activities can be combined and shaped into one simple overall area. This combination of activities or uniting of areas, such as family room and kitchen, bathroom, laundry, or living - dining results in larger areas and greater simplicity of design.

Simplicity of the over all design also reduces the original building cost. Extra corners and angles and different floor levels and roof lines increase the building costs.

A house with good design has space for family living, homemaking and house keeping — functional designs allow plenty of room for people and activities necessary for people and activities well being of the family.

SIZE OF BEDROOM

If you are planning to build a home, I know you will be interested in the recent studies made on the size of bedrooms. According to the study, 171 square feet for the master bedroom and 105 square feet for the second and third bedrooms are the smallest sizes recommended for a 1500 square foot house.

These amounts provide activity space for good livability and space for necessary furniture additional space should be allowed for closets and partitions. In a master bedroom of 171 square feet, space is provided for twin beds, dresser, vanity, easy chair and a desk. This allows for a three foot space on each side of the twin beds. A bedroom 9½ feet by 18 feet permits the best use of space but is not so pleasing as a room 12½ by 15 feet.

The second or third bedroom of 105 square feet allows space for a double bed and for at least two additional pieces of furniture. In order to have more than one possible location for the bed, an area of 110 square feet is needed.

At least four feet of closet space per person should be allowed in an average size house. In larger houses, 6 feet per person is recommended. If you, Mrs. Homemaker, are interested in making the storage cabinet, call our office, FA 3-2251, for the directions and materials needed.

Use Correct Preparation For Painting

By ANDY LANG

Paint manufacturers know what their product will or will not do. But they are not likely to give you a guarantee because they have no assurance you will do the things necessary to enable the product to do its work.

A large percentage of paint failures is caused by inadequate preparation of the surface. Without this necessary step, even the best quality paint is likely to prove disappointing.

In general, all surfaces to be painted must be free of dirt, dust, oil and grease and, in the case of metal, free of rust or other corrosion. If solvent - thinned paints are used, the surface must be dry, a requirement that is not necessary for water-thinned latex paints.

SAND IT SMOOTH

Wooden surfaces that are being painted for the first time must be sanded smooth. Nailheads should be countersunk and spot-primed with a rust - inhibiting primer and the holes filled with putty. Knots and sap streaks should receive a coat of knot sealer, shellac or aluminum paint to prevent the wood resins from bleeding through.

New wood requires a primer, a paint specially formulated to adhere firmly to wood and provide an even surface for the top-coat. Finish coats applied to unprimed wood will be absorbed unevenly and wil not adhere properly. The primer for enamels is known as an enamel undercoater. It is wise to use a primer made by the manufacturer of the top coat which is being used.

When repainting previously painted exterior surfaces in good condition, the preparation consists only of brushing away dirt and any chalking paint. Loose, flaking or blistering paint should be wire - brushed and-or scraped. Exposed wood should then be primed as if it were a new surface. Where the paint has blistered, cracked or alligatored very badly, the loose paint should be completely removed to the bare wood and the edges of the sound paint sandpapered smooth before priming and repainting.

GLOSS HAMPERS ADHESION

Interior wood is usually coated with gloss or semi-gloss enamel because of the easy washability of these coatings. But this very gloss interferes with the adhesion of later coats. So, when painting over enamel, dull the shine with fine sandpaper or one of the liquid preparations designed for this purpose.

Metal surfaces, after being freed of dirt, oil and corrosion, require their own special type of anti-corrosive primer, such as zinc chromate, red lead, blue lead or a new primer that contains processed sardine oil. Galvanized metals should be primed with zinc dust - zinc oxide paint. All loose rust must be removed before painting no matter what kind of primer is used.

Cracks or holes in plaster walls or ceilings should be filled before the room is painted. Small cracks can be fileld with spackling compound. Large cracks and holes require patching plaster. After the filler has dried, sand it thoroughly. If a water - thinned latex paint is being used, no primer is required, since latex paints are not affected by the alkali in new plaster. Other paints require an undercoat of alkali-resistant primer before the top coat is applied.

Bid Of Houston Firm Apparently Low On Project

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—An apparent low bid of $14,726,871 for construction of Old River lock facilities in South Louisiana was announced here Friday by the Army Corps of Engineers.

The bids were opened by W. R. Slaughter, director of public relations on a project the Army engineers estimated would cost $15,218,400.

The project was described as the largest single one contracted by the Army Corps of Engineers since the New Orleans district was established in 1867.

Col. G. M. Cookson, district engineer, said contract would be awarded after the bids are evaluated.

Summer Porch Play Area For Year Round Use

A summer porch can be made into a year - around den or play area. It requires only some planning, ingenuity and work by the family craftsman. As a second living room, the old porch will be welcome when Sister's date comes over, for example. When there are unexpected guests it can serve as an extra bedroom, too.

Before undertaking this project, check such things as the local building regulations, whether the porch foundations need reinforcement, how you are going to heat the space and how much you want to spend. Make your plans and your estimates before taking the plunge.

Economy and life of the materials used for the walls are major considerations. The appearance, too, is a factor. As a remodeling panel, Masonite Presdwood is popular because of its reasonable cost, excellent paint - taking and holding qualities and long life. It is easily worked, too, with regular carpentry tools.

Linoleum or asphalt tile will make an ideal flooring surface for this extra room. Assure long life for the floor covering by laying over Masonite Underlayment, a precision - calipered hardboard which goes directly over the old floor and bridges gaps that would wear through otherwise.

In planning the remodeling, consider insulation, combination screens and storm sash; also correct lighting with ample outlets for lamps and electrical appliances.

Water Best Measure For Tree Borer

It shouldn't happen to a dogwood, but borer injury frequently does!

Infestation is avoidable, but the horse may be out of the stable and the adult insect out of the wood by this time. The infestation that began in the spring usually leaves little external evidence. Borer presence is evidenced only when branches begin to die or when the life cycle is complete and exit holes of the adult insect are found.

P. C. Heintzman, field representative of the Davey Tree Expert Co., advises not to worry about spraying now — it's too late for that. However, you can help your dogwoods survive the ordeal by keeping them in reasonably good vigor. This means seeing that the trees have plenty of water and that they are pruned and fed with a good food high in nitrogen content.

The common dogwood borer (Thamnosphecia scitula) is considered one of the widest ranging and most destructive species. Fortunately, excellent control is afforded by springtime spraying. That is why every week - end gardener who prizes his flowering dogwoods should circle a reminder on next year's calendar. Thorough wetting of the trunk and large branches with a DDT solution seems to thwart the malevolent borer.

One of the important things to remember about dogwoods is that they're most open to attack when thirstiest. Borers seem to prefer to attack trees deficient in moisture. Make sure the trees on your grounds get enough to drink.

GARDEN CENTER NOTES

Garden Study Club Displays

By MARY JARDINE

Many of you will be traveling North, South, East or West on your vacations and will want to include a little garden sight-seeing on your trips. I have been asked how to go about garden-sight seeing, and how to get lists. It would be impossible to make a list of all the gardens worth seeing as America is too big and it would take a lifetime to see them all.

Starting in our own state there is the beautiful Hodges Gardens in Many, Louisiana. Here you will find a charming medley of flowers, trees and wildlife, open year round from 8 a.m. until sunset.

Jungle Gardens, Avery Island is of interest at all months of the year. Egrets will still be nesting this month. Zemurry Gardens, Tickfaw, Independence Louisiana is a beautiful setting, noted for its azaleas, but lovely at all times of the year. State tourist bureaus, Chamber of Commerce in cities can provide many lists. If you are a Federated Garden Club member write to the State Visiting Garden Chairman, Mrs. T. C. Patin, P. O. Box 531 Hammond, for a visiting card, giving the name of yaur garden club president, and the cities and states you will visit.

OUT OF STATE

Am listing a few botanic gardens in various locations. You will certainly want to visit these if you are near. The list is, of course, by no means complete. Missouri Botanic Gardens. St. Louis, Mo. The permanent home of the Federated Garden Clubs adjoins the gardens.

The Fairchild Tropical Garden at Coral Gables, Florida is one of the great botanical gardens of the world. It contains tropical trees and plants from almost every tropical area. Fort Worth Botanic Garden, Fort Worth, Texas. Portland International Rose Test Gardens, Portland, Oregon (City of Roses) Strybing Arboretum, Golden Gate Park, San Francisco, California. Brooklyn Botanic Garden, Brooklyn, N. Y., and New York Botanical Garden in Bronx Park, New York City. Boyce Thompson Southwestern Arboretum, Superior, Arizona, Collection of desert plants from all over the world. These are just a few.

LAESHORE EXHIBITS

Mrs. Tracy Higdon designed a lovely summer - time arrangement in colors of yellow, green and tan. The round bowl was earth tan, with a triangular design composed of umbrella plant, green calla leaves and yellow "cut and come back" flowers emphasizing the pattern. A group of nandina berries was placed low behind the lower flowers accenting the right angle of the triangle. A gay arrangement suitable for a pastel gray, green or yellow background, or a panelled wall.

COLOR HARMONY

Mrs. C. R. Watson selected a color harmony of red - violet and green for her triangular design. The container was a white classic compote in which Mrs. Watson arranged amaryllis foliage and red-violet dahliasin a triangular pattern. Foliage of the bottlebrush, violet - tipped and buds of crepe myrtle, in green and violet tones accented the line. The color blending was most appealing.

Mrs. Jody Rodden created a cool and refreshing foliage arrangement. The essence of simplicity, the line was vertical, broadening at the base. The small compote was of milk glass with three vertical placements of umbrella plant (cyperus alternifolius). Three caladium leaves, green and white, pink tinged were placed around the base. Very airy and cool. The umbrella plant resembles a miniature clump of palm trees. This is a splendid plant for the edge of a pool or a damp, boggy place in the garden.

THE SOUTHERN GARDENER

All Not Bad About Weeds

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

While we are struggling to keep weeds out of our lawns and flower gardens, it is comforting to think that everything about weeds is not bad. In fact, a wed, by definition, is merely a misplaced plant. Back in 1914, Dr. Liberty Hyde Bailey, the great horticulturist who compiled our Standard Cyclopedia of Horticulture had a lot of kind things to say about weeds. Since that time, some of the leading farm specialists have taken up for them, too.

ENRICH SOIL

Some people even advocate that we plant and cultivate certain weeds in our fields of corn and other crops! Pigweed, ragweed, giant ragweed, sunflowers, lamb's quarters, cocklebur, annual black nightshade, milkweed, sow thistle and ground cherry, they say are superior plants for enriching the soil. Because these weeds have not lost their power to send down roots deep into the subsoil and open it up to the roots of the cultivated crops, it is advocated that we actually plant them in limited numbers with the crops.

Weeds have followed man around from camp site to camp site since his primitive days. They have developed the ability to get along and keep going, even on poor land. When a field is left untilled, the weeds come up thickly on it and hold it together. Without them, all the soil would wash away in a short time. Many fields that have been left uncultivated because they were no longer productive have come back into fertility aftercrops of weeds have sent down their roots and brought up the food from the area where cultivated crops could not reach it.

AID CULTIVATION

Probably the best thing that the deep delving weeds do for poor land, however, is to fill it with roots and penetrate the lower soil and even the hard pan that lies under some areas. Dr. Bailey recommended in that early edition of his great work to which we referred that farmers raise a crop of weeds and turn them under in the late fall for the humus or green manure they will provide.

In modern times, we have learned the great virtues of many plants that are "weeds" in their native lands. The yellow and the white - flowered sweetclovers that we cultivate today are merely weeds in their native Bokhara, and our invaluable crotalarias are the same in the sub - tropics. Can you imagine farmers actually growing weeds and cultivating a limited number of them with their crops? You may live to see it done.

The weeds that you pull from the garden should go right onto the compost pile. Pull them before they set seeds. Otherwise your compost may be so full of seeds that you may be sorry they were added to the heap. It is a shame to lose all the good plant food that the weeds have used up in the garden by throwing your weeds away. When they rot, you have both fertilizer and humus to put back in the flower beds.

Lead Causes Grave Illness In Children

Lead poisoning from paint is a serious illness, claiming most of its victims among children between the ages of one and four years, according to M. E. Kossack of the Louisiana State Board of Health.

As part of its accident prevention program, the board has outlined causes and symptoms of lead poisoning in children and tells how best to prevent it.

Eating lead paint is the most common cause of lead poisoning in children. Children who are teething will chew on anything, including window sills, stair railings, and peeling wall paint, as well as outdoor painted surfaces.

Some children get an appetite for such things, and will chew on them even when they are not teething. In older homes and buildings, especially, where woodwork and walls may have several layers of paint on them, parents need to keep a sharp watch on small children.

Specifically, public health officials advise parents to do these things:

1. Give your child safe things to chew on; 2. Keep your child away from anything covered with peeling, flaked or blistered paint 3. Remove all peeling, flaking or blistered paint from windowsills, woodwork and furniture with a scraper or sandpaper; 4. Repaint with paint that contains less than one percent lead; 5. If you have some left-over paint, be sure to mark the can with the correct lead content; 6. If you repaint any toys or furniture for children be sure to use paint with less than one percent lead; 7. If you live in a rented place and don't know what kind of paint has been used take care to keep your child from chewing the surfaces.

Danger signs of lead poisoning are: pains in the stomach; a sick stomach and frequent vomiting; many headaches, muscle weakness, or constant tiredness, and spasms.

If your child east paint, or shows any of the danger signals, take him to your doctor.

Parents interested in more complete information may obtain a free illustrated pamphlet, "How to Prevent Lead Poisoning in the Home," by writing to the Louisiana State Board of Health, post office box 630, New Orleans.

Shutters Give House Exterior Decorative Lift

The appearance of many houses is improved by the addition of decorative shutters. These may be built in the home workshop with the assurance that the cost is low and the appearance is architecturally correct.

To obtain the correct proportionate size, measure the windows as you would for screens. Use the height and half the width of this size for each shutter.

Saw the framework from seasoned 1 by 2-inch lumber and nail the pieces together. Now lay the frame on a panel of Masonite three - sixteenths inch tempered hardboard. Trace the outline on the hardboard and cut it to size.

Then fasten the frame to the panel with three - quarter inch nails and waterproof glue.

Instead of the smooth - surfaced hardboard, many home owners like one with a pattern such as vertical grooves or striations. Like the smooth - surfaced hardboard, these decorative panels are available at lumber yards at a few pennies more per square foot.

If an ornament is desired, make a cardboard pattern of a squirrel, deer, ship or other object. Trace the outlines on another piece of Masonite. Saw out the figures with a scroll saw, paint a contrasting color and fasten them to the shutters with waterproof glue after the shutters are painted. Their position should be just above the center of the shutters.

Give both sides of the shutters a coat of primer and two coats of good quality outdoor paint. Fasten the shutters to the house with brass screws.

Airlines Adopt Weight Estimate Rule On Baggage

WASHINGTON (AP) — The scheduled airlines announced Saturday a new streamlined method of handling passenger baggage on domestic flights.

They won't weigh it any more —unless it looks as if it exceeds the 40-pound free limit.

The Air Transport Assn. said the government has approved the new method of estimating passenger baggage loads instead of weighing each piece.

The association said it will save passengers time and the airlines operating costs. One airline estimates the new procedures will save it $150,000 a year.

Each piece of checked luggage will be figured as weighing 23½ pounds, and each piece carried by the passenger on the plane at five pounds.

For some years, the airlines have used an average weight for passengers themselves — figuring one at 160 pounds in summertime and 165 pounds, because of heavier clothing, in winter.

Under the new baggage rule, if your bag looks heavy the airline may want to weigh it anyway—to see if you owe excess charges for poundage beyond the free limit.

PRINCESS IN PRACTICE

LONDON (UPI)—Princess Anne has been sprinting down the halls of Buckingham Palace in order to be able to uphold the royal family honor Saturday, when she visits her brother, Prince Charles, at Cheam School. Last year, at annual sports day at Cheam, Anne competed in a race of pupils' sisters and was badly beaten.

Prof Changes To Balsam In Botany Class

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

CHAPPAQUA, N.Y. — Statistically speaking, botany should certainly be added to the old three Rs of education (maybe as Reaping?). Boys may grow up to be engineers, doctors, lawyers, supermarket managers or insurance salesmen. Girls may train to be nurses, secretaries, teachers or dieticians. The odds are that both, however, will also wind up as homeowners and as such will be charged with the care and manicuring of lawn and garden.

As homeowners even a little botanical knowledge is a big help, and any child whose interest in gardening is stimulated at an early age will later be grateful to the teacher, be it at school or at home. A number of gardening mothers of my acquaintance make sporadic attempts to fascinate their offspring - particularly around seed-sowing time —with the wonders of nature. For most kids, this doesn't hold much fascination because gardening things happen so slowly—even the emergence of radish seedlings, just about our speediest producer. Gourds, while colorful and curious, are also slow to grow. That's why a little botany should be as mandatory as reading, writing and arithmetic: a lot of children may resist them, but somehow they absorb enough to get by later on.

And if I were setting up such a program, I'e emphasize the practical aspects—the gardening pa—of the subject, and teach the children not only the identification of common grasses, flowers, shrubs and trees, but also of weeds, insects and birds, good and bad. I'd instruct them how to sow seed, how to transplant—and I'd show the giris how to put oil on the moving parts of tools, and I'd instruct the boys how to maintain power equipment.

Harriet Creighton of the Wellesley College Botany Department told me recently that students, when they finally reached her department, were so bored with the experimental planting of bean seeds (beans are the class lic plant for demonstration of germination) that she has switched to garden balsam. She says it's great: indoors in cold weather, or outdoors in benign, you can expect to get flowers—results! — in seven weeks. Which is not a bad tip for the midsummer gardener who would like some fresh, early fall bloom in the borders along with the asters and chrysanthemums.

Meanwhile, hot weather maintenance is the lot of most of us: keeping the annuals free of withering flower heads; cutting the lawn with mower blades high (2 to 2½ inches) to protect the shallow roots from blazing sunshine; weeding and watering and spraying.

A tough winter—cold but without much snow to protect the roots of many plants—carried off a lot of perennials and shrubs, but I suspect it also destroyed a lot of pests. In this area at least, the Japanese beetle population seems to have been reduced sharply. Maybe that is because more people are using anti-beetle sprays and dusts, but I suspect that the most effective control of many pests still is nature herself—natural enemies and the weather.

Senator Seeks States' Rights Decency Rulings

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Sen. Olin D. Johnston (D-S.C.) has called for early hearings on his proposed constitutional amendment to let each state decide its own standards of "decency and morality" in such things as book and movie censorship.

Johnston wrote Chairman James O. Eastland (D-Miss.) of the Senate Judiciary Committee Friday that the measure is needed because of a recent U. S. district court decision prohibiting the Post Office from banning the novel "Lady Chatterley's Lover" from the mails.

Johnston earlier urged the Post Office to appeal the ruling. He said he hoped a higher court would reinstate the ban on what he called a "disgracefully obscene book."

In his letter to Eastland, Johnston said "it would be of great help in this situation if you could call for hearings on this resolution at an early date in order that this problem may be fully aired."

Johnston, a member of the committee, said his proposal would "guarantee the right of each state on the basis of its own public policy to decide questions of decency and morality and to enact legislation with respect thereto."

THE HOME SHIFT

Transplanting Bearded Iris

By MILDRED SWIFT

Garden jobs should be done early in the morning. Few can do heavy work in the heat, because we're not accustomed to it. If you stay in air conditioning most of the 24 hours, it does do you good to get out, perspire a little to send off some of the poisons from the body.

Back in May we said to transplant bearded iris immediately after they bloomed or wait until the last of July or August. You can divide and transplant those now, if they're too crowded. Work bone meal in the soil and plant shallow.

At this time of year many vines get out of bounds. If you have such a situation, cut them back. Don't cut back the white blooming clematis until after it blooms, which will be next month.

GARDEN JOBS

It's time to cut the tops off your violet plants. Violets will take lots of fertilizer. Well rotted barnyard manure is excellent. Also cotton seed meal. By cutting the tops now you get rid of some of the hiding places for the red spider. Also, you induce more blooms with longer stems, later on.

When you walk out in the garden and see the violet foliage all yellow and sick, you have red spider. Spray with malathion or dust with sulphur.

Violets have a way of disappearing unless you divide and transplant every three or four years. This is not the time of year to do that. Spring is best.

Red spider is also an enemy of summer phlox, as is mildew. If you have some of these phlox in your garden dust with sulphur, when the foliage is dry. These phlox also require plenty of water.

During dry spells, mist your camellias late in the afternoon. The foliage needs a certain amount of moisture.

Leave grass clippings on the lawn. In this hot sun they're gone in a day or two. They decay and add organic matter to the soil. If you rake these clippings you are depleting the soil of some of it's best qualities.

You can transplant and divide sour native iris now. They're going dormant. They too should be planted shallow, but a little deeper than the bearded varieties. These plants like an acid soil, so use plenty of decayed vegetable matter. If you have a poorly drained spot in your garden, this is an excellent place for native iris.

If your hybrid tea roses have weak or dead branches, prune these. This dead wood contributes nothing to the plant and their removal may induce new stout canes to put out.

Keep blooms picked and dead plantings carried off. Put all this on the compost heap it it's insect free. Keep the compost turned once a month if there's anybody around with that much muscle.

CUTTINGS

From the number of calls coming in, it seems I need to go into detail more on making cuttings now from azaleas, camellias, and other evergreens. This is the time to root these plants because the current season's growth has hardened sufficiently.

Cuttings may be rooted in the yard, in a flat or cutting box or in the greenhouse. To root cuttings in the yard, select a well drained, shaded spot, preferably on the north side of the garden.

Ma cuttings from three to six inches in length, use only healthy ones, with no disease. Remove all leaves except the upper two. Using commercial growth promoting preparations give good results as root inducers. These materials hasten root formation. Roots are formed in a shorter length of time. Use according to the instructions.

Good rooting media include coarse builder's sand, mixture of sand and peat moss, or a mixture of sand and vermiculite. For full instructions on rooting cuttings call our office for a camellia bulletin written by Kimbrough, Hanchey and Roussel.

JUST LIKE NEW

Yes, you can keep your clothes looking just like new with the plastic starch now on the market. This can be used on all materials except wool — on any fabric that will wash.

Plastic starch is not sold by that name, but under a trade name. Look on the container and if you see that it contains CMC, then you have what you want.

Mrs. Ethel Fuller, Home Demonstration Agent from Madison Parish, has been working with this starch for a year. She says its advantages are: (1) It refinishes the material without covering up the fibers, leaving the garment looking as it did before it was laundered. (2) Does not make the fabric stiff, therefore, it does not wrinkle easily, (3) (3) Since the fiber is not coated, the starch leaves the material cool. It is excellent for dark colors.

The starch comes in two kinds, both liquid, one white, the other blue to use on dark colors. It is not expensive.

Read the instructions and follow exactly. The garment must be starched, allowed to dry completely, sprinkled and rolled up for a minimum of one hour. This is to allow the starch to coat the fibers well.

FALL MATERIALS

Have you ever seen anything so bea tiful as the new fall cottons? Plaids, prints, mosaics, oriental designs and just about anything you'd like.

Watch for a waistline that is very wide. Some have deep bias bands or belt like strips set in dresses and suits at the midriff. There are belts, cummerbunds and sashes to be worn at the waistline.

One designer said that the waistlines return to normal was but a brief pause to a downward trend. The shaped in sheath is back with soft full bosom line, deep dolman, balloon or puff sleeves, big cape collars and draped scarf necklines. The look is width at the top of the body, slimmer below. The shirtwaist dress and little suits are modernized into extra sharp, clean outlines — triple stacked pleats, split tunics, terraced tiers; welt seams emphasizing deep yokes.

The look of the "30's" is headed our way as well as the "little boy look".

You'll see lots of fur, brocades, jewelled embroidery and beading. Yet — you'll still wear the slim longer jacket strictly trailored suit and the standby "little" dress.

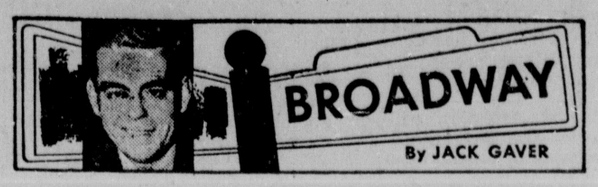
PENN HOTEL FA 5-4659



NEW YORK (UPI) — One of the most unrewarding and baffling things connected with the drama must be the reading of Shakespeare's "The Merry Wives of Windsor."

In almost everything else he wrote there is the lyric sweep of poetic dialogue to provide a certain compensation even in those plays that may not be otherwise interesting.

Not so in the case of this potboiler, which the bard is supposed to have turned out in two weeks' time as a special entertainment for Queen Elizabeth I. No time for the metered line, the flowery, poetic phrase.

Moreover, a mere reading of the script, without the assistance of an electronic computer, is apt to result in the impression that the story line is gibberish. Other Shakespearean plots certainly are involved enough, but in the case of this play there is no element to make you care sufficiently to give it the attention that will result in lucidity.

It is, therefore, a play that needs a lot of doing in the directing and the acting if it is going to be a rewarding and non-baffling entertainment. Fortunately, it gets both of these things in the production just added to the repertoire of the American Shakespeare Festival Theater in Stratford, Conn.

The result is as merry an entertainment as anyone could ask and one of the most felicitous productions in the five seasons of the Stratford organization. It is difficult to imagine the sort of person who would not get a kick out of it, be he foe or friend of Shakespeare in general.

The major credit for this triumph has to go to the co-directors John Houseman and Jack Landau, who usually do solo staging jobs at Stratford. Not only because their imaginations and inventiveness have put the flesh of understanding on the dramatic skeleton, but because they also have been responsible for casting it so perceptively.

For all that he has proved himself a fine actor many times in varied roles, there can't be many who would think of casting Larry Gates as Sir John Falstaff. But there he is, one of the finer Falstaffs in this or the other Shakespearean works featuring the fat, larcenous, bibulous knight.

I also consider it perceptive and laudable that the directors have seen fit to let actresses in the roles of the Mistresses Ford, Page and Quickly be attractive and comparatively young instead of being the dowdy, middle-aged type that even doddering Sir John wouldn't bother to cozen.

These actresses, respectively, are Nancy Wickwire, Nancy Marchand and Sada Thompson. It is impossible to fault the first two, yet it seems to me that a little extra praise should go to Miss Thompson in the Quickly role. She makes this meddling baggage completely enchanting, makes the role stand out to a degree I do not recall in any previous production.

Then there is Hiram Sherman as Ford, who pays opportunist Falstaff to find out if he is being made a cuckold by Falstaff. Sherman has been a delight in many Broadway roles for years. He is at his best here. And Will Geer, Frederic Warriner, Richard Waring, Patrick Hines, Richard Easton, Barbara Barrie, Morris Carnovsky Edward Asner, Jack Bittner, and Lowell Harris — richly rewarding in roles large and small.

Important also are the contributions of a new scenic designer, Will Steven Armstrong, and the costuming organization known simply as Motley. Armstrong contributes a delicate beauty to the austerity of the formalized Stratford stage with a series of flyable panels that are both decorative and utilitarian.

"The Merry Wives of Windsor" joins "Romeo and Juliet" in this season's Stratford repertoire, augmented by a few remaining performances of last summer's admirable "A Midsummer Night's Dream." The third and last production of the season will be "All's Well That Ends Well," due on July 29.

RECORDS

CONCERT

By DELOS SMITH
United Press International

NEW YORK (UPI) — Erich Leinsdorf's recent successes as an operatic conductor have been enough to obscure his stature as a master of the symphony. It is well to be reminded, and you are, most pleasantly, by his handling of Brahms' 3rd, with the Philnarmonic Orchestra (Capitol-SP8483.)

You'd guess Brahms would be pleased with this conductor who does not fuss and fiddle but is all directness in a straight-line way. This utter lack of preciousness suits this composer, and this work particularly since its riches are all the richer in their purity when revealed without straining.

Leopold Stokowski still works hard and effectively as a conductor. The proof is in three recordings of his, with the Symphony of the Air: of Khachaturian's 2nd symphony; Shostakovich's 1st, along with a prelude and the "Lady Macbeth" entr'cate of that composer; and Ben - Hami's "From Israel" along with Bloch's Schelomo (United Artists - 7002-04-05).

These are all works which American listeners have associated with Stokey since the works were new. He's always been a man to glory in the so - called moderns, and these modern composers he conducts as though he owned them, from having espoused them and crusaded for them for so long.

On the other hand, the much younger conductor, Jean Martinon, gives more bounce and dash to Shostakovich's 1st, which is a youthful symphony for all its maturity, since the composer was 19 when he composed it. Martinon recorded it with the London Symphony Orchestra, along with the suite Shostakovich made from his ballet score, "The Age of Gold." As music divorced from dancing, it's dullish (RCA Victor LM2322).

But you'll admire the ballet score of Falla's "The Three Cornered Hat" because it stands well on its own — and because it was recorded by the Madrid Concert Orchestra, Jesus Arambarri conducting, with Spanish accents and mannerisms (Columbia - ML5358).

New records of the classical masters which have the highest musical merits, are these: Sylvia Marlowe playing Bach's Italian Concerto, a toccato and a contrapunctus on the harpsichord (Decca-710012) the Munich Chamber Orchestra playing Haydn concertos for flute and for oboe with Kurt Redel and Kurt Kalmus playing the solo instruments (Deutsche Grammophon - 712001); and the Vienna Philharmonic, Joseph Krips honducting, playing Haydn's 94th ("Surprise") and 99th symphonies (London-CS6027).

NEW YORK (UPI) — Almost a decade ago, RCA-Victor took a vast step forward by issuing on long - play records a five - set album of dance numbers played by Glenn Miller and his Orchestra.

Miller had been given up for dead before the end of World War II and some of the younger generation had never heard of him. And even though the album was expensive, it sold fast.

A few years later RCA-Victor issued another heavy Glenn Miller album which likewise went fast over the counter.

Now a third but much smaller (three LP's) album, "For the First Time" (RCA - Victor LPM-610), is making its appearance. Like the others, this LP is made from carefully preserved "air checks" of Miller's radio shows. But unlike the others it is a marvel in sound. Fred Reynold and Mickey Crofford used all their technical know - how in making this music of 20 years ago sound as though it were recorded only yesterday.

Medleys are used profusely and the album never becomes tedious. It is dance music at its best. There will never be another band like Miller's.

Another notable reprise from yesteryear is a two LP-album, "Tommy Dorsey's Greatest Band" (20th-Fox TCP 101-2). Dorsey's style was different from Miller's but he built up a following that remained faithful through the years.

This, too, is an excellent engineering job and the selection of tunes, ranging from "Boogie Woogie" to "I'm Getting Sentimental Over You," Dorsey's theme, has enough change of pace to hold the listener through the entire work.

SELECTED SINGLES — "Ragtime Cowboy Joe" by David Seville and the Chipmunks (Liberty F-55200), "Ronnie Is My Lover" by The Delicates (Unart-UR-2017). "Shadows on the Old Bayou" by Johnny Horton (Dot 15966). "Thank You Pretty Baby" by Brook Benton (Mercury 71478). "Clementine" by Col Joye and The Joy Boys (Decca 9-30933).

FOR DANCING — "Everybody Likes to Cha Cha Cha" features Rene Block and his Big Latin Band in an assortment of American and Latin tunes in cha cha beat (Hi Fi Record R-819) . . . "I Dreamt I danced the Cha Cha-Cha, Merengue, Mamo, Wa Pa Cha and the Rumba," a fine mixture of Latin rhythms played by various orchestras (Tico 1060).

STEREOSCOPE — "Porgy and Bess" (Columbia OS-2016) is taken from the sound track of the movie produced by Sam Goldwyn. This is a superb recording of Gershwin's music . . . "All American Accordionist" by Tony Lavelli with Orchestra (Urania USD-2021). An accordion ordinarily would not be suited to stereo but Lavelli lets the orchestra take the other channel and the result is fine three - dimensional sound.

HEALTHY OUTLETS

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Vincent Price believes "escape" pictures. including mystery, action and horror films, are the most suitable kind of movies for teenage audiences.

He rasons that today's youth is living in a frantic world requiring healthy emotional outlets. He maintains that a good "Escape" picture, whether it's a western, a mystery or a so-called shocker, provides that outlet.

Chevy shows how a real pro handles the hot ones!

You'll find four 10703 heavyweights working out of Tucson for Construction Materials, Inc. They tote big, bruising ready-mix loads up and down mountain grades and through the furnace heat of Arizona desert country. According to Mr. H. K. Creswell, a company executive, "You couldn't ask for more out of a truck. They handle every run we put them on . . . and cost less to buy and maintain than any make we've had."

Big-tonnage operators don't become Chevy believers overnight. If you're used to big oversized rigs, you might question Chevy's lean-muscled modern design. Once you get one in action though, all the questioning stops.

Then you see how pure efficiency stacks up against excess pounds. It's Chevrolet's advanced engineering and quality control that make the difference. Its soundly constructed chassis and sheet metal. Its slick-shifting 5-speed box mated to high-torque Workmaster V8 performance. Its precise steering and handling ease. That's why so many heavy-duty owners are being converted to Chevy. Your Chevrolet dealer's the man to see.

Your Baby And Mine

There is no argument at all but that a young mother with a young baby and other children gets desperately tired during the day. The day begins early, children need constant supervision as well as food, washing, naps and on and on. By night time such a mother is ready to drop.

When there is a young baby, there will be interruptions of the night's sleep. Even if this interruption is only a half hour or so in length, it may take a little time to get back to sleep again. Night after night of this makes a mother as frantic as the young mother who wrote to me and said, "You have to do something for me!"

MUST HAVE HELP

Sometimes the only person who can help a mother is the mother herself. If the work and long hours are beyond the capacity of a mother to endure, she has to get outside help. She has to call on relatives to take over for an hour or so a day, or she has to enlist the aid of the father at night. Driving herself beyond her endurance is bad for her and for her children, too. An exhausted mother is a cross mother.

There is another suggestion well within most mother's powers to perform, and that is to take a daily nap when the children are doing so. I know all the arguments against that, too. This is the best time to get work done, being the chief of these. But which is more important, a rested mother who makes a patient mother for her children, or one whose house is shining and her nerves frayed?

Even one-half hour of sleep will work wonders for a tired person. If she loses an hour's sleep at night, then she should take an hour's nap. There is always some period in the day when young children will be sleeping. If there are older children, they may be capable of attending to the phone, keeping visitors away or even doing some of the housework the mother is abandoning.

If this is a nursing mother, it is even more imperative to her success as a nurse that she lie down frequently and get rest. She will be able to "let down" when she nurses if she is not all keyed up with tension and fatigue and thus will be able to produce more milk. This makes for a better baby and aids her own spirits.

If friends get to know that she is not to be disturbed between one and three p.m., she may be assured of an uninterrupted rest of at least one hour and then she can get up and in the following hour do all the work that it might have taken two hours to complete when she was tired and resentful against her chores. Try it.

If you would like to have our leaflet "information for Nursing Mothers," send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for leaflet No. 4 to Myrtle Meyer Eldred in care of this newspaper.

Trenton Assoc. Women To Meet At Fair Park

A combined meeting of Trenton Associational W. M. U. and Y. W. A. will be held Tuesday, evening at Fair Park Baptist Church, White's Ferry Road, in West Monroe with the organization of Good Hope Church serving as co-hostesses.

The theme of the meeting will be "Our State For Christ", with Mrs. F. A. Brown presiding.

The two organizations will serve supper at 6 p. m. followed by the program at 7.

Reports will be given as follows: Y. W. A.—Mrs. J. O. Williams; G. A.—Mrs. J. D. Smith; Sunbeams— Mrs. M. C. Grubbs; Mission Study—Mrs. Earl Ferguson Stewardship—Mrs. W. E. Spencer;—Community Missions—Mrs. J. E. Muckelroy; Jubilee—Mrs. G. G. Stell.

Proceedings from Glorietta Baptist Assembly will be presented by Mrs. Lloyd Guillory, followed by special music by Mrs. Turner Davis.

Following the installation of officers by Mrs. G. A. Parker, a missionary message will be brought by Mrs. Charles Krauss, missionary to the French and Indians in South Louisiana.

SAVE THE JUICE

Use kitchen tongs to turn steaks with instead of a fork. If a fork is used on broiled steaks it allows good juices to escape.

CONCEAL IT

Use white pepper in a white sauce, salad dressing (mayonnaise type) and other foods where black pepper would "show."

This easy dessert is a summer favorite. Turn a can of cling peaches, either halves or slices, into the freezing tray of your refrigerator and chill until icy. Serve them in sherbet glasses with or without such embellishments as flaked coconut, raspberry jam or a squeeze of fresh lime juice.

When the youngsters come home hungry from swimming, serve tall cool glasses of peach, pear or apricot whole fruit nectar. Pour the nectar over cracked ice and serve with a wedge of lemon or lime. Nectar is available in big convenient 46 ounce cans. Keep one or two in the refrigerator while the weather is warm.

Seek Stiffer Labor Controls Bill

Reps. Phil M. Landrum (D-Ga), left, and Robert P. Griffin (R-Mich) held a news conference Friday at which they announced the launching of a drive for a stiffer labor control bill than the measure approved Thursday by the House Labor Committee. Both are members of the committee. Griffin said he had worked with White House staff members in drafting the new measure. (AP Wirephoto)

Child Study Impressions Given Here

Children do not come to school alone, Mrs. Agnes Miller of the Plum Street School faculty told the Parent-Teacher Workshop at Northeast Louisiana State College.

The speaker emphasized factors which she termed pertinent in a series of discussions on child study that she gave at the sessions.

When the child comes to school, he brings the impress of all people who touch his life and all things which he has learned from them, Mrs. Miller said. She declared, "These are factors which influence him to act or react as he does."

From infancy he begins to learn patterns of behavior of people around him, regardless of sex, race, creed, region, and social class, the speaker explained.

American values are largely middle class — the real basis of democratic society, she said. American schools are middle class institutions.

CHARACTERISTICS

Children of the upper social class often attend private schools, Mrs. Miller said. These frequently are from families of inherited wealth and characterized by prestige of occupations and freedom of morals.

Schooling is not important to children of the lower social class, which expects little of their youngsters, Mrs. Miller said. Low standards of cleanliness, loose morals and crime frequently characterize this group, she explained.

Children in families of low standards often have difficulty in meeting requirements of public schools, some respond happily, while others make mistakes, which the teacher may consider insubordination, she explained. Some deliberately rebel.

The middle class in European and American culture make the greatest demands on children, Mrs. Miller declared. These demands include both bodily processes and emotional development.

The speaker stressed the theory that youngsters of all classes bring to school — for good or ill — everything they have learned.

Daily happenings come with the child to school, she pointed out. Conduct of the child often reflects home situations such as conflict in the family, illness and financial worries. He also reflects security or lack of it, the speaker said. The secure child does better work at school and he feels freedom to be creative, she explained. This sense of security, Mrs. Miller explained, comes from affectional relationships. "It begins in infancy and continues through life."

The child's behavior, she asserted, is patterned by those people who have molded him. She told the workshop group, "We go to school and all through life with our children."

Flames Damage Area Residence

WINNSBORO (Special) — Fire raced through the home of J. W. (Monk) Hodge on Crowville Road four miles north of Winnsboro yesterday evening and resulted in an estimated loss of $4000.

According to Fire Chief Allen Robinson, the fire started from an explosion in a storage room where the hot water tank was kept.

Mrs. Bertha Sikes, who was in the home nursing Mr. Hodge's invalid mother, Mrs. Lula Hodge, 74, said she was just starting to make coffee when the explosion occurred and almost knocked her to the floor.

Mrs. Hodge was taken to the home of a neighbor, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Amos, while the fire was being combatted by firemen. Flames damaged the upper structure and roof of the brick veneer home.

Benjamin Franklin used playing cards as insulation in the electrical friction machine which he built in 1731.

DELAYS CONTRACT SIGNING

Demos Row Over Convention Seats

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Democratic National Committee is at loggerheads with the California group which helped lure the 1960 Democratic National Convention to Los Angeles. The dispute involves allotment of a big bloc of convention seats.

Although party officials here hope the disagreement will be settled soon, the dispute has delayed the signing of a contract for the convention. The National Committee voted last Feb. 27 to hold the convention at Los Angeles.

Speaking for the two parties are Paul M. Butler, chairman of the National Committee, and Edwin W. Pauley, treasurer of the bipartisan Los Angeles Host Committee, which bid for both the Democratic and Republican Conventions. Pauley is a former member and treasurer of the National Committee.

As the dispute is reported here, Pauley has insisted with table-pounding emphasis that he was given a commitment that 5,000 tickets for convention seats would be allotted to the host committee. He also was said to have insisted that he could not raise the $350,000 cash bid for the convention unless he has the 5,000 tickets to distribute to contributors.

The host committee originally asked for 6,000 seats — a request which was rejected. The Butler side of the argument is that Pauley was not promised any specific number of tickets but that the question was left for settlement in future negotiations.

Butler has offered the host committee 1,500 tickets.

He also has denied that the dispute could lead to the selection of another city for the conention. A National Committee spokesman said party headquarters "does not even have a plan to explore the possibility" of choosing another convention site.

Butler was understood to be convinced that Norris Poulson, Republican Mayor of Los Angeles and chairman of the host committee, was willing to settle on terms satisfactory to the National Committee.

A highly placed California Democrat told United Press International that he expects the dispute to be settled but that he is sure other Californians will raise the $350,000 if the host committee fails to do so. This same Democrat, who is not directly involved in the argument, said the National Committee cannot possibly allot as many as 5,000 tickets to the host committee.

Although no final decisions have been made on the seating layout for the convention, party officials believe the new Los Angeles Convention Hall will provide a maximum of 16,000 seats.

Of these, about 4,500 would be reserved for delegates and alternates and an equal number for party bigwigs, press, radio and television and members of the "750 Club." Two seats have been promised to each Democrat who joins the "750 Club" by contributing $1,000 to help pay off the party's debts.

By this calculation, there would be about 7,000 seats available for spectators and Pauley wants 5,000.

Geologists believe that Aruba, a Netherlands West Indies isle near the coast of Venezuela, is the top of a now submerged peak that was once forced above the Caribbean Sea by violent subterranean movements.

WANT-AD WONDERS...Trade Mark

Humor of Abe Lincoln Reflected In Want Ad

Before he became President of the United States, Abraham Lincoln once had a valuable watch stolen. The ad he placed, jokingly directed to the thief, shows the famous humor of the great man:

$TOLEN — A watch worth $100. If the thief will return it he shall be informed gratis where he may steal one worth two of it, and no questions asked.

—A. Lincoln.

STEVE CANYON

MILTON CANIFF

YOU LOOK INTERESTING IN RED — EYES, THAT IS! NOT MUCH SLEEP LAST NIGHT, EH, COL. CANYON?

WHY, NO, JOHNNY! — HAD TO GET OUT A REPORT ON MY ASSIGNMENT OUT HERE...

WELL, I'M GLAD THE BOAT GOT US AS FAR AS THIS CITY, OUT OF THE OIL COUNTRY...

I SEE YOU GOT CONVOY A SEAT ON OUR FLIGHT BACK TO THE STATES...

HEY — LISTEN..

LOVER CANYON, WHO AM I JOKING? YOU REAL GOOD GUY TO FIX TICKET FOR CONVOY TO GO STATESIDE, BUT WE BOTH KNOW I WOULD BE LIKE FIFTH WHEEL AT FAMILY REUNION...

SO I GO BACK TO KEEP EYE ON RED DOINGS — TO PAY BACK FOR GOOD THINGS G.I.'s DID FOR ME AS A KID! YOU EASE ON HOME AN' MARRY WITH YANKEE GIRL WHO HAS SENSE TO HANG ONTO YOU — INSTEAD OF LIKE SOFT-HEAD CONVOY!...OUT...

BUT TWO THINGS ARE HAPPENING THAT WILL MAKE STEVE'S TRIP TO THE STATES LESS THAN 'EASY'...

CONGRATULATIONS, SERGEANT! YOU ARE THE FIRST MAN TO EARN THE MISSILE BADGE AT DYER AIR FORCE BASE!

YES, MISS CALHOON..

HOW DO YOU DO, SIR! SORRY I COULDN'T SEND THE CHAUFFEUR FOR YOU -- HE'S DOWNTOWN RETURNING MY WIFE'S JEWELS TO THE VAULT--

UNFORTUNATELY, MY SPORTS CAR IS IN THE REPAIR SHOP --AND DAUGHTER RAN OVER TO THE COUNTRY CLUB IN THE CONVERTIBLE!
